Nasser Proclaims Himself Ruler Of New Arab State

CAIRO (UP)—Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser Saturday announced foundation of the United Arab Republic linking Egypt and Syria and pledged its Soviet-equipped armies to defend it against the "common enemy" which was turned back at Port Said. Russia was first to recognize the new state.

Simultaneously, Syrian Premier Sabri Assali cabled his resignation and that of his cabinet from Damascus, thus formally acknowledging Syria's subservience to Cairo.

The 40-year-old Nasser, whose merger of Syria and Egypt with himself as President won 99.9 per cent approval in Friday's plebiscite, stood on the balcony of the National Union Building in the center of Cairo.

In the square below was a mob scene. Hundreds of thousands of wildly-cheering Arabs thundered their pleasure at his reference to the abortive French-British-Israeli invasion in 1956, which stopped at Port Said.

Police said 250,000 were in the square and thousands more in side streets. Fainting women were passed out over the heads of the crowd. At least 15 persons were injured in minor fights.

Police used clubs to try to restore order in some sections but they were overwhelmed.

In Damascus, where the Syrian cabinet met this morning under President Shukri El Kuwatly to dissolve itself, the streets were relatively quiet although today was declared a national holiday in both Syria and Egypt.

Moscow Radio said Soviet President Klementi E. Voroshilov cabled his congratulations and formal recognition of the UAR.

Less than 450 of the nearly 7,500,000 Syrian and Egyptian voters cast ballots against the UAR and Nasser Friday and the stocky Egyptian leader exuded confidence.

"The unity which we realized today is a powerful weapon with which we are able to confront the common enemy. . . " he said.

"This common enemy launched a direct attack on us at Port Said but was defeated and forced to withdraw, thanks to the unity and determination of the Arab people."

(The British, French and Israelis halted their attacks on Egypt in response to United Nations resolutions.)

Nasser was dressed in a blue serge civilian suit for the occasion. During an undefined transition period he will have nearly absolute power over the new republic.

He said the Syrian-Egyptian armies never would be used

Three 'Copters Ram Into Ridge; Six Fliers Die

RED BLUFF, Calif. (UP) — Three Army helicopters of a formation of seven flew into the side of a low ridge 15 miles north of here Saturday during a rainstorm. Six crewmen were reported killed.

The giant troop-carrier helicopters were the second section of a squadron being transferred from Ft. Riley, Kan., to Ft. Lewis, Wash. They carried crews of three men each, but no troops were aboard.

Sixth Army headquarters in San Francisco confirmed that six of the crewmen were killed, but refused to disclose further details. However a check with sheriff's officers and civilian pilots who flew over the crash scene indicated crews of two of the 'choppers perished when their crafts exploded into flames.

Herb Dennis, operator of a flying service in Chico, Calif., south of here, flew over the wrecked aircraft a few hours after they ploughed into the rugged hill country.

"Two of the helicopters apparently exploded when they hit the ridge," he said. "They were still smoking when I flew over. The third apparently made a crash landing, but it didn't appear to be too badly damaged."

Dennis said three of the undamaged craft had made landings nearby. A fourth helicopter with the flight commander aboard was reported to have returned to Red Bluff—although he was not available to newsmen.

ROQUEBRUNE, Cap Martin, France (UP)—Sir Winston Churchill was all but out of danger Saturday in his bout with pneumonia and pleurisy. Physicians permitted him to resume his usual after-dinner cigars, brandy and conversation.

Except for the fact that the 83-year-old British statesman must remain in bed at his vacation villa in this Riviera community, he has "nearly returned to normal routine," according to his secretary Anthony Montague Browne.

Long Is Sent Rehabilitation Unit Request

The committee on narcotics legislation of the Louisiana District Attorney's Association has called upon Gov. Earl K. Long and leaders in the state to establish an institution for the treatment of persons addicted to narcotics and alcohol.

Copies of the resolution were mailed yesterday to the governor, Lt. Gov. Lether E. Frazer, Jack P. E. Gremillion, attorney general, and Cecil N. Bankston, hospital director of the state department of institutions.

The resolution, which was prepared by the committee headed by District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter of Monroe, was signed by Fred L. Jackson, president, and John Benton, secretary of the association.

In addition to the named officials, a copy has been sent to Senator Richard Bertrand of Lafayette, chairman of the joint committee of the Senate and House of Representatives on narcotics legislation.

None in State

The resolution pointed out that there is no institution for narcotic addicts in the state. The only procedure granted to law enforcement officers by present state law to rehabilitate the addicts is to ask that the patient be placed on probation on the condition that he or she submit to treatment in a hospital by the United States National Health Service. (The nearest one is in Louisville, Ky.)

The resolution also stressed that the institutions are "located outside of the State of Louisiana, which necessarily would remove the patient from the jurisdiction and supervision of the Louisiana law enforcement officers and courts and which defeats the enforcement of the rehabilitation provision."

The institution would be constructed and equipped with funds provided by the state legislature.

STATE BUDGET CUT LOOMS

Efforts To Abolish Parks Board Slated

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 22 (AP)—Rep. Jesse McLain, often an administration voice, said today he will sponsor legislation to abolish the State Parks and Recreation Department.

For lack of money, he said, the state simply would turn over control and maintenance of its 16 state parks to the parishes or towns in which they are located.

His words gave the first hint of possible state administration axe swinging in the face of revenue problems. Gov. Earl Long repeatedly has insisted he won't sponsor any tax raises, letting others do that.

Under the St. Tammany Parish legislator's proposal, the 13-member State Parks and Recreation Commission also would be handed its hat.

McLain is chairman of the important House Ways and Means Committee, succeeding Robert Angelle when the veteran St. Martin Parish lawmaker was elevated to House speaker. McLain also served as a member of the governor's budget committee.

Most of the approximately 133 employes now in the state parks system would not lose their jobs, McLain said. They would be shifted to parish or municipal control.

"We've got money problems," McLain said. "We cannot take away from the needy in the welfare program or in charity hospitals. A first step for economical reasons would be abolishing the state parks operation, turning the parks over to the parishes or towns in which such parks are located."

The State Parks and Recreation Department and its supervising commission, which includes six state officials, have been the center of a controversy for many months after the department abolished four professional posts,

Chamber Group Challenged Here

By LYNN GARRETT
Staff Writer

Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard yesterday hurled a challenge to Chamber of Commerce members and officials to relinquish their "pure air and fresh water" tactics in favor of hard work and cooperation for civic betterment.

Howard addressed the noon luncheon of the Louisiana Association of Chamber of Commerce managers.

"The Chamber of Commerce represents business and civic leadership and a spirit of achievement," Howard said. "We must have civic action if we are to improve our communities."

The mayor said some persons term the fight that is being made throughout the country to renovate and preserve the American city as we know it the "chief internal problem of 20th century America."

New Trend

Howard pointed out the trend in this country from rural to urban and metropolitan living. "Fifty years ago most Americans lived on farms, whereas today over 75 per cent of the population lives in metropolitan or urban areas."

"This is a great domestic challenge to us," he continued "Our streets, highways, schools, fire and police departments, recreation facilities and sewer lines are staggering under tremendous burdens."

He said that not only in the Twin Cities, but in cities across the nation, many millions of dollars will be needed to meet the crisis of strangulation in many of these facets.

Stressing that serious thought and long-range planning is essent-

Truman Assails GOP Leadership For Recession

WASHINGTON (UP) — Former President Truman said Saturday night that President Eisenhower's administration had led the country into a "Republican recession" which threatens economic disaster.

Blaming this and foreign policy troubles on five years of Republican "complacency," he advised fellow Democrats that no one was fooled by the GOP "smear technique" of labeling economic critic as "profits of gloom and doom."

The ex - president, in jaunty mood, fulfilled a promise to "turn loose" on the administration by charging it with weakening U. S. defenses and the free world alliance and with damaging the domestic economy with programs to help big business and money lenders.

He was the principal speaker at a $100-a-plate dinner attended by about 3,000 Democrats and party leaders from throughout the country on Washington's birthday. Other featured speakers were Adlai E. Stevenson and Democratic Congressional leaders.

Predicts Democratic Victories

But it was Truman's night. In his free-swinging way, he flayed the GOP administration for virtually every policy it espouses. And threaded through his speech were implicit warnings that the country may be on the brink of a 1929-type depression.

He said the American people

Reinforcements Prevent Gunplay

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Police today told how reinforcements arrived in time to prevent a gunbattle and aid in the capture of Charles Olin Thrash, 28, one-eyed escapee from the state penitentiary.

The escaped convict drew a snub-nosed revolver yesterday, officers said, as he was being arrested for questioning about a Shreveport bank robbery and other crimes.

Thrash surrendered when the newly-arrived officers thrust shotguns against his back as he confronted other policemen with the gun at his residence here.

Two women and another man were arrested along with Thrash. They were Carol Cramer, 23; John August Nagin, 24, and Lillian Bradley, 27.

They were booked for investigation of recent burglaries and to await questioning by the FBI about white slavery and transportation of stolen car activities.

Heart Sunday Funds Drive Teams Ready

More than 700 volunteers throughout the parish will visit homes today in a concentrated effort to raise funds for the Ouachita Parish Heart Fund. The drive will climax a month of activities by the local group, headed by William M. Smith, parish chairman.

Mrs. J. B. Kruger, chairman of the Heart Sunday activities, said the house-to-house campaign will be held from 2 to 4 p.m.

Persons whose homes are not contacted during these hours are asked to telephone the Heart Fund office, Fairfax 2-2402, and a person will make the contact. The office is expected to be open throughout the afternoon and early evening.

The mayors of Monroe and West Monroe, W. L. Howard and J. Allan Norris, have issued proclamations setting aside today as Heart Sunday. The proclamation urged all citizens to cooperate in the Heart Fund drive and all schools, churches, scientific, civic, social and fraternal organizations and business establishments to give this campaign the greatest possible support."

For the past several weeks, leaders in the heart movement with various prospective workers, who this afternoon will form one of the largest teams to move into the parish in such a drive.

No goal has been set, Mrs. Kugler said.

The workers will wear special identification for the occasion. They will be part of a group of more than 15,000 throughout the state joining hands in the drive against heart diseases.

This year's heart fund campaign marks the tenth anniversary of the American Heart Association as a national voluntary health agency. The local drive was begun only four years ago, however.

The drive is the spearheading force against diseases which are responsible for over 47 per cent of all deaths in Louisiana, and which affect 10,000,000 living Americans including approximately 500,000 children.

The drive has been endorsed by religious leaders of all principal faiths.

The woman was said to be partly blind and lame. She lived in the back room of a 4-room Negro home in the Negro section of Tallulah.

It was believed she was alone in the house when the blaze broke out.

JAMES E. LARCHE

Ouachita Man Ranking State Young Farmer

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — James E. Larche, 36 - year - old Ouachita Parish farmer, was named Louisiana's Outstanding Young Farmer of 1957.

The annual presentation was made at the state banquet of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Bentley here last night.

Corlis Henry of Rayville was acclaimed second place winner and David M. Perkin of Hamburg was third place winner.

Bob G. Fallin, state president of the Jaycees, sponsoring organization of the award, made the presentation to Larche before a gathering of 100 Jaycees, farmers and agriculture leaders.

Larche, of West Monroe, won out over eight finalists. Some 45 farmers competed for the title.

He was the first Ouachita parish farmer to be designated state winner in the four years of the award.

Dr. Joel Fletcher, president of Southwestern Institute at Lafayette, was principal speaker.

Presentation

The Ouachita Parish chapter of the Jaycees named Larche the parish farmer of the year January 3. The parish presentation was made by John H. Birdsong Jr.

The state's top farmer of 1957 operates a 120 acre farm, is a lifelong resident of Lapine Community, an active leader in the Farm Bureau Federation and a heroic veteran of World War II.

Basic crops on the Larche farm are cotton, cattle, hogs, corn, sorghum and poultry.

Larche's wife, the former Miss Estelle Kelly, assists in the operation of the farm. They have two sons. The family also rents a small acreage for cultivation in addition to the 120 acres.

Larche, after returning home from the war, built the farm up from a rundown acreage and two mules, in which he was a one-sixth ownership. He has since purchased full ownership of the land and advanced to complete mechanization, including two tractors and a combine.

Modest Start

Starting with a scrubby herd of cattle in 1947, Larche now owns a herd of 65 high grade Herefords.

SOLUTION FOUND?

Exploding Bottles Plague To Family

SEAFORD, N.Y. (UP) — Police said Saturday they thought they had finally put the lid on the 18-day-old case of the popping bottles.

If they have, a 74-year-old Revere, Mass., widow will get all the credit.

It was just 188 days ago, but it seems like an eternity to the James Herrmann family, that bottles, jars and other containers began flipping their lids in their six-room Long Island home.

Jars of jam, bottles of pop, perfume and holy water, cans of turpentine and other liquids all blew their tops, and for no apparent reason. Several policemen witnessed the phenomena. One was there when a sugar bowl jiggled itself off a table and slammed so hard into another piece of furniture that it left a dent.

Finally the Hermanns got what they considered good advice a few days ago. Mrs. Helen Connolly telephoned from Revere to tell the distraught family about a similar experience that befell her last April.

Mrs. Connolly said a building inspector told her there was a downdraft in her chimney that swept hot gases into the house. This made dishes jump and the furniture jiggle, she said.

Herrmann, with the aid of detective Joseph Tozzi, decided to act on this advice. They installed a turbine-style ventilator in the chimney at the Herrmann home.

The Herrmanns, fed up with all the bottle popping and the telephone calls, moved out temporarily Friday. They spent the night with friends, getting their first good sleep in 18 days.

Herrmann, accompanied by Tozzi, returned home Saturday to see whether the ventilator had turned the trick. Everything in the house was just as he had left it.

"I hope it works," he said.

Full Scale Civil War Looms Near

PADANG, Sumatra (UP) — U. S.-built Indonesian air force planes Saturday bombed, rocketed and strafed key rebel cities and silenced the two rebel radios in the second day of aerial raids that brought closer the threat of all-out civil war.

The government in Jakarta admitted that in its attack Friday on the rebel stronghold in central Sumatra one bomb accidentally was dropped on the town of Jambi in southern Sumatra, which still is loyal to the Jakarta regime. The government promised to make restitution, but it did not mention casualties. The only known casualty in Saturday's raids was a small dog in the Padang radio station.

War II Vintage

In the attack, three P51 fighters and a B25 bomber, all of World War II vintage, bombed and strafed Padang and Bukit-Tinggi in central Sumatra, seats of the revolutionary government established last Saturday in opposition to President Sukarno in Jakarta.

The planes came in low through bursts of rebel .50 caliber machine gun fire to concentrate on the cities radio stations.

Residents fled the streets and buses and cars were abandoned.

Jakarta broadcasts said the raids had severed bridges and roads connecting central Sumatra with the southern part of the island.

The attack was part of Sukarno's announced campaign to "crush" the revolt. Officials on both sides said there was danger of a bloody war. Until Friday, neither side had taken military action.

Rebel Foreign Minister Col. Maludin Simbolon said the fact that the raiders concentrated on the Padang and Bukittinggi radio stations indicated that it still primarily was a "word war."

Jakarta said returning pilots reported success in their mission to "cut off the rebel area's communication lines and to blockade the rebels economically."

Friday, two B25 bombers attacked a bridge at Painan, 46

N. Y. Teenager Stabbed In New Juvenile Terror

NEW YORK (UP) — A Bronx teen-ager was charged Saturday with stabbing a youth he mistook for another boy in a new outbreak of juvenile terror on the sidewalks of New York.

Police said the stabber, who inflicted a critical wound with a seven-inch-long letter opener, was on the prowl for his girl friend's brother. He sought revenge, police said, because the brother was trying to break up the romance.

But instead of stabbing the brother, the young tough wounded Ronald Rudker, 16, after a wild candy store brawl in the Bronx.

Rudker was in fair condition at a hospital. He suffered a lung wound when the letter opener was plunged into his back by Ronald Murano, 16, police said.

A 14-year-old pal of Murano's was held on a juvenile delinquency charge after the candy store melee in which the boy and his friends found Rudker and a group of innocent bystanders.

The boys threw bottles and left a heap of wreckage in the store when they carried their fight to the sidewalk, where Rudker was stabbed.

Most of the approximately 133 employes now in the state parks system would not lose their jobs, McLain said. They would be shifted to parish or municipal control.

"We've got money problems," McLain said. "We cannot take away from the needy in the welfare program or in charity hospitals. A first step for economical reasons would be abolishing the state parks operation, turning the parks over to the parishes or towns in which such parks are located."

The State Parks and Recreation Department and its supervising commission, which includes six state officials, have been the center of a controversy for many months after the department abolished four professional posts,

Chamber Group Challenged Here

By LYNN GARRETT
Staff Writer

Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard yesterday hurled a challenge to Chamber of Commerce members and officials to relinquish their "pure air and fresh water" tactics in favor of hard work and cooperation for civic betterment.

Howard addressed the noon luncheon of the Louisiana Association of Chamber of Commerce managers.

"The Chamber of Commerce represents business and civic leadership and a spirit of achievement," Howard said. "We must have civic action if we are to improve our communities."

The mayor said some persons term the fight that is being made throughout the country to renovate and preserve the American city as we know it the "chief internal problem of 20th century America."

New Trend

Howard pointed out the trend in this country from rural to urban and metropolitan living. "Fifty years ago most Americans lived on farms, whereas today over 75 per cent of the population lives in metropolitan or urban areas."

"This is a great domestic challenge to us," he continued "Our streets, highways, schools, fire and police departments, recreation facilities and sewer lines are staggering under tremendous burdens."

He said that not only in the Twin Cities, but in cities across the nation, many millions of dollars will be needed to meet the crisis of strangulation in many of these facets.

Stressing that serious thought and long-range planning is essent-

Reinforcements Prevent Gunplay

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Police today told how reinforcements arrived in time to prevent a gunbattle and aid in the capture of Charles Olin Thrash, 28, one-eyed escapee from the state penitentiary.

The escaped convict drew a snub-nosed revolver yesterday, officers said, as he was being arrested for questioning about a Shreveport bank robbery and other crimes.

Thrash surrendered when the newly-arrived officers thrust shotguns against his back as he confronted other policemen with the gun at his residence here.

Two women and another man were arrested along with Thrash. They were Carol Cramer, 23; John August Nagin, 24, and Lillian Bradley, 27.

They were booked for investigation of recent burglaries and to await questioning by the FBI about white slavery and transportation of stolen car activities.

Truman Assails GOP Leadership For Recession

WASHINGTON (UP) — Former President Truman said Saturday night that President Eisenhower's administration had led the country into a "Republican recession" which threatens economic disaster.

Blaming this and foreign policy troubles on five years of Republican "complacency," he advised fellow Democrats that no one was fooled by the GOP "smear technique" of labeling economic critic as "profits of gloom and doom."

The ex-president, in jaunty mood, fulfilled a promise to "turn loose" on the administration by charging it with weakening U. S. defenses and the free world alliance and with damaging the domestic economy with programs to help big business and money lenders.

He was the principal speaker at a $100-a-plate dinner attended by about 3,000 Democrats and party leaders from throughout the country on Washington's birthday. Other featured speakers were Adlai E. Stevenson and Democratic Congressional leaders.

Predicts Democratic Victories

But it was Truman's night. In his free-swinging way, he flayed the GOP administration for virtually every policy it espouses. And threaded through his speech were implicit warnings that the country may be on the brink of a 1929-type depression.

He said the American people

More Spring-Like Weather Expected

Spring-like weather is expected to continue in the Monroe area today with cloudy skies and mild temperatures forecast.

The outlook for tomorrow is rain and more mild mercury readings.

Yesterday's recordings were 66 and 43, while Friday's high and low were 64 and 39.

The same outlook is expected in Arkansas today—cloudy and mild, and rain is forecast for them tomorrow, also.

Heart Sunday Funds Drive Teams Ready

More than 700 volunteers throughout the parish will visit homes today in a concentrated effort to raise funds for the Ouachita Parish Heart Fund. The drive will climax a month of activities by the local group, headed by William M. Smith, parish chairman.

Mrs. J. B. Kruger, chairman of the Heart Sunday activities, said the house-to-house campaign will be held from 2 to 4 p.m.

Persons whose homes are not contacted during these hours are asked to telephone the Heart Fund office, Fairfax 2-2402, and a person will make the contact. The office is expected to be open throughout the afternoon and early evening.

The mayors of Monroe and West Monroe, W. L. Howard and J. Allan Norris, have issued proclamations setting aside today as Heart Sunday. The proclamation urged all citizens to cooperate in the Heart Fund drive and all schools, churches, scientific, civic, social and fraternal organizations and business establishments to give this campaign the greatest possible support."

For the past several weeks, leaders in the heart movement with various prospective workers, who this afternoon will form one of the largest teams to move into the parish in such a drive.

No goal has been set, Mrs. Kugler said.

The workers will wear special identification for the occasion. They will be part of a group of more than 15,000 throughout the state joining hands in the drive against heart diseases.

This year's heart fund campaign marks the tenth anniversary of the American Heart Association as a national voluntary health agency. The local drive was begun only four years ago, however.

The drive is the spearheading force against diseases which are responsible for over 47 per cent of all deaths in Louisiana, and which affect 10,000,000 living Americans including approximately 500,000 children.

The drive has been endorsed by religious leaders of all principal faiths.

Negro Woman Dies In Flaming House

TALLULAH (Special) —Sarah Dale, Negro woman about 75 years of age, burned to death here yesterday afternoon when fire destroyed her home.

The woman was said to be partly blind and lame. She lived in the back room of a 4-room Negro home in the Negro section of Tallulah.

Fire Chief Whit Erwin said that after the fire was nearly extinguished, some of the neighbors said they had not noticed the woman in the crowd. Firemen then searched the structure and found the woman to be lying in a doorway dead.

It was believed she was alone in the house when the blaze broke out.

JAMES E. LARCHE

Ouachita Man Ranking State Young Farmer

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — James E. Larche, 36-year-old Ouachita Parish farmer, was named Louisiana's Outstanding Young Farmer of 1957.

The annual presentation was made at the state banquet of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Bentley here last night.

Corlis Henry of Rayville was acclaimed second place winner and David M. Perkin of Hamburg was third place winner.

Bob G. Fallin, state president of the Jaycees, sponsoring organization of the award, made the presentation to Larche before a gathering of 100 Jaycees, farmers and agriculture leaders.

Larche, of West Monroe, won out over eight finalists. Some 45 farmers competed for the title.

He was the first Ouachita parish farmer to be designated state winner in the four years of the award.

Dr. Joel Fletcher, president of Southwestern Institute at Lafayette, was principal speaker.

Presentation

The Ouachita Parish chapter of the Jaycees named Larche the parish farmer of the year January 3. The parish presentation was made by John H. Birdsong Jr.

The state's top farmer of 1957 operates a 120 acre farm, is a lifelong resident of Lapine Community, an active leader in the Farm Bureau Federation and a heroic veteran of World War II.

Basic crops on the Larche farm are cotton, cattle, hogs, corn, sorghum and poultry.

Larche's wife, the former Miss Estelle Kelly, assists in the operation of the farm. They have two sons. The family also rents a small acreage for cultivation in addition to the 120 acres.

Larche, after returning home from the war, built the farm up from a rundown acreage and two mules, in which he was a one-sixth ownership. He has since purchased full ownership of the land and advanced to complete mechanization, including two tractors and a combine.

Modest Start

Starting with a scrubby herd of cattle in 1947, Larche now owns a herd of 65 high grade Herefords.

SOLUTION FOUND?

Exploding Bottles Plague To Family

SEAFORD, N.Y. (UP) — Police said Saturday they thought they had finally put the lid on the 18-day-old case of the popping bottles.

If they have, a 74-year-old Revere, Mass., widow will get all the credit.

It was just 188 days ago, but it seems like an eternity to the James Herrmann family, that bottles, jars and other containers began flipping their lids in their six-room Long Island home.

Jars of jam, bottles of pop, perfume and holy water, cans of turpentine and other liquids all blew their tops, and for no apparent reason. Several policemen witnessed the phenomena. One was there when a sugar bowl jiggled itself off a table and slammed so hard into another piece of furniture that it left a dent.

Finally the Hermanns got what they considered good advice a few days ago. Mrs. Helen Connolly telephoned from Revere to tell the distraught family about a similar experience that befell her last April.

Mrs. Connolly said a building inspector told her there was a downdraft in her chimney that swept hot gases into the house. This made dishes jump and the furniture jiggle, she said.

Herrmann, with the aid of detective Joseph Tozzi, decided to act on this advice. They installed a turbine-style ventilator in the chimney at the Herrmann home.

The Herrmanns, fed up with all the bottle popping and the telephone calls, moved out temporarily Friday. They spent the night with friends, getting their first good sleep in 18 days.

Herrmann, accompanied by Tozzi, returned home Saturday to see whether the ventilator had turned the trick. Everything in the house was just as he had left it.

"I hope it works," he said.

Full Scale Civil War Looms Near

PADANG, Sumatra (UP) — U. S.-built Indonesian air force planes Saturday bombed, rocketed and strafed key rebel cities and silenced the two rebel radios in the second day of aerial raids that brought closer the threat of all-out civil war.

The government in Jakarta admitted that in its attack Friday on the rebel stronghold in central Sumatra one bomb accidentally was dropped on the town of Jambi in southern Sumatra, which still is loyal to the Jakarta regime. The government promised to make restitution, but it did not mention casualties. The only known casualty in Saturday's raids was a small dog in the Padang radio station.

War II Vintage

In the attack, three P51 fighters and a B25 bomber, all of World War II vintage, bombed and strafed Padang and Bukit-Tinggi in central Sumatra, seats of the revolutionary government established last Saturday in opposition to President Sukarno in Jakarta.

The planes came in low through bursts of rebel .50 caliber machine gun fire to concentrate on the cities radio stations.

Residents fled the streets and buses and cars were abandoned.

Jakarta broadcasts said the raids had severed bridges and roads connecting central Sumatra with the southern part of the island.

The attack was part of Sukarno's announced campaign to "crush" the revolt. Officials on both sides said there was danger of a bloody war. Until Friday, neither side had taken military action.

Rebel Foreign Minister Col. Maludin Simbolon said the fact that the raiders concentrated on the Padang and Bukittinggi radio stations indicated that it still primarily was a "word war."

Jakarta said returning pilots reported success in their mission to "cut off the rebel area's communication lines and to blockade the rebels economically."

Friday, two B25 bombers attacked a bridge at Painan, 46

N. Y. Teenager Stabbed In New Juvenile Terror

NEW YORK (UP) — A Bronx teen-ager was charged Saturday with stabbing a youth he mistook for another boy in a new outbreak of juvenile terror on the sidewalks of New York.

Police said the stabber, who inflicted a critical wound with a seven-inch-long letter opener, was on the prowl for his girl friend's brother. He sought revenge, police said, because the brother was trying to break up the romance.

But instead of stabbing the brother, the young tough wounded Ronald Rudker, 16, after a wild candy store brawl in the Bronx.

Rudker was in fair condition at a hospital. He suffered a lung wound when the letter opener was plunged into his back by Ronald Murano, 16, police said.

A 14-year-old pal of Murano's was held on a juvenile delinquency charge after the candy store melee in which the boy and his friends found Rudker and a group of innocent bystanders.

The boys threw bottles and left a heap of wreckage in the store when they carried their fight to the sidewalk, where Rudker was stabbed.

Winter Of 1957 Worst On Record For Many Years

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UP STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The winter of 1957-58 will go down in history as the worst on record in parts of the South and its overall cost is estimated far more than 100-hundred-million dollars.

The crusher for most of the eastern section of the nation was a 13-day cold wave which finally cracked Wednesday. It left more than 500 persons dead, monumental transportation tieups, and cold, famished families snowbound cross a vast area.

In many parts of the East, however, the cold and accompanying snows were a blessing. Farmers from Georgia to Massachusetts said the heavy snows were just the thing for their winter crops.

Northern areas which weathered the worst blizzards took them in stride and some weather experts even described the season as "a mild winter." In the South, relatively minor cold snaps and snows spelled disaster.

These facts were revealed in a United Press check of the states which have born the brunt of a succession of cold waves and blizzards.

Of all the weather - battered states, Florida suffered the most. It was, beyond doubt, the most bitter winter on record in the Sunshine State.

Conservative estimates placed losses to Florida's tourist, cattle, citrus and vegetable industries at more than 100 million dollars. One fourth of the state's 600,000 acres of citrus trees were damaged or killed outright. Thousands of cattle died on the ranges of pneumonia and hunger.

On the plush resort strip, hotels reported 25 per cent less sun-seeking tourists than normal. Betting at the race tracks slumped 5 per cent and unemployment reached critical proportions among more than 100,000 migrant farm laborers.

An area breakdown of winter's toll showed:

The South

Florida was not the only Dixie state to suffer grievous losses.

Alabama's poultry business was poorer by at least $1,500,000. Livestock losses were impossible to estimate, but were known to be the worst in 75 years.

In Mississippi, planting of the cabbage crop and other truck crops were delayed and cold-caused fire losses were in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. Virginia had endured its worst cold in a half-century, and snow-removal costs were more than a million dollars.

Several thousand beef cattle were lost in North Carolina, while Louisiana livestock was sadly in need of feed.

The Northeast

The cold wave and storms had been the worst in 20 years in Pennsylvania, the third worst on record in New York City, and the worst since 1915 in upstate New York.

Heavily populated areas were hit hard and uncounted hundreds of snowbound families suffered enough to prompt the governors of New York and Pennsylvania to declare states of emergency. In much of New England, however, the weather was written down as just about normal.

Pennsylvania farm officials estimated that farmers had spilled out more than two million dollars worth of milk, and additional hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of milk was blocked from the markets.

New York City's 11 days of below freezing had been topped only twice before in history—from Jan. 3 until Feb. 5 in 1905 and from Jan. 10 to 22 in 1893.

In upstate New York, the Albany County highway superintendent could say only that the storm's cost was "terrific—fabulous." Buffalo alone spent $50,000 a week on snow removal and needed only two more inches of snow this winter to set an all-time record.

The Midwest

Here, the winter was taken as a matter of course. Ohio counted 50 weather-caused deaths in 30 days, but damage in the state was rated negligible. Other states, despite blizzard snows and record colds, reported they had seen far worse winters.

Efforts To Abolish Parks Board Slated

terming it an economy move, then hired extra unskilled help.

Charges of politics flew thick and fast in a civil service commission hearing.

But Sen. B. B. Rayburn of Bogalusa, Gov. Long's top legislative fiscal leader, and Rep. McLain denied politics played any part in testimony before the Civil Service Commission.

They said they had cautioned the parks group about spending.

The Civil Service Commission itself ruled a state agency had the right to make administrative changes in its operations.

In other words, it could abolish the four high-paying jobs and dismiss the workers affected, but it couldn't restore those jobs without returning the same workers to the posts.

McLain declined comment on the smoldering controversy, which this week reached toward the governor's office after Rep. Buford Smith of Avoyelles Parish admitted he arranged for his father to get a night watchman's job at the Marksville Prehistoric Indian Museum.

The governor defended Smith. While he said it would have been "better government" for Smith not to have asked for the job, Long said complaints involved showed it was just a question of "whose ox is being gored."

McLain did not say whether he had consulted Gov. Long about his proposed legislation, which probably could be an administration trial balloon.

But McLain has not been in the habit about talking about shake-ups in state government without knowing the score.

The issue could be settled quickly in March, when Gov. Long's budget committee starts to work. It may decide "yes" or "no" before the Legislature meets in May. It did a heavy budget slicing job on many smaller agencies before the 1957 fiscal session.

Should McLain's proposal go through, the following state parks would be affected:

Mansfield Battle Park, DeSoto Parish; Edward Douglass White Memorial, Thibodaux; Chemin-a-Haut State Park, Morehouse Parish; Audubon Memorial Park, West Feliciana Parish; Lake Bistineau State Park, Webster Parish; Fort Jessup, under construction in Sabine Parish; Chicot State Park, Evangeline Parish; Sam Houston State Park, Calcasieu Parish; Longfellow-Evangeline State Park, St. Martin Parish; Bogue Falaya, Covington; Abita Springs Park, Abita Springs; Fontainebleau State Park; St. Tammany Parish; Fort Pike, the ruins on the Rigolets, Orleans Parish; Lake Bruin Tensas Parish; Marksville Prehistoric Indian Park, Avoyelles Parish, and Fort Macomb, Orleans Parish.

The generator of a jet aircraft undergoing engine testing here yesterday caught fire and was badly damaged, firemen reported.

The craft was believed to have been the same USAF interceptor forced down with engine trouble at Selman Field about a month ago.

A fireman, who said he was with a Monroe fire company which stood by the craft landed, and also was at the scene yesterday during the motor tests, said the plane appeared to be the downed air ship.

Chamber Group Challenged Here

ial in order to have orderly growth, Howard said that unfortunately, the necessary revenue is not usually there, as city governments are on the short end of the tax dollar.

'Urban Sprawl'

The "urban sprawl" has had the effect of diminishing business and threatening the city with decay because although the "urbanites" gain the advantages of working in the city and of absorbing the city's cultural facilities, their taxes are lost, so far as the city is concerned, he said.

"The local government is the foundation of democracy, and if it ceases, so will democracy," Howard asserted. "We must preserve our cities — not only Monroe and West Monroe but all of them — in spite of the magnitude of the difficulties facing us."

He said "Downtown, U.S.A." can and will be what we would have it be, provided public officials and civic leaders cooperate to achieve the results.

"We can and will rip through the decay to make way for the attractive and efficient metropolitan city of tomorrow, if community leaders will stop shirking their responsibilities," Howard declared.

'Lackadaisical Attitude'

The mayor said he had been "amazed by the lackadaisical attitude" of some leaders of Chambers of Commerce and Junior Chambers of Commerce.

"I have heard on numerous occasions," he said, "the president, officers and committee chairmen speak of some fine project and how badly it was needed and how easily it could be attained, but when the time for action came, chairmen and committee members failed to act, lost interest and refused to give the time required for accomplishment of the objective."

Howard continued by saying that "in too many cases, the officers and members of the Chamber of Commerce apparently have the feeling that once they have employed a manager or secretary, he will solve all of the problems and their responsibility calls for criticism of the committees, public officials, and in some cases, of each other."

He added that in some cases the criticism of public officials is justified, but that at the same time many members of the Chamber feel they cannot afford to "step on City Hall's toes."

'Call A Spade'

Problems are often eased over and forgotten, because the members hesitate to call a spade a spade, Howard commented. Chamber of Commerce members too often devote their energies solely to activities such as Dollar Days, Christmas parades and various kindred activities, he said.

"Most public officials welcome the active participation of business and civic leaders in guiding the destiny of the community. We are not so politically - minded that we cannot recognize the value of concerted community effort."

He suggested that the public communication media of radio, television and newspapers could be used advantageously by the Chamber to get problems out into the open.

Expecting Miracles

"Until and unless the leaders are willing to do more than simply pass resolutions and endorse projects — and sit back expecting miracles — we cannot and will not attain the success for our community which we all say we want," Howard asserted.

"The half-hearted passing of resolutions, and then the backing off, and in some cases, the doing of an about face, is not a concrete contribution."

He said the managers of the Chamber in the Twin Cities were doing a good job, along with many of the other Chamber officials and members, but that too many people were unwilling to head committees and give of their time and effort to carry through on their projects.

"I feel that the Chamber officials and members have the resources to overcome many problems, if they will just give of their time, give of their efforts and accept their civic challenge," he said. "Public officials alone can't get very far."

Howard closed by saying that any community worth living in is a community worth improving. "Service to God and our fellow men is the rent we pay for the space we occupy here on earth," Howard said. "Let's get rid of the 'pure air and fresh water' attitude and begin working for and in our community through the Chamber of Commerce."

The schedule for today begins with a president's breakfast at 8 a.m. At the same time, a breakfast and business session will be held for all Chamber of Commerce executives.

Benton M. Wakefield Jr., president of the Monroe chamber, will then head a president's panel. Among basic topics for discussion will be the questions: Are Chamber of commerce budgets starved; do chambers of commerce mold public opinion effectively; and how far should chambers of commerce go in coordinating fairs, festivals, etc.

Members will have the opportunity to ask questions during the panel discussion.

Formal closing ceremonies will get underway at noon, with the announcement of new officers of the Chamber of Commerce Managers.

All convention business will be completed at this session.

Perkins, 36 - year - old, is part owner of a large beef cattle opeation in Avoyelles Parish. He is married to the former Miss Gloria Beisolara and they are the parents of two children.

Last year Perkins had a herd of 750 head of commercial Hereford brood cows, 335 head of replacement heifers, 150 head of feeder steers, and 34 registered Hereford bulls. In 1957 he marketed 310 head of cattle and increased his herd by 236 head of replacement heifers.

Chamber Group Challenged Here

ial in order to have orderly growth, Howard said that unfortunately, the necessary revenue is not usually there, as city governments are on the short end of the tax dollar.

'Urban Sprawl'

The "urban sprawl" has had the effect of diminishing business and threatening the city with decay because although the "urbanites" gain the advantages of working in the city and of absorbing the city's cultural facilities, their taxes are lost, so far as the city is concerned, he said.

"The local government is the foundation of democracy, and if it ceases, so will democracy," Howard asserted. "We must preserve our cities — not only Monroe and West Monroe but all of them — in spite of the magnitude of the difficulties facing us."

He said "Downtown, U.S.A." can and will be what we would have it be, provided public officials and civic leaders cooperate to achieve the results.

"We can and will rip through the decay to make way for the attractive and efficient metropolitan city of tomorrow, if community leaders will stop shirking their responsibilities," Howard declared.

'Lackadaisical Attitude'

The mayor said he had been "amazed by the lackadaisical attitude" of some leaders of Chambers of Commerce and Junior Chambers of Commerce.

"I have heard on numerous occasions," he said, "the president, officers and committee chairmen speak of some fine project and how badly it was needed and how easily it could be attained, but when the time for action came, chairmen and committee members failed to act, lost interest and refused to give the time required for accomplishment of the objective."

Howard continued by saying that "in too many cases, the officers and members of the Chamber of Commerce apparently have the feeling that once they have employed a manager or secretary, he will solve all of the problems and their responsibility calls for criticism of the committees, public officials, and in some cases, of each other."

He added that in some cases the criticism of public officials is justified, but that at the same time many members of the Chamber feel they cannot afford to "step on City Hall's toes."

'Call A Spade'

Problems are often eased over and forgotten, because the members hesitate to call a spade a spade, Howard commented. Chamber of Commerce members too often devote their energies solely to activities such as Dollar Days, Christmas parades and various kindred activities, he said.

"Most public officials welcome the active participation of business and civic leaders in guiding the destiny of the community. We are not so politically - minded that we cannot recognize the value of concerted community effort."

He suggested that the public communication media of radio, television and newspapers could be used advantageously by the Chamber to get problems out into the open.

Expecting Miracles

"Until and unless the leaders are willing to do more than simply pass resolutions and endorse projects — and sit back expecting miracles — we cannot and will not attain the success for our community which we all say we want," Howard asserted.

"The half-hearted passing of resolutions, and then the backing off, and in some cases, the doing of an about face, is not a concrete contribution."

He said the managers of the Chamber in the Twin Cities were doing a good job, along with many of the other Chamber officials and members, but that too many people were unwilling to head committees and give of their time and effort to carry through on their projects.

"I feel that the Chamber officials and members have the resources to overcome many problems, if they will just give of their time, give of their efforts and accept their civic challenge," he said. "Public officials alone can't get very far."

Howard closed by saying that any community worth living in is a community worth improving. "Service to God and our fellow men is the rent we pay for the space we occupy here on earth," Howard said. "Let's get rid of the 'pure air and fresh water' attitude and begin working for and in our community through the Chamber of Commerce."

The schedule for today begins with a president's breakfast at 8 a.m. At the same time, a breakfast and business session will be held for all Chamber of Commerce executives.

Benton M. Wakefield Jr., president of the Monroe chamber, will then head a president's panel. Among basic topics for discussion will be the questions: Are Chamber of commerce budgets starved; do chambers of commerce mold public opinion effectively; and how far should chambers of commerce go in coordinating fairs, festivals, etc.

Members will have the opportunity to ask questions during the panel discussion.

Formal closing ceremonies will get underway at noon, with the announcement of new officers of the Chamber of Commerce Managers.

All convention business will be completed at this session.

Officials in both the rebel and Jakarta governments expressed fears that all-out civil war might develop.

The army said a "number" of rebel sympathizers were arrested in northern Sumatra, which hitherto has remained loyal to Jakarta.

An army lieutenant colonel was among those arrested, the army said.

Ouachita Man Ranking State Young Farmer

His herd is built around 30 breed cows and registered bull.

Henry, who ranked second, is a 31-year-old Richland Parish farmer, who operates a 355-acre dairy farm. He is married to the former Miss Nellie Hardy. They are the parents of one child.

The dairy farm has 76 Holstein calves and heifers and one registered Holstein bull. The average yield from the dairy cows is nearby four gallons daily per head.

In addition to the dairy operation Henry has nine acres cotton allotment which he has built up from a ¾ bale per acre yield to 1½ bale per acre yield in 1957. He raised 148 acres of corn last year with a yield of 60 bushels per acre.

Perkins, 36 - year - old, is part owner of a large beef cattle opeation in Avoyelles Parish. He is married to the former Miss Gloria Beisolara and they are the parents of two children.

Last year Perkins had a herd of 750 head of commercial Hereford brood cows, 336 head of replacement heifers, 150 head of feeder steers, and 34 registered Hereford bulls. In 1957 he marketed 310 head of cattle and increased his herd by 236 head of replacement heifers.

Winner of the 1956 Outstanding Young Farmer of Year Award was Bruce Lynn of Shreveport.

terming it an economy move, then hired extra unskilled help.

Charges of politics flew thick and fast in a civil service commission hearing.

But Sen. B. B. Rayburn of Bogalusa, Gov. Long's top legislative fiscal leader, and Rep. McLain denied politics played any part in testimony before the Civil Service Commission.

They said they had cautioned the parks group about spending.

The Civil Service Commission itself ruled a state agency had the right to make administrative changes in its operations.

In other words, it could abolish the four high-paying jobs and dismiss the workers affected, but it couldn't restore those jobs without returning the same workers to the posts.

McLain declined comment on the smoldering controversy, which this week reached toward the governor's office after Rep. Buford Smith of Avoyelles Parish admitted he arranged for his father to get a night watchman's job at the Marksville Prehistoric Indian Museum.

The governor defended Smith. While he said it would have been "better government" for Smith not to have asked for the job, Long said complaints involved showed it was just a question of "whose ox is being gored."

McLain did not say whether he had consulted Gov. Long about his proposed legislation, which probably could be an administration trial balloon.

But McLain has not been in the habit about talking about shakeups in state government without knowing the score.

The issue could be settled quickly in March, when Gov. Long's budget committee starts to work. It may decide "yes" or "no" before the Legislature meets in May. It did a heavy budget slicing job on many smaller agencies before the 1957 fiscal session.

Should McLain's proposal go through, the following state parks would be affected:

Mansfield Battle Park, DeSoto Parish; Edward Douglass White Memorial, Thibodaux; Chemin-a-Haut State Park, Morehouse Parish; Audubon Memorial Park, West Feliciana Parish; Lake Bistineau State Park, Webster Parish; Fort Jessup, under construction in Sabine Parish; Chicot State Park, Evangeline Parish; Sam Houston State Park, Calcasieu Parish; Longfellow-Evangeline State Park, St. Martin Parish; Bogue Falaya, Covington; Abita Springs Park, Abita Springs; Fontainebleau State Park; St. Tammany Parish; Fort Pike, the ruins on the Rigolets, Orleans Parish; Lake Bruin Tensas Parish; Marksville Prehistoric Indian Park, Avoyelles Parish, and Fort Macomb, Orleans Parish.

Jet's Generator Catches Fire In Tests At Selman

The generator of a jet aircraft undergoing engine testing here yesterday caught fire and was badly damaged, firemen reported.

The craft was believed to have been the same USAF interceptor forced down with engine trouble at Selman Field about a month ago.

A fireman, who said he was with a Monroe fire company which stood by the craft landed, and also was at the scene yesterday during the motor tests, said the plane appeared to be the downed air ship.

Truman Assails GOP Leadership For Recession

were "fed up with Republican hucksters and their campaign oratory," tired of "being bamboozled" with "liberal pep talks and reactionary policies."

"I believe Americans are disillusioned and disturbed and that they have learned their lesson," he said. "The Democrats will win sweeping victories in 1958 and 1960. . . .

"The people want the truth. They want action at the top—for the good of the nation and for the welfare and benefit of the ordinary citizen. The present great Republican illusion is coming to an end. All Republican illusions have ended in disaster—1873, 1893, 1929. Those great panics followed Republican control of the White House."

Before the dinner, Truman paid a visit to the Senate in which he was a member for 10 years and presiding officer, briefly, while he was vice president. He was the guest of honor at a lunch given by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson.

Truman said the administration had not moved with the times and had failed to understand new foreign and domestic problems.

"Instead of staying ahead of the Russians as a world power, it followed a strange policy of cutting down our scientific and military strength," he said. "Instead of making an expanding economy the goal of its domestic policy, it concentrated on high profits for the already bloated bond holders and high interest rates for the money lenders, all at the expense of the home buyer and small businessmen.

"This policy has helped the Soviets and hurt the free world. The Soviets have always hoped we would have another 1929 depression."

Warm Air Slaps Grip Of Winter

By UNITED PRESS

A winter "heat wave" thawed much of the eastern half of the nation Saturday, posing possible flood threats from the thaw of heavy snows.

But another cold wave—mild by comparison to the extreme cold of the past week—moved through the Midwest into the East and was expected to lessen the flood threat temporarily over the Ohio Valley and the Northeast.

Following behind the fresh sweep of Arctic air, however, was a mild front which shot the mercury to 60 degrees at mid-day at Dickinson, N.D., where normally the temperatures would be below freezing. The warm front, flowing across the nation's mid-section from the west, was expected to rocket temperatures upward for most of the weekend in the Midwest.

Meanwhile, the Arctic blast—after plunging temperatures to near zero in northern Minnesota and Michigan—pushed toward the St. Lawrence Valley and the North east, where the mercury climbed above freezing Saturday for the first time in many days.

The mercury shot into the 40s from southern New England to Virginia in advance of the Arctic air, which was expected to develop cold wave conditions over portions of New York state and trigger about 1-3 inches of new snow over western New York.

Patches of light, sometimes freezing, rain marked the arrival of the chilly air and, in parts of western Pennsylvania, snow borne on northwesterly winds of 40 miles per hour in gusts cut visibility to fractions of a mile.

Warm moist air swept out of the western gulf regions, jumping temperatures into the 60s across Dixie and breaking a prolonged seige of cold and snow throughout Dixie.

Gulf Air Moves Up

Locally heavy rains erupted in a band from New Mexico to the mid-Atlantic states, with the heaviest downpours in Texas, where the Brownville area was drenched by more than three inches and the Austin region by two inches, with up to four inches in some localities. The heavy rains and thunderstorms also added to flooding in parts of central and southern Texas.

The rains, with occasional thunderstorms, spread through the lower Mississippi Valley into Missouri.

A freezing mist glazed highway over parts of Illinois, creating hazardous driving conditions.

Field units of the Red Cross were alerted throughout the nation to the danger of floods from sudden thaws and rapid melting of snow. Particular concern was expressed over a "developing flood threat" in Vermont, western New York and Pennsylvania. The danger depended, the Red Cross said, on the speed of the snow pack melt and rain in the next few weeks.

On the Mississippi River, a 43-mile ice pack that had paralyzed barge traffic most of the past week broke up, mainly because of milder temperatures. A barge line spokesman said there was "still plenty of ice" on the river, but the gorge that halted traffic was disintegrating and the ice was flowing downstream at about 6-7 miles per hour.

The warmer temperatures practically brought a halt to weather-connected deaths. Since Feb. 6 when the cold wave began a United Press count showed 555 weather-connected fatalities.

Rescue Speed Up

The big cleanup was in progress in city after city from the worst storms of winter which blustered across the eastern third of the nation. At Michigan City, Ind., where furious snow drove off Lake Michigan to isolate and paralyze the area, the week-long battle against snow appeared to be won.

Warm temperatures and a light drizzle over northern Indiana helped erase a good portion of the heavy snow which marooned scores of rural families.

"My mother would declare that February, although a short month, carried packed in its 28 days a large amount of fury as blizzards descended almost as annual affairs.

"But despite all of February snows and cold we sure did have a lot of fun with it and people there did not grumble much. We just shovelled it away and my two children and myself miss the fun we had.

"We will spend the rest of our lives in Louisiana, and we love it dearly, but past memories are precious moments to us at times.

Harris Wants Mack To Keep FCC Position

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said Saturday that any White House attempt to force Federal Communications Commissioner Richard A. Mack to resign would constitute "interference" with his subcommittee's investigation of charges against Mack.

Harris told newsmen he knew nothing about a published report that the White House is trying to get Mack to quit as a result of allegations that he received a $2,650 "payoff" in a Miami television case.

"If true, I Think that Would Mean inteference with the subcommittee's work," Harris said.

He pointed out that Mack will be called before the subcommittee next Thursday to answer the charges against him. He said Mack is "entitled to be heard before he is judged."

Denies Knowledge of Report

He said that if Mack resigned before his testimony, "everyone would say" the investigation of him had not been pursued.

"I'm not going to fall for anything like that," Harris said.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said at Thomasville, Ga., where President Eisenhower is vacationing, that he did not know "anything" about the reported pressure on Mack to resign.

Meanwhile, the United Press learned that Mack has told House investigators he decided against disqualifying himself from voting on the disputed TV case, involving Channel 10 in Miami, to avoid losing all of his "good friends" on both sides of the fence.

By taking a stand, he said, he risked offending only "half" of them.

Deny Any Wrongdoing

Details of Mack's decision are contained in secret files of the Harris subcommittee.

What he told the subcommittee investigators when questioned on this point has not been made public but some of the details were made available Saturday to the United Press.

The principal contestants for the Miami channel were Public Service Television, a subsidiary of National Airlines, and Col. A. Frank Katzentine, radio station owner and former mayor of Miami Beach.

The FCC voted 4-2 to award the channel to Public Service, overriding a recommendation by its own examiner that the channel go to Katzntine. Mack was among those voting for the airline.

The charge made against him in testimony before Harris' subcommittee is that he accepted $2,650 from Miami attorney Thurman A. Whiteside in return for his "pledge" to vote for Public Service.

Both Mack and Whiteside have denied any wrongdoing to the press.

'Little Miss Cotton' Hunt Is Underway

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 22—UP—The "Little Miss Cotton" contest will cover 11 states in a search for the "most captivating" little girl to help boost cotton.

The National Cotton Council said that 15 cities will take part in the second annual "Little Miss Cotton" contest, sending winners in each city here for the finals, similar to the annual maid of cotton contest.

The contest this year will extend as far west as Iowa, southwest to Texas, east to Pennsylvania.

Girls six to 10 years old will compete, modeling cotton garments.

The council, announcing the contest, said "wanted—an outstanding young lady, age 6 to 10, to serve as king cotton's special fashion ambassador for the grammar school set."

"The little girl will exemplify the bright spirit of young America and give further recognition to the vital role cotton plays in every day living," the council said.

The contest this year has been extended to 11 cities including New Orleans, and Dallas.

The finals will be judged May 16 at Ellis auditorium here. The finalists will be brought here to join the king and queen of the Memphis Cotton Carnival, the Maid of Cotton and to review the children's parade.

The winner will get a trip to New York City, and a complete wardrobe of back-to-school cotton fashions.

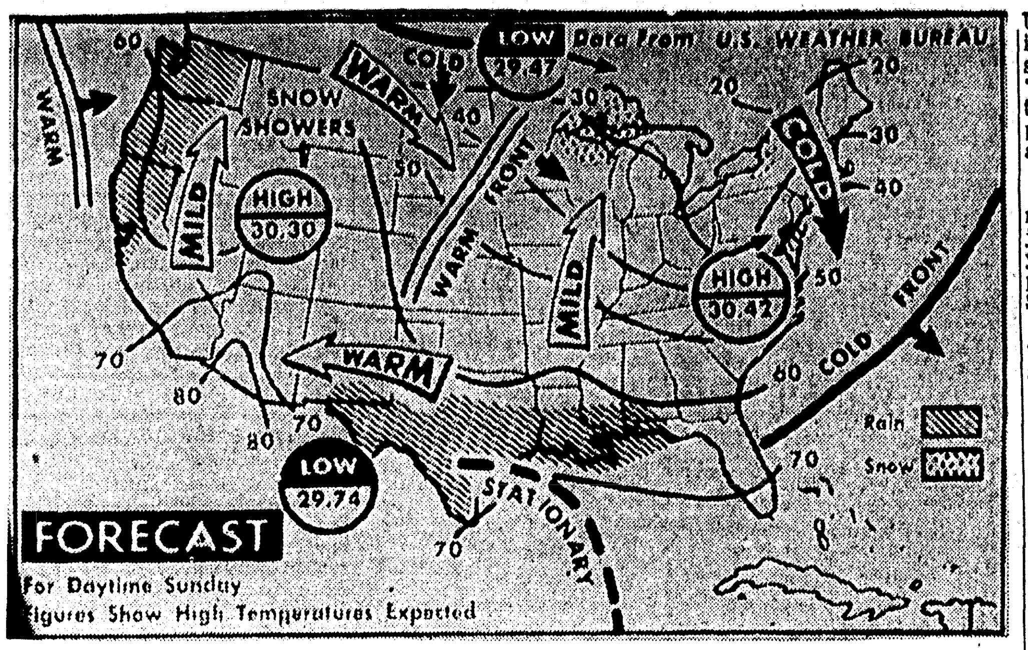
Deadline for entries in the Memphis event was set for March 12, with judging to be based on beauty, charm and background. The Memphis winner will get a trip to Nashville, Tenn.

Other cities will give similar such expense paid trips in their respective states.

Airman Injured In Auto Mishap

A Bossier City airman was slightly injured when he went to sleep before the car he was driving left U. S. 165 and overturned near here yesterday, State Police said.

John Rhinehart, 20, of Barksdale AFB was released from St. Francis Hospital shortly after being taken there. The accident occurred a half mile south of the city limites about 6:35 a.m. yesterday.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Rain is forecast for the Gulf coast region and the lower southern plains with thunderstorms likely in South Texas. Rain or drizzle also is expected in the north and central Pacific states with snow in the higher elevations. There also is a chance for some light snow or snow flurries over portions of the western Lakes and northern Appalachians regions. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Knowland Sees 'Good Chance' For Postal Hike

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland said Saturday there is "a pretty good chance" the Senate will approve a temporary five-cent stamp on non-local letters next week.

The Californian also told reporters he thinks the proposed 7½ per cent pay increase for some 500,000 postal workers will be approved.

Probably the hottest floor fight of the session is expected to develop Tuesday when the Senate takes up the 750-million-dollar postal rate increase bill.

The main issue, simply stated, is whether the old lady in Dubuque should have to pay a nickel to send a letter to her cousin Minnie in Chicago.

Last year the administration requested, and the House passed, legislation raising first class mail rates to four cents, a penny more than now prevails.

This year, with the postal deficit rising toward 700 million dollars, Postmaster General Arthur M. Summerfield came back before Congress with a new request to raise the ante another penny on out-of-town mail.

Knowland predicted the vote would be "fairly close" on this issue.

SAYS LEGAL EXPERT

Satellite Damages 'Recoverable' Loss

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22—UP—If a flying Sputnik or Explorer drops out of outer space and inflicts earthly injuries on you or damages your property you can probably sue the owners-through diplomatic channels, of course.

This is the legal opinion of Dr. Oscar Schachter, director of the United Nations general legal division. The top legal expert on international law is here to address a group of attorneys on problems of outer space.

Soon, Dr. Schachter said, legal principles applicable to outer space will be up for discussion before the UN general assembly. And one of the major issues will concern ownership of the moon.

"There are several possibilities in connection with claims on the moon," he said. It will take more than just heavily-suited pioneers stepping out of a space ship and planting a flag.

"Under international law, a nation is required to exercise some sort of governmental control before it can claim ownership. There is no reason," he said, "to treat the moon as land," but rather it should be regarded in the same way as the seas.

Outer space "is free for the use of all," said Dr. Schachter, and "there is no national sovereignty in outer space. The question is, where does air space end and outer space begin?"

That is one of the boundary problems to be discussed in the United Nations. Air space, used in aviation treaties, is defined as something up to 50 or 60 miles. "Beyond that," said the international attorney, "it would be impractical to set up national boundaries."

Today's Moon Problem

Outer space and landings on the moon, although the subject of jokes and cartoons only a few years ago, is very much of a problem of the present thinks Dr. Schachter.

"We might get claims by nations based on their landings, but something more than reaching the moon is necessary, even if we were to allow a nation to make a claim.

Legally, when flying objects fall from the sky, they belong to the company or nation that sent them into the orbits and must be returned to the rightful owner, according to the lawyer. Also if the objects injure persons or damage property, then the owner could be sued for damages.

"Why, Lloyd's of London is already selling satellite insurance," he said, "and at very low premiums."

And if a man-made satellite drops out of the sky, the owner has a right to reclaim his property.

"It would be like a plane, but of course there would be certain circumstances that would change this. For example, if the object were considered dangerous."

Negro Returns Money; Donut Holes Rewarded

ALEXANDRIA, La., Feb. 23—UP—A customer ended up with just the holes in a dozen doughnuts when he paid for the 12 dunkers in a bakery here Friday night.

After walking outside, the unidentified Negro customer reached into the bag for a tasty sample. But instead of doughnuts, there was just money—$50 of it in small bills and change, part of the bakery's receipts for the day.

The manager reported the missing receipts to police. Detective Bud Singletary was investigating the reported robbery when the customer returned to the bakery.

The bakery was closed, so the customer banged on the glass door. He showed the sack full of money to the cashier, who opened the door, reached out and took the sack full of money, then locked up for the night.

The customer was left standing outside with just the holes in the doughnuts.

The contest this year will extend as far west as Iowa, southwest to Texas, east to Pennsylvania.

Girls six to 10 years old will compete, modeling cotton garments.

The council, announcing the contest, said "wanted—an outstanding young lady, age 6 to 10, to serve as king cotton's special fashion ambassador for the grammar school set."

"The little girl will exemplify the bright spirit of young America and give further recognition to the vital role cotton plays in every day living," the council said.

The contest this year has been extended to 11 cities including New Orleans, and Dallas.

The finals will be judged May 16 at Ellis auditorium here. The finalists will be brought here to join the king and queen of the Memphis Cotton Carnival, the Maid of Cotton and to review the children's parade.

The winner will get a trip to New York City, and a complete wardrobe of back-to-school cotton fashions.

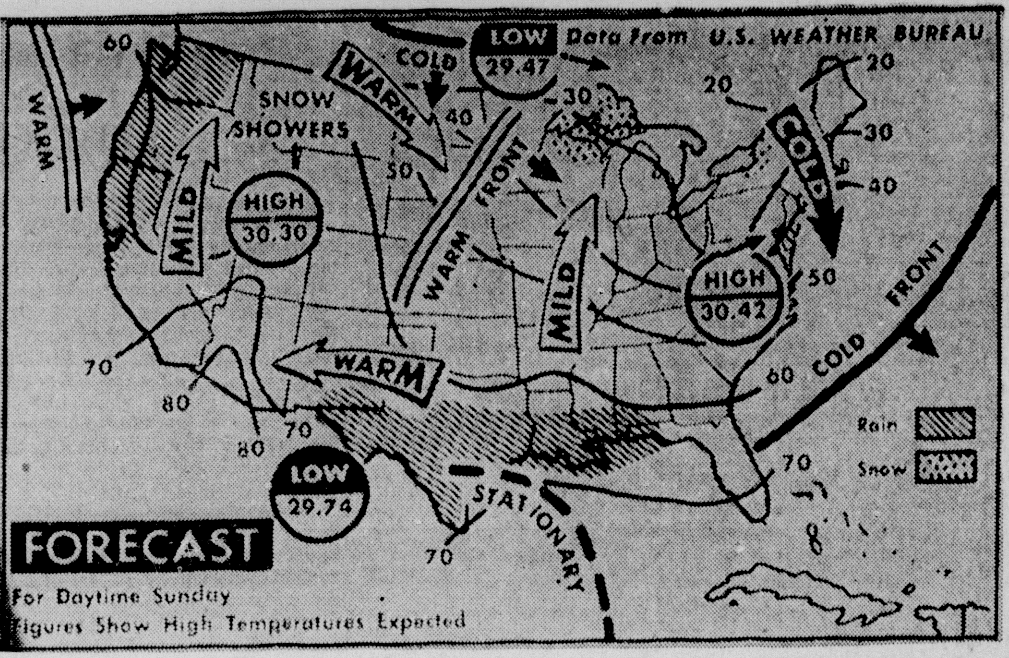
Deadline for entries in the Memphis event was set for March 12, with judging to be based on beauty, charm and background. The Memphis winner will get a trip to Nashville, Tenn.

Other cities will give similar such expense paid trips in their respective states.

Airman Injured In Auto Mishap

A Bossier City airman was slightly injured when he went to sleep before the car he was driving left U. S. 165 and overturned near here yesterday, State Police said.

John Rhinehart, 20, of Barksdale AFB was released from St. Francis Hospital shortly after being taken there. The accident occurred a half mile south of the city limites about 6:35 a.m. yesterday.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Rain is forecast for the Gulf coast region and the lower southern plains with thunderstorms likely in South Texas. Rain or drizzle also is expected in the north and central Pacific states with snow in the higher elevations. There also is a chance for some light snow or snow flurries over portions of the western Lakes and northern Appalachians regions. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Knowland Sees 'Good Chance' For Postal Hike

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland said Saturday there is "a pretty good chance" the Senate will approve a temporary five-cent stamp on non-local letters next week.

The Californian also told reporters he thinks the proposed 7½ per cent pay increase for some 500,000 postal workers will be approved.

Probably the hottest floor fight of the session is expected to develop Tuesday when the Senate takes up the 750-million-dollar postal rate increase bill.

The main issue, simply stated, is whether the old lady in Dubuque should have to pay a nickel to send a letter to her cousin Minnie in Chicago.

Last year the administration requested, and the House passed, legislation raising first class mail rates to four cents, a penny more than now prevails.

This year, with the postal deficit rising toward 700 million dollars, Postmaster General Arthur M. Summerfield came back before Congress with a new request to raise the ante another penny on out-of-town mail.

Knowland predicted the vote would be "fairly close" on this issue.

SAYS LEGAL EXPERT

Satellite Damages 'Recoverable' Loss

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22—UP—If a flying Sputnik or Explorer drops out of outer space and inflicts earthly injuries on you or damages your property you can probably sue the owners-through diplomatic channels, of course.

This is the legal opinion of Dr. Oscar Schachter, director of the United Nations general legal division. The top legal expert on international law is here to address a group of attorneys on problems of outer space.

Soon, Dr. Schachter said, legal principles applicable to outer space will be up for discussion before the UN general assembly. And one of the major issues will concern ownership of the moon.

"There are several possibilities in connection with claims on the moon," he said. It will take more than just heavily-suited pioneers stepping out of a space ship and planting a flag.

"Under international law, a nation is required to exercise some sort of governmental control before it can claim ownership. There is no reason," he said, "to treat the moon as land," but rather it should be regarded in the same way as the seas.

Outer space "is free for the use of all," said Dr. Schachter, and "there is no national sovereignty in outer space. The question is, where does air space end and outer space begin?"

That is one of the boundary problems to be discussed in the United Nations. Air space, used in aviation treaties, is defined as something up to 50 or 60 miles. "Beyond that," said the international attorney, "it would be impractical to set up national boundaries."

Today's Moon Problem

Outer space and landings on the moon, although the subject of jokes and cartoons only a few years ago, is very much of a problem of the present thinks Dr. Schachter.

"We might get claims by nations based on their landings, but something more than reaching the moon is necessary, even if we were to allow a nation to make a claim.

Legally, when flying objects fall from the sky, they belong to the company or nation that sent them into the orbits and must be returned to the rightful owner, according to the lawyer. Also if the objects injure persons or damage property, then the owner could be sued for damages.

"Why, Lloyd's of London is already selling satellite insurance," he said, "and at very low premiums."

And if a man-made satellite drops out of the sky, the owner has a right to reclaim his property.

"It would be like a plane, but of course there would be certain circumstances that would change this. For example, if the object were considered dangerous."

Negro Returns Money; Donut Holes Rewarded

ALEXANDRIA, La., Feb. 23—UP—A customer ended up with just the holes in a dozen doughnuts when he paid for the 12 dunkers in a bakery here Friday night.

After walking outside, the unidentified Negro customer reached into the bag for a tasty sample. But instead of doughnuts, there was just money—$50 of it in small bills and change, part of the bakery's receipts for the day.

The manager reported the missing receipts to police. Detective Bud Singletary was investigating the reported robbery when the customer returned to the bakery.

The bakery was closed, so the customer banged on the glass door. He showed the sack full of money to the cashier, who opened the door, reached out and took the sack full of money, then locked up for the night.

The customer was left standing outside with just the holes in the doughnuts.

Give For Heart

Today is Heart Sunday — the day on which a Heart Fund volunteer will ring your doorbell and give you an opportunity to invest in the nationwide fight against diseases of the heart and circulation, which are now responsible for almost 54 per cent of all deaths.

In a most literal sense, this will be a free-will offering. The size of your contribution will be determined by the extent of you devotion to the Heart cause, by your conscience and by your capacity to give. As a matter of fact, you needn't even mention the amount of your contribution to the good neighbor who will call at your home.

But here is a suggestion that we earnestly commend to you: Think twice before making your gift.

Ask yourself these questions: "Is this contribution truly representative of my entire family? Does it speak for all of the hearts I love? Is it in keeping with the magnitude of the health problem posed by the heart diseases?"

Against the background of these questions, we think it likely that you will be more inclined to enclose a more substantial contribution in the envelope which is handed to you by your Heart Fund volunteer.

The fight against heart disease is your fight. It is everybody's fight.

So welcome your Heart Fund volunteer on Heart Sunday, February 23. Be ready with a generous contribution. Give for every heart you love!

One Down And---?

One of the numerous white students who have been suspended from Little Rock High School because of friction with the nine Negroes who were forcibly integrated—with bayonet backing—was credited with being ousted for saying, "One down and eight to go."

Now Chief Integrator Virgil T. Blossom, superintendent of Little Rock schools, and his reportedly captive board, seem willing, if not actually anxious, to bring about the "eight to go" portion of the phase.

The "one down" remark referred to Minniejean Brown, who has departed from Little Rock to attend a private integrated school in New York. She did this after her numerous squabbles and encounters with students in the Little Rock school finally resulted in her expulsion. The chances are that Minniejean, with her cantankerous disposition, will not find the going too easy in her new location.

The Little Rock school board has asked the U.S. district court in Little Rock to define what it means by "deliberate speed" and to grant a stay in its order for gradual integration of Little Rock schools.

This move gives every indication that Supt. Flowers and the school board are willing to throw in the sponge and to admit that the effort to integrate Little Rock Central High school has proved a dismal failure. Obviously Mr. Flowers and the school board are asking the federal court to take the integration onus off their backs.

There could be at least two good reasons for the plea made by Mr. Flowers and his board.

One is that citizens of Little Rock are asking enactment of an Arkansas law which would permit elections to recall undesirable officeholders. Chances are good that the law will be passed and that members of the school board will be recalled. This would mean automatic dismissal of Mr Flowers, since it is certain that any new school board would be elected by those opposed to integration and that the new members would make Mr. Flowers' ouster the first order of business.

The other reason could be that Mr. Flowers and the board are thoroughly sick of the whole situation and know that the schools cannot be operated successfully as long as present conditions exist. This is indicated by the wording of the petition, which says in part:

"The existing pupil unrest, teacher unrest and parent unrest make it difficult for the district to maintain a satisfactory education program.

"There has been no effort on the part of congress to strengthen old or provide new judicial procedures which will guarantee enforcement of the civil rights of the Negro minority.

"The district is left standing alone, the victim of extraordinary opposition on the part of the state government and apathy on the part of the federal government.

The principle of integration runs counter to the ingrained attitudes of many of the residents of the district."

If those statements do not indicate a change of attitude on the part of Mr. Flowers and the board, it would be hard to imagine anything that would.

Commenting on the petition, Governor Orval E. Faubus, whose national guard troops were grabbed away from him by the federal government and used, along with paratroopers, to force the way open for the nine Negro students to enter the school, said:

"This action of the school authorities should have been taken some time ago. I have suggested this a number of times in the past. The situation in Central High school is intolerable from the standpoint of a proper educational atmosphere. I sincerely hope the courts will give the matter proper consideration.

Now we are confronted with the interesting question of whether Mr. Flowers and the school board suddenly became converted, as they may have done, or whether the petition has its origin in a new policy devised by the national government and the federal courts.

No one at all informed on the situation has any doubt that U.S. District Judge Ronald N. Davies was imported from Fargo, N. D., to Little Rock with instructions to order integration and to reject any pleas for "deliberate" speed.

It is now entirely possible that the federal government is even more anxious than ever to turn loose the bear's tail and that it's calling upon the federal court to help it let go. Maybe the petition was suggested from higher up.

EDWARD JAMIESON

Unemployment Payments May Become More Liberal

As lines grow in front of the government offices throughout the nation paying out weekly unemployment insurance compensation, sentiment in congress is also growing for more liberal payments.

President Eisenhower has publicly stated that unemployment will start to drop by the end of March, which would relieve the strain on the balances built up in the federal and state unemployment insurance accounts.

If the president proves wrong in his estimate, however, not only will the unemployment insurance program face its greatest test since inaugurated during the depression period under the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, but congress may very likely subsidize the amount and length of the payments.

Now pending before congress is a joint bill sponsored by Democratic Senator John Kennedy of Mass. and Rep. Eugene McCarthy of Minn., which would not only substantially increase the amounts paid to unemployed under the insurance plan, but also increase the length of time during which an unemployed person could collect these weekly checks.

The average weekly check now being paid unemployed persons of $30 would be raised to not less than 50 per cent of the eligible person's weekly wages, and the average 26 weeks that such payments are made would be extended to a maximum of 39 weeks under the terms of the Kennedy - McCarthy bill.

Feeling among congressional leaders is that no serious consideration for such legislation should be given for another two weeks, at least. They hope that the president and some of his financial advisors are right in their belief that employment will start rising again about April 1.

If late in April, however, the unemployed figures show no improvement and there are definite indications that the number may grow, rather than drop, look for a concentrated drive in congress for larger and longer payments to the unemployed even if the federal government must assume part of the burden. The fact that there is an off - year congressional election in November will have considerable influence on this move.

Unemployment insurance payments during the first three months of this year, under the old laws of the respective states, are likely to reach record levels, exceeding those during the 1949-50 and 1954 recessions, due to the increase in the over - all civilian labor force since then.

Payments appear likely to reach about $250,000,000 a month or more, in the opinion of Robert K. Goodwin, chief of the bureau of employment security. While these amounts are high, they will not immediately threaten the state reserves already set - up somewhat above eight billions of dollars.

Should the payments continue at those levels, or higher, for several more months, however, the situation could become critical.

Primary difficulty, of course, lies in the fact that the individual states actually collect the insurance payments from employers and make the payments so long as these collections are adequate. So far they have been sufficient, but there is a strong feeling in Washington that if one or more states are unable to meet the payments, particularly should Congress enact the Kennedy-MacCarthy bill, the federal government will be called upon to step in and subsidize the future payments of such states.

States in which the danger seems most imminent, according to figures compiled by the federal bureau, include Maine, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Michigan, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon and Washington.

In each of these states, in the week ending Jan. 18, unemployment insurance payments were being made to nine or more per cent of the eligible workers. For the nation as a whole, the average was only 6.8 per cent.

Americans Use Right To Petition Congress

Americans are exercising their right to petition Congress in a big way and this is never more evident than when a major event like the launching of a satellite or the Little Rock school integration crisis hits the Nation's headlines.

Few Americans, it can be safely said, know they have this right or the flood of mail reaching Congress might be too tremendous to handle. Suffice it to say, however, that those persons who are aware of this right are taking advantage of it.

No matter how far-fetched some of these petitions may appear—and a number of them fall in the "crack-pot" category — they are given the same consideration as memorials from state legislatures and resolutions from legitimate groups and organizations. And none of them are ever thrown away, a fact which has created a mammoth-sized problem at the National Archives where these communications are ultimately stored.

The most recent deluge of petitions from individual Americans was prompted by the launching of the two Russian Sputniks and our own Explorer satellite. Only the imagination is broad enough to realize the wide range of suggestions which come to the minds of the petitioners. But, it should be emphasized again, Congress will give them consideration, no matter how ridiculous they sound at first blush, since some of them can contribute direction to the lawmakers who admit they don't know all the answers.

As long as any communication of this sort is in the form of a petition — and it could be scribbled on the back of an old envelope — it is treated as a petition. The clerks of the House and Senate decide which is the appropriate Congressional committee to handle them and off the petitions go for consideration. At the end of each session of Congress those petitions on which no action was taken, together with those which have merited legislative attention, are sent to their final resting place at the National Archives.

So far this year about 60 per cent of the petitions reaching Congress have been from individuals with the remainder coming from state and local governmental, fraternal, professional and business groups.

William W. Vaughan, custodian of records in the Senate, only has to read the headlines to brace himself for the mailsacks that inevitably arrive. "When the Russians send up a Sputnik, or we discover a cure for polio, or the United States goes to war in Korea, the folks with funny ideas all seem to take pen in hand," he says. But Vaughan is quick to add that he's not about to throw any of these letters away. Besides the fact it is his duty to channel them to the proper committee or to a pigeon hole for the remainder of the session, he never knows when some senator will barge in looking for a petition sent by one of his constituents.

By and large the petitioners are seeking legislation, want some event given recognition by Congress, or call attention to conditions they feel need fixing. One of the most vocal groups is the Nation's "drys" and they perennially badger Congress on the evils of drink. A recent issue of the Congressional Record carried almost a dozen from various parts of the United States asking Congress to outlaw liquor advertisements in interstate commerce. A petition from the Indian Heights Home Owners Association of Kokomo, Ind., is typical of a new rash of requests that is starting to build up. They want Congress to make pay television illegal.

The National Archives which preserves such famous documents as the United States Constitution and Declaration of Independence reports that the government as a whole keeps less than five per cent of all its records. But when Congress hands over documents for posterity, the Archives complies.

A spokesman points out that back before the turn of the century two women named Elizabeth Stanton and Susan B. Anthony petitioned Congress for women's suffrage. That seemed to be a pretty wild idea at the time but this document is a treasured item now at the Archives.

Changing Habits Can Ease Tension

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

The higher death rate among men is blamed on their lack of ability to take the stress and strain of modern living. Their life is highly competitive, and since most men continue working, we can assume they enjoy the rat race.

How do people react to tension? Some fly into a rage, become inconsiderate or mean, or start drinking. Others complain of inability to concentrate, sleep, or make decisions. Others develop disorders of bodily function such as ulcer, high blood pressure, angina pectoris, colitis, or arthritis.

We need not wear the shoes of stress, even though they fit. A tranquilizer may appear to be the remedy but medication is only "part treatment." More lasting results ensue when the individual resolves the conflicts that are causing tension and anxiety.

This is done by changing the attitudes, goals, or habits of life. As a result, work will be a pleasure and living worthwhile. A change in the philosophy of life is not always easy but, for tense persons, it is worth a trial. Popular suggestions include not wasting time worrying about yesterday's mistakes or tomorrow's tasks; planning the day in the morning and finishing the work at hand It is a wise man who knows his limitations.

Divide the day in three parts: one-third for work, one-third for play, one-third for sleep. Every man owes some of his time and vitality to his family and community. An annual vacation is good. Depending upon alcohol for relaxation is hard on the liver and does nothing toward developing emotional maturity.

Many feel that a person is not efficient if he cannot finish his work in 8 hours. It is a wonderful feeling to leave the office without the brief case and enjoy a good dinner and fine evening at home.

Don't take your work home with you; use your leisure to recharge the batteries of health and interest.

Some men find solace, stability, and encouragement in religion. Most persons who have firm religious beliefs are well adjusted.

Red And White

F. L. writes: My face, neck, and arms are red but the rest of my body is white. Have you any explanation of this?

Reply

You ought to see a physician to find out whether there is an obstruction in the large vein that drains blood from the head and upper extremities. I assume the difference in color is not due to exposure to the sun, excitement, or descent from the earliest Americans.

A Natural Gift

H. D. writes: What do singers have that nonsingers do not? Is it better vocal cords, larynx, or chest expansion?

Reply

A combination of the factors you mention, plus proper breathing and an ear for tones. To my knowledge, no one has ever detected a difference in the vocal cords of singers and nonsingers.

Today's Health Hint — An infant is a great satisfaction to his parents but his babyhood should not be prolonged.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Parents Excluded In Guidance Tests

What are parents for?

In relationship to the child, parents can play a role for which there is no substitute, that is if parents temper natural affection with some degree of intelligent objectivity. It may be in a parent's heart that his son should stand on the stage in Carnegie Hall and play the violin like a Fritz Kreisler or a Mischa Elman, but the boy wants to be a ballplayer and ends up as a bus driver.

Or there is the father who believes that stern discipline—bing, bang and don't you use lipstick around here solves all problems. As a matter of fact, such rigid discipline, often ill-conceived, produces only hate and a sense of inferiority. The golden mean still remains a sound rule for dealing with other human beings, even one's own children.

The schools in this country have tended to usurp many of the functions of the parents and one of the guideposts to this is the Accumulative Guidance Records, which many schools use and which are designed to provide a key to the mind and character of the child. This includes the aptitude and I.Q. tests.

There would be nothing wrong in this if the records were available to parents so that they could know as much about their children as the teachers believe they do. The aptitude tests may be some guide for instance to what the child ought to do at college or in life. It might show that he has no aptitude for being a lawyer, but he might do astonishingly well as a salesman. Or, it might show that a girl will not succeed as an executive but that she might do extraordinarily well as a mother.

But nothing is shown to the parents. The record is for teachers only. The parent might be guiding the child in one direction; the teachers in another. Such a conflict is unnecessary. Parent-teachers meetings rarely accomplish what they set out to do. Shy parents never rise in such meetings; there are always a noisy few who waste time with their endless yappings on general subjects.

Parents, for instance, could help teachers to know themselves, if they dared to tell a teacher what they know the children think of her. The other day I overheard a group of girls tell about a teacher whom they regard as very bright, but they insist that she interposes her private opinions some of which the pupils know to be hooey. In one instance, I showed a group of girls, from primary sources, that what a teacher told them is literally untrue. It was a sad thing to do, but I preferred to establish the truth. I asked the girls to require the teacher to produce contrary documentation from primary sources to maintain her position. They refused. But their reason for refusing was a bad one: they were afraid of bad marks. In other words, they had no regard for their teacher's intellectual integrity. A young man I know got a bad mark for expressing an opinion which differed from his professor's in college.

So, we come back to the Accumulative Guidance Record, which teachers are forbidden to show parents, the general excuse being that Johnny will compete with Bill when their parents tell them what these records show and that such competition is bad even in a competitive society.

The Accumulative Guidance Record seeks as much information about the child as possible. But it must be startlingly unscientific if the parents are not included in the plot to gather information. For instance, some children are regarded as lazy because they are slow. Why are they slow? Is there a family record of low blood pressure or low blood sugar? None of these conditions are supposed to be hereditary but low blood pressure does show up in lines of families.

Just as the parent knows little about what the teachers' backgrounds are, so the teachers know little about the child's because the teacher does not know the parents. I often look up the backgrounds of teachers who attract my attention by what they say. Like most parents, I never do anything about what I find. We are a cowardly but comfortable people who suffer from let-well-enough-alone. But the day will come when parents take over the schools which belong to them.

DR. CRANE SAYS

Pay For Children Gives Incentive

Jenny's fertile brain should be memorizing choice quotations from the Bible and elsewhere. For they will boost her school marks later on and furnish her spending money right now. Don't use the "allowance" plan, but let your youngsters work for pay, which is the better plan. Pay for mental as well as physical work as explained below.

Case X-328: Jenny L., aged 10, is a bright girl but somewhat frustrated.

"Dr. Crane, she needs something to do," her mother explained "For she is very bright and gets her school work finished early.

"Now she wishes she had a job so she could earn some money. And I feel it would be good for her.

"But what type of work can I give her. We have a maid so there isn't too much housework available."

Let Kids Work

Children need money. And they should obtain it by work, instead of by the inefficient "allowance" plan.

For life makes no allowances for anybody, so we should never encourage youngsters to expect "something for nothing," which is what the allowance inevitably means.

The "allowance" plan is just a dole! And the dole psychology then develops. Your children will soon gripe and argue with you because their allowance isn't as large as that of some other kid down the block.

So pay children for work! Then they no longer will criticize you about spending money. For their income thereafter depends solely upon their own output.

There is thus no ceiling on their weekly income. They can obtain $1 to $10 depending on how much elbow grease they wish to expend.

Simply see that plenty of jobs are available. Post the pay chores on a chart on the kitchen wall. And reward them properly.

Don't over-pay your kids, but don't undercut their wages, either. They can do special pay jobs, like mowing lawns or shoveling snow; cleaning windows or ironing the flat work.

They may polish your shoes or the automobile and even give you mothers a lot of relief by massaging your scalp or rubbing your tired back.

Mrs. Crane told our five children that they should all learn to typewrite by the touch system. So she fastened a wall chart in front of them.

When they could typewrite at the rate of 10 words per minute, they were entitled to $25.

And for each additional 10 words per minute, up to the 40-word rate, they obtained another $25. Thus they earned $100 when they reach 40 words per minute.

Another form of mental work very desirable for children, is to pay them for reading good books.

We offered our children $1 apiece for each book they read in the Bible. If, for example, they finished Genesis, they earned $1. And another $1 for every additional book.

There are 66 books in the King James version of the Bible, so they could reap $66 in that fashion.

And it is a splendid idea to encourage children to memorize gems of poetry or famous quotations from literary masters of the past.

It enriches their minds. And it will prove a tonic to the soul when they can quote such beautiful thoughts as Lincoln's hope that his biographers would say of him that he planted roses where thistles grew before.

At the bottom of about 200 pages in my college textbook "Psychology Applied," I thus included great quotations from the past.

So pay your child for each choice quotation he memorizes. The money will help Jenny now but the cultural benefits will pay dividends all through college and her later life.

For further advice on the subject, send for my booklet "Ways by Which to Earn Spending Money," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents (non-profit).

A child should earn and budget money from kindergarten, onward. It is a good insurance, too, for happier marriage!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3 cent stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Give For Heart

Today is Heart Sunday — the day on which a Heart Fund volunteer will ring your doorbell and give you an opportunity to invest in the nationwide fight against diseases of the heart and circulation, which are now responsible for almost 54 per cent of all deaths.

In a most literal sense, this will be a free-will offering. The size of your contribution will be determined by the extent of you devotion to the Heart cause, by your conscience and by your capacity to give. As a matter of fact, you needn't even mention the amount of your contribution to the good neighbor who will call at your home.

But here is a suggestion that we earnestly commend to you: Think twice before making your gift.

Ask yourself these questions: "Is this contribution truly representative of my entire family? Does it speak for all of the hearts I love? Is it in keeping with the magnitude of the health problem posed by the heart diseases?"

Against the background of these questions, we think it likely that you will be more inclined to enclose a more substantial contribution in the envelope which is handed to you by your Heart Fund volunteer.

The fight against heart disease is your fight. It is everybody's fight.

So welcome your Heart Fund volunteer on Heart Sunday, February 23. Be ready with a generous contribution. Give for every heart you love!

One Down And---?

One of the numerous white students who have been suspended from Little Rock High School because of friction with the nine Negroes who were forcibly integrated—with bayonet backing—was credited with being ousted for saying, "One down and eight to go."

Now Chief Integrator Virgil T. Blossom, superintendent of Little Rock schools, and his reportedly captive board, seem willing, if not actually anxious, to bring about the "eight to go" portion of the phase.

The "one down" remark referred to Minniejean Brown, who has departed from Little Rock to attend a private integrated school in New York. She did this after her numerous squabbles and encounters with students in the Little Rock school finally resulted in her expulsion. The chances are that Minniejean, with her cantankerous disposition, will not find the going too easy in her new location.

The Little Rock school board has asked the U.S. district court in Little Rock to define what it means by "deliberate speed" and to grant a stay in its order for gradual integration of Little Rock schools.

This move gives every indication that Supt. Flowers and the school board are willing to throw in the sponge and to admit that the effort to integrate Little Rock Central High school has proved a dismal failure. Obviously Mr. Flowers and the school board are asking the federal court to take the integration onus off their backs.

There could be at least two good reasons for the plea made by Mr. Flowers and his board.

One is that citizens of Little Rock are asking enactment of an Arkansas law which would permit elections to recall undesirable officeholders. Chances are good that the law will be passed and that members of the school board will be recalled. This would mean automatic dismissal of Mr Flowers, since it is certain that any new school board would be elected by those opposed to integration and that the new members would make Mr. Flowers' ouster the first order of business.

The other reason could be that Mr. Flowers and the board are thoroughly sick of the whole situation and know that the schools cannot be operated successfully as long as present conditions exist. This is indicated by the wording of the petition, which says in part:

"The existing pupil unrest, teacher unrest and parent unrest make it difficult for the district to maintain a satisfactory education program.

"There has been no effort on the part of congress to strengthen old or provide new judicial procedures which will guarantee enforcement of the civil rights of the Negro minority.

"The district is left standing alone, the victim of extraordinary opposition on the part of the state government and apathy on the part of the federal government.

The principle of integration runs counter to the ingrained attitudes of many of the residents of the district."

If those statements do not indicate a change of attitude on the part of Mr. Flowers and the board, it would be hard to imagine anything that would.

Commenting on the petition, Governor Orval E. Faubus, whose national guard troops were grabbed away from him by the federal government and used, along with paratroopers, to force the way open for the nine Negro students to enter the school, said:

"This action of the school authorities should have been taken some time ago. I have suggested this a number of times in the past. The situation in Central High school is intolerable from the standpoint of a proper educational atmosphere. I sincerely hope the courts will give the matter proper consideration.

Now we are confronted with the interesting question of whether Mr. Flowers and the school board suddenly became converted, as they may have done, or whether the petition has its origin in a new policy devised by the national government and the federal courts.

No one at all informed on the situation has any doubt that U.S. District Judge Ronald N. Davies was imported from Fargo, N. D., to Little Rock with instructions to order integration and to reject any pleas for "deliberate" speed.

It is now entirely possible that the federal government is even more anxious than ever to turn loose the bear's tail and that it's calling upon the federal court to help it let go. Maybe the petition was suggested from higher up.

Americans Use Right To Petition Congress

Americans are exercising their right to petition Congress in a big way and this is never more evident than when a major event like the launching of a satellite or the Little Rock school integration crisis hits the Nation's headlines.

Few Americans, it can be safely said, know they have this right or the flood of mail reaching Congress might be too tremendous to handle. Suffice it to say, however, that those persons who are aware of this right are taking advantage of it.

No matter how far-fetched some of these petitions may appear—and a number of them fall in the "crack-pot" category — they are given the same consideration as memorials from state legislatures and resolutions from legitimate groups and organizations. And none of them are ever thrown away, a fact which has created a mammoth-sized problem at the National Archives where these communications are ultimately stored.

The most recent deluge of petitions from individual Americans was prompted by the launching of the two Russian Sputniks and our own Explorer satellite. Only the imagination is broad enough to realize the wide range of suggestions which come to the minds of the petitioners. But, it should be emphasized again, Congress will give them consideration, no matter how ridiculous they sound at first blush, since some of them can contribute direction to the lawmakers who admit they don't know all the answers.

As long as any communication of this sort is in the form of a petition — and it could be scribbled on the back of an old envelope — it is treated as a petition. The clerks of the House and Senate decide which is the appropriate Congressional committee to handle them and off the petitions go for consideration. At the end of each session of Congress those petitions on which no action was taken, together with those which have merited legislative attention, are sent to their final resting place at the National Archives.

So far this year about 60 per cent of the petitions reaching Congress have been from individuals with the remainder coming from state and local governmental, fraternal, professional and business groups.

William W. Vaughan, custodian of records in the Senate, only has to read the headlines to brace himself for the mailsacks that inevitably arrive. "When the Russians send up a Sputnik, or we discover a cure for polio, or the United States goes to war in Korea, the folks with funny ideas all seem to take pen in hand," he says. But Vaughan is quick to add that he's not about to throw any of these letters away. Besides the fact it is his duty to channel them to the proper committee or to a pigeon hole for the remainder of the session, he never knows when some senator will barge in looking for a petition sent by one of his constituents.

By and large the petitioners are seeking legislation, want some event given recognition by Congress, or call attention to conditions they feel need fixing. One of the most vocal groups is the Nation's "drys" and they perennially badger Congress on the evils of drink. A recent issue of the Congressional Record carried almost a dozen from various parts of the United States asking Congress to outlaw liquor advertisements in interstate commerce. A petition from the Indian Heights Home Owners Association of Kokomo, Ind., is typical of a new rash of requests that is starting to build up. They want Congress to make pay television illegal.

The National Archives which preserves such famous documents as the United States Constitution and Declaration of Independence reports that the government as a whole keeps less than five per cent of all its records. But when Congress hands over documents for posterity, the Archives complies.

A spokesman points out that back before the turn of the century two women named Elizabeth Stanton and Susan B. Anthony petitioned Congress for women's suffrage. That seemed to be a pretty wild idea at the time but this document is a treasured item now at the Archives.

Changing Habits Can Ease Tension

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

The higher death rate among men is blamed on their lack of ability to take the stress and strain of modern living. Their life is highly competitive, and since most men continue working, we can assume they enjoy the rat race.

How do people react to tension? Some fly into a rage, become inconsiderate or mean, or start drinking. Others complain of inability to concentrate, sleep, or make decisions. Others develop disorders of bodily function such as ulcer, high blood pressure, angina pectoris, colitis, or arthritis.

We need not wear the shoes of stress, even though they fit. A tranquilizer may appear to be the remedy but medication is only "part treatment." More lasting results ensue when the individual resolves the conflicts that are causing tension and anxiety.

This is done by changing the attitudes, goals, or habits of life. As a result, work will be a pleasure and living worthwhile. A change in the philosophy of life is not always easy but, for tense persons, it is worth a trial. Popular suggestions include not wasting time worrying about yesterday's mistakes or tomorrow's tasks; planning the day in the morning and finishing the work at hand It is a wise man who knows his limitations.

Divide the day in three parts: one-third for work, one-third for play, one-third for sleep. Every man owes some of his time and vitality to his family and community. An annual vacation is good. Depending upon alcohol for relaxation is hard on the liver and does nothing toward developing emotional maturity.

Many feel that a person is not efficient if he cannot finish his work in 8 hours. It is a wonderful feeling to leave the office without the brief case and enjoy a good dinner and fine evening at home.

Don't take your work home with you; use your leisure to recharge the batteries of health and interest.

Some men find solace, stability, and encouragement in religion. Most persons who have firm religious beliefs are well adjusted.

Red And White

Reply

You ought to see a physician to find out whether there is an obstruction in the large vein that drains blood from the head and upper extremities. I assume the difference in color is not due to exposure to the sun, excitement, or descent from the earliest Americans.

A Natural Gift

Reply

A combination of the factors you mention, plus proper breathing and an ear for tones. To my knowledge, no one has ever detected a difference in the vocal cords of singers and nonsingers.

Unemployment Payments May Become More Liberal

As lines grow in front of the government offices throughout the nation paying out weekly unemployment insurance compensation, sentiment in congress is also growing for more liberal payments.

President Eisenhower has publicly stated that unemployment will start to drop by the end of March, which would relieve the strain on the balances built up in the federal and state unemployment insurance accounts.

If the president proves wrong in his estimate, however, not only will the unemployment insurance program face its greatest test since inaugurated during the depression period under the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, but congress may very likely subsidize the amount and length of the payments.

Now pending before congress is a joint bill sponsored by Democratic Senator John Kennedy of Mass. and Rep. Eugene McCarthy of Minn., which would not only substantially increase the amounts paid to unemployed under the insurance plan, but also increase the length of time during which an unemployed person could collect these weekly checks.

The average weekly check now being paid unemployed persons of $30 would be raised to not less than 50 per cent of the eligible person's weekly wages, and the average 26 weeks that such payments are made would be extended to a maximum of 39 weeks under the terms of the Kennedy - McCarthy bill.

Feeling among congressional leaders is that no serious consideration for such legislation should be given for another two weeks, at least. They hope that the president and some of his financial advisors are right in their belief that employment will start rising again about April 1.

If late in April, however, the unemployed figures show no improvement and there are definite indications that the number may grow, rather than drop, look for a concentrated drive in congress for larger and longer payments to the unemployed even if the federal government must assume part of the burden. The fact that there is an off - year congressional election in November will have considerable influence on this move.

Unemployment insurance payments during the first three months of this year, under the old laws of the respective states, are likely to reach record levels, exceeding those during the 1949-50 and 1954 recessions, due to the increase in the over - all civilian labor force since then.

Payments appear likely to reach about $250,000,000 a month or more, in the opinion of Robert K. Goodwin, chief of the bureau of employment security. While these amounts are high, they will not immediately threaten the state reserves already set - up somewhat above eight billions of dollars.

Should the payments continue at those levels, or higher, for several more months, however, the situation could become critical.

Primary difficulty, of course, lies in the fact that the individual states actually collect the insurance payments from employers and make the payments so long as these collections are adequate. So far they have been sufficient, but there is a strong feeling in Washington that if one or more states are unable to meet the payments, particularly should Congress enact the Kennedy-MacCarthy bill, the federal government will be called upon to step in and subsidize the future payments of such states.

States in which the danger seems most imminent, according to figures compiled by the federal bureau, include Maine, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Michigan, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon and Washington.

In each of these states, in the week ending Jan. 18, unemployment insurance payments were being made to nine or more per cent of the eligible workers. For the nation as a whole, the average was only 6.8 per cent.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Parents Excluded In Guidance Tests

What are parents for?

In relationship to the child, parents can play a role for which there is no substitute, that is if parents temper natural affection with some degree of intelligent objectivity. It may be in a parent's heart that his son should stand on the stage in Carnegie Hall and play the violin like a Fritz Kreisler or a Mischa Elman, but the boy wants to be a ballplayer and ends up as a bus driver.

Or there is the father who believes that stern discipline—bing, bang and don't you use lipstick around here solves all problems. As a matter of fact, such rigid discipline, often ill-conceived, produces only hate and a sense of inferiority. The golden mean still remains a sound rule for dealing with other human beings, even one's own children.

The schools in this country have tended to usurp many of the functions of the parents and one of the guideposts to this is the Accumulative Guidance Records, which many schools use and which are designed to provide a key to the mind and character of the child. This includes the aptitude and I.Q. tests.

There would be nothing wrong in this if the records were available to parents so that they could know as much about their children as the teachers believe they do. The aptitude tests may be some guide for instance to what the child ought to do at college or in life. It might show that he has no aptitude for being a lawyer, but he might do astonishingly well as a salesman. Or, it might show that a girl will not succeed as an executive but that she might do extraordinarily well as a mother.

But nothing is shown to the parents. The record is for teachers only. The parent might be guiding the child in one direction; the teachers in another. Such a conflict is unnecessary. Parent-teachers meetings rarely accomplish what they set out to do. Shy parents never rise in such meetings; there are always a noisy few who waste time with their endless yappings on general subjects.

Parents, for instance, could help teachers to know themselves, if they dared to tell a teacher what they know the children think of her. The other day I overheard a group of girls tell about a teacher whom they regard as very bright, but they insist that she interposes her private opinions some of which the pupils know to be hooey. In one instance, I showed a group of girls, from primary sources, that what a teacher told them is literally untrue. It was a sad thing to do, but I preferred to establish the truth. I asked the girls to require the teacher to produce contrary documentation from primary sources to maintain her position. They refused. But their reason for refusing was a bad one: they were afraid of bad marks. In other words, they had no regard for their teacher's intellectual integrity. A young man I know got a bad mark for expressing an opinion which differed from his professor's in college.

So, we come back to the Accumulative Guidance Record, which teachers are forbidden to show parents, the general excuse being that Johnny will compete with Bill when their parents tell them what these records show and that such competition is bad even in a competitive society.

The Accumulative Guidance Record seeks as much information about the child as possible. But it must be startlingly unscientific if the parents are not included in the plot to gather information. For instance, some children are regarded as lazy because they are slow. Why are they slow? Is there a family record of low blood pressure or low blood sugar? None of these conditions are supposed to be hereditary but low blood pressure does show up in lines of families.

Just as the parent knows little about what the teachers' backgrounds are, so the teachers know little about the child's because the teacher does not know the parents. I often look up the backgrounds of teachers who attract my attention by what they say. Like most parents, I never do anything about what I find. We are a cowardly but comfortable people who suffer from let-well-enough-alone. But the day will come when parents take over the schools which belong to them.

DR. CRANE SAYS

Pay For Children Gives Incentive

Jenny's fertile brain should be memorizing choice quotations from the Bible and elsewhere. For they will boost her school marks later on and furnish her spending money right now. Don't use the "allowance" plan, but let your youngsters work for pay, which is the better plan. Pay for mental as well as physical work as explained below.

Case X-328: Jenny L., aged 10, is a bright girl but somewhat frustrated.

"Dr. Crane, she needs something to do," her mother explained "For she is very bright and gets her school work finished early.

"Now she wishes she had a job so she could earn some money. And I feel it would be good for her.

"But what type of work can I give her. We have a maid so there isn't too much housework available."

Let Kids Work

Children need money. And they should obtain it by work, instead of by the inefficient "allowance" plan.

For life makes no allowances for anybody, so we should never encourage youngsters to expect "something for nothing," which is what the allowance inevitably means.

The "allowance" plan is just a dole! And the dole psychology then develops. Your children will soon gripe and argue with you because their allowance isn't as large as that of some other kid down the block.

So pay children for work! Then they no longer will criticize you about spending money. For their income thereafter depends solely upon their own output.

There is thus no ceiling on their weekly income. They can obtain $1 to $10 depending on how much elbow grease they wish to expend.

Simply see that plenty of jobs are available. Post the pay chores on a chart on the kitchen wall. And reward them properly.

Don't over-pay your kids, but don't undercut their wages, either. They can do special pay jobs, like mowing lawns or shoveling snow; cleaning windows or ironing the flat work.

They may polish your shoes or the automobile and even give you mothers a lot of relief by massaging your scalp or rubbing your tired back.

Mrs. Crane told our five children that they should all learn to typewrite by the touch system. So she fastened a wall chart in front of them.

When they could typewrite at the rate of 10 words per minute, they were entitled to $25.

And for each additional 10 words per minute, up to the 40-word rate, they obtained another $25. Thus they earned $100 when they reach 40 words per minute.

Another form of mental work very desirable for children, is to pay them for reading good books.

We offered our children $1 apiece for each book they read in the Bible. If, for example, they finished Genesis, they earned $1. And another $1 for every additional book.

There are 66 books in the King James version of the Bible, so they could reap $66 in that fashion.

And it is a splendid idea to encourage children to memorize gems of poetry or famous quotations from literary masters of the past.

It enriches their minds. And it will prove a tonic to the soul when they can quote such beautiful thoughts as Lincoln's hope that his biographers would say of him that he planted roses where thistles grew before.

At the bottom of about 200 pages in my college textbook "Psychology Applied," I thus included great quotations from the past.

So pay your child for each choice quotation he memorizes. The money will help Jenny now but the cultural benefits will pay dividends all through college and her later life.

For further advice on the subject, send for my booklet "Ways by Which to Earn Spending Money," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents (non-profit).

A child should earn and budget money from kindergarten, onward. It is a good insurance, too, for happier marriage!

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3 cent stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Develop Good Aim In Life

By TOM HENSHAW

NEW YORK (AP)—"Our primary aim," says Curtis R. Schumacher, "is to develop the life of the individual; our secondary aim is to realize our monetary objective.

"If we get the first, we're sure to get the second."

Schumacher's job is one that is spoken of in apologetic whispers in many churches. He's a fund-raiser, director of the Congregational Christian Churches' Church Finance Advisory Service.

In the 10 years since its founding, the advisory service has helped individual churches to raise more than 10½ million dollars in 236 efforts, which Schumacher calls "projects" and not campaigns.

But every bit as important as money in the service's 10-year report are the 7,386 prospects developed for church membership, the 3,418 tapped for church schools and the 72 new church men's groups formed.

Schumacher, who has directed the service since it began and who has developed many of its techniques, believes that "motive is more important than the outward act" of giving.

Service-trained canvassers "go forth as ambassadors of Christ and his church" and not as fund-raisers. "Giving naturally follows worship," says the service manual. "Giving cannot be divorced from worship."

The service is just what the name says—advisory. Most of the preparatory work and the canvassing is done by members of the church. Director Schumacher has only a two-man staff, Harris E. Heverly and Russell J. May, his associates.

A project begins 12 weeks before the actual canvassing. Preparations include compilation of information on church members, discussion group sessions and, most important, the training of the convassers.

Schumacher or one of his associates arrives on the scene a week before the canvass to oversee the final drive to the wire. The actual canvass is accomplished in one day, Canvass Sunday, between 2 and 6 p.m.

The individual church gets the service relatively cheap. The cost for raising $10,000 is $150. The fee runs up the scale to $600 for a goal of $40,000 or more. The top for one project thus far: $350,00.

The service is in such demand that it is booked solid through 1938 and has tentatively scheduled projects covering half of 1959.

Schumacher was a banker in South Williamsport, Pa. He asked himself, "What am I doing for my fellow man?" His answer to himself: "Not as much as I'd like to do."

It was then that he decided to go into full-time church work.

Woman Gets Many Royalty Pictures

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The remarkable thing about the producer of the next seven Climax TV shows is that she is a woman.

Now that may not seem unusual to the layman, but in the TV industry, it's something of a precedent for Eva Wolas is believed to be the first woman producer of a top-notch TV show.

Eva is a handsome addition to the man's world. She is a lovely, well-groomed woman with dark hair prematurely graying and a pleasant but firm voice. I asked her if she sensed any discrimination against her sex in TV production.

"Judging from the facts, I suppose there must be," she said, citing the lack of women in important production posts. "But I must say that men in the industry have been very kind and helpful to me.

"And I find working with them is easy. After all, if you've lived all your life with a father and brother and then a husband, there's no reason why you can't get along working with men. As a matter of fact, I would think women would resent working under a woman more than men would, though that hasn't been true in my case.

"At any rate, television is much too hurried and hectic to allow for much temperament and resentment. We're too busy getting shows on the air."

Eva's beginnings in the show world go back to New York City, where she grew up. She naturally tended toward drama in school. A successful one-act play started her on a career as a worker on Broadway plays and story editor for Suspense and Danger TV shows.

CBS bigwig William Dozier brought her West as story editor for Climax and she produced filmed shows for Playhouse 90 before returning to Climax recently as producer.

Despite her frenzied schedule, Eva manages to maintain a household for her husband and year-old daughter.

Threats Flare In Texas Price War

HALTOM CITY, Tex. (UP) — Violence and threats flared Friday in a price war among barbers in suburban Haltom City, on Fort Worth's northeast fringe.

Charles F. (Pete) Hawkins, who has drawn the wrath of some of the other barbers by keeping his shop open seven days a week, said he had received three threats on his life over the telephone. Hawkins said he did not know the identity of the mysterious callers.

Hawkins alsosaid that Golbert Martinez, one of his veteran barbers, was beaten by another barber in a Riverside tavern Thursday.

The man asked Martinez if Hawkins intended to keep his shop open Sundays. Martinez said he did and added that he did not intend to quit his job, whereupon the other man hit him.

Hawkins said he would go to the district attorney's office with Martinez Friday to file a complaint.

Some of the 18 barber shops in Haltom City were cutting hair Friday for 75 cents. Hawkins charges $1.25 in his shop and several persons said the cuts were designed to put Hawkins out of business.

Hawkins said he was staying open seven days a week for the convenience of his customers.

At one time, the City Council considered banning seven-day shops by law, but the plan fell through when other business men came to Hawkins' defense.

Gravel Denies He Was Asked For Resignation

WASHINGTON (Special)—Democratic National Committeeman Camille Gravel of Louisiana yesterday denied that he was requested by other southern committee members to resign as their regional representative on the executive committee of the national body.

Eighteen of the 24 committeemen and committeewomen from the 12 southern states making up the region held a secret session Thursday night at the Mayflower Hotel. They were here for the national committee meeting yesterday and for the $100-a-plate fundraising dinner Saturday night.

Preceding the meeting, reports were circulated that some southerners would seek to displace Gravel because of his votes on civil rights resolutions as a member of the party's advisory council.

Yesterday Gravel denied that this occurred. Other committeemen, asking to remain unidentified, said that as far as they knew the Louisianan would continue to represent the region on the executive committee of the National Committee.

Gravel explained that he called a meeting of all committee members from the south "because there were a number of things that many of us thought we should discuss."

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Feb. 22—Three men wanted in an armed robbery in Laurel were jailed here yesterday.

Police said two men had been identified by persons in the store when it was robbed but that the third man apparently was in the getaway car and was not seen.

Chief W. N. Johnson said Vernon H. Reed, 22, and James I. Marshall, 22, both of Houston, Tex., and a third man, also of Houston, would probably be charged with armed robbery.

They were arrested after police were alerted to watch for a yellow Mercury.

Officers said Reed and Marshall entered Moore's Grocery Store in Laurel and made a couple of minor purchases, then pulled a gun on the owner, W. W. Moore, and a clerk, Norman Jorday, and a customer, L. O. Murphy, and ordered Moore to put the money from the cash register in a paper bag.

Moore said he placed about $150 in the bag and that the men fled in a yellow Mercury.

Develop Good Aim In Life

By TOM HENSHAW

NEW YORK (AP)—"Our primary aim," says Curtis R. Schumacher, "is to develop the life of the individual; our secondary aim is to realize our monetary objective.

"If we get the first, we're sure to get the second."

Schumacher's job is one that is spoken of in apologetic whispers in many churches. He's a fund-raiser, director of the Congregational Christian Churches' Church Finance Advisory Service.

In the 10 years since its founding, the advisory service has helped individual churches to raise more than 10½ million dollars in 236 efforts, which Schumacher calls "projects" and not campaigns.

But every bit as important as money in the service's 10-year report are the 7,386 prospects developed for church membership, the 3,418 tapped for church schools and the 72 new church men's groups formed.

Schumacher, who has directed the service since it began and who has developed many of its techniques, believes that "motive is more important than the outward act" of giving.

Service-trained canvassers "go forth as ambassadors of Christ and his church" and not as fund-raisers. "Giving naturally follows worship," says the service manual. "Giving cannot be divorced from worship."

The service is just what the name says—advisory. Most of the preparatory work and the canvassing is done by members of the church. Director Schumacher has only a two-man staff, Harris E. Heverly and Russell J. May, his associates.

A project begins 12 weeks before the actual canvassing. Preparations include compilation of information on church members, discussion group sessions and, most important, the training of the convassers.

Schumacher or one of his associates arrives on the scene a week before the canvass to oversee the final drive to the wire. The actual canvass is accomplished in one day, Canvass Sunday, between 2 and 6 p.m.

The individual church gets the service relatively cheap. The cost for raising $10,000 is $150. The fee runs up the scale to $600 for a goal of $40,000 or more. The top for one project thus far: $350,00.

The service is in such demand that it is booked solid through 1938 and has tentatively scheduled projects covering half of 1959.

Schumacher was a banker in South Williamsport, Pa. He asked himself, "What am I doing for my fellow man?" His answer to himself: "Not as much as I'd like to do."

It was then that he decided to go into full-time church work.

Woman Gets Many Royalty Pictures

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The remarkable thing about the producer of the next seven Climax TV shows is that she is a woman.

Now that may not seem unusual to the layman, but in the TV industry, it's something of a precedent for Eva Wolas is believed to be the first woman producer of a top-notch TV show.

Eva is a handsome addition to the man's world. She is a lovely, well-groomed woman with dark hair prematurely graying and a pleasant but firm voice. I asked her if she sensed any discrimination against her sex in TV production.

"Judging from the facts, I suppose there must be," she said, citing the lack of women in important production posts. "But I must say that men in the industry have been very kind and helpful to me.

"And I find working with them is easy. After all, if you've lived all your life with a father and brother and then a husband, there's no reason why you can't get along working with men. As a matter of fact, I would think women would resent working under a woman more than men would, though that hasn't been true in my case.

"At any rate, television is much too hurried and hectic to allow for much temperament and resentment. We're too busy getting shows on the air."

Eva's beginnings in the show world go back to New York City, where she grew up. She naturally tended toward drama in school. A successful one-act play started her on a career as a worker on Broadway plays and story editor for Suspense and Danger TV shows.

CBS bigwig William Dozier brought her West as story editor for Climax and she produced filmed shows for Playhouse 90 before returning to Climax recently as producer.

Despite her frenzied schedule, Eva manages to maintain a household for her husband and year-old daughter.

Threats Flare In Texas Price War

HALTOM CITY, Tex. (UP) — Violence and threats flared Friday in a price war among barbers in suburban Haltom City, on Fort Worth's northeast fringe.

Charles F. (Pete) Hawkins, who has drawn the wrath of some of the other barbers by keeping his shop open seven days a week, said he had received three threats on his life over the telephone. Hawkins said he did not know the identity of the mysterious callers.

Hawkins alsosaid that Golbert Martinez, one of his veteran barbers, was beaten by another barber in a Riverside tavern Thursday.

The man asked Martinez if Hawkins intended to keep his shop open Sundays. Martinez said he did and added that he did not intend to quit his job, whereupon the other man hit him.

Hawkins said he would go to the district attorney's office with Martinez Friday to file a complaint.

Some of the 18 barber shops in Haltom City were cutting hair Friday for 75 cents. Hawkins charges $1.25 in his shop and several persons said the cuts were designed to put Hawkins out of business.

Hawkins said he was staying open seven days a week for the convenience of his customers.

At one time, the City Council considered banning seven-day shops by law, but the plan fell through when other business men came to Hawkins' defense.

BLOODY STRIKE

Labor Leader Says Kohler Responsible

WASHINGTON (UP) — Walter P. Reuther predicted Saturday that Senate Rackets Committee hearings will show that the Kohler Co. bears the "full moral responsibility" for its violence-ridden strike dispute with the United Auto Workers.

The UAW president told newsmen he is in Washington to testify "voluntarily" before the committee and would "never" claim the protection of the Fifth Amendment. He said he wants to be a lead-off witness to present the union's case in the Kohler controversy.

"We're convinced that when the people have the facts they will place the full moral responsibility for this strike on the Kohler Co., which was found guilty of violating the law of the land by the NLRB trial examiner."

An examiner for the National Labor Relations Board has found that the company was guilty of an unfair labor practice in the dispute which is now nearly 4 years old. That finding has not yet been acted upon by the board.

Reuther made his statement as he emerged from a gathering at the Capitol honoring former President Truman.

His remarks came as the Rackets Committee was embroiled in a party - line split over whether Reuther should be a lead - off witness.

Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-N.Y.), commenting on the split, said it "looks like politics" have been injected into the committee's handling of the Kohler investigation.

The New York Republican, vice chairman of the Rackets Committee, directed the remark at maneuverings of committee Democrats.

The split developed at a Friday meeting. The committee will try to break it at the session Monday.

The split developed when the committee's four Republicans blocked a Democrat - sponsored proposal which would have called plumbing fixture executive Herbert Kohler and Reuther—in that order—as lead-off witnesses.

Committee Democrats then used their four votes to defeat, on a second tie ballot, Ives' compromise which would have permitted attorneys for both sides to outline the positions of their clients.

"It would be very bad to put Reuther and Kohler on first," said Ives, commenting on the jockeying. "That looks like politics."

60 MISSILE CENTERS

U. S. And Britain Agree On Bases

WASHINGTON (UP) — The United States and Britain agreed Saturday on terms for basing 60 U.S.-built 1,500-mile nuclear missiles in England and Scotland.

At the British government's request, authorities tried to impose a 48-hour secrecy blackout on the agreement so that it could be announced to the House of Commons Monday by Prime Minister Harold Macmillaan.

Simultaneous announcement of the details, stripped of some secret information, was scheduled for 10:30 a.m. E. S. T. Monday.

Before the unprecedented secrecy plan went into effect, however, newsmen in Washington and London were briefed on the histroci pact's key terms.

They include what amounts to a veto power by both Britain and the United States over actual launching of the missiles in a war.

Preliminary negotiations on a similar agreement with France already have begun.

Four bases are planned—one in Scotland and three on the English east coast. From them, Thor and Juipter intermediate range ballistic missiles (IRBMs) could strike deep into Russia.

One Thor squadron is expected to be in position in England by the end of this year. One more squadron and two Jupiter squadrons are to bed in place by early next year. Each squadron will have 15 missile launchers.

The U.S. Air Force will man the missiles until British crews have been trained to take over. The warheads will remain under U.S. control. Britain will pay the construction. The United States will pay more—how much has not been disclosed—for the missiles, warheads and launching equipment.

Special efforts were made to emphasize the agreement's defensive nature but it was certain to set off new attacks on the British Conservative government by Labor Party and other critics.

Russia has threatened devastation in event of war for all the Western European countries that accept long - range missile bases under last December's North Atlantic Treaty Council's decision.

Woman Booked For Attempt To Defraud La. Man

SPOKANE, Wash., Feb. 22 (AP)—A 31-year-old woman was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday on charges of using the mails in a fraudulent attempt to get $19,000 from a Gretna, La. man.

Mrs. Lynn Sharon McCommons is accused in the indictment of sending letters to George Rayner in Gretna asking the money for information on his missing son-in-law and grandson.

The son-in-law, Walter K. Hurtt Sr., 29, and his 4-year-old son, Walter Hurtt Jr., disappeared from their Gretna home last Dec. 7.

Hurtt was arrested here last week and charged with a violation of the Mann act in allegedly transporting Mrs. McCommons from New Orleans, La. to Florida. He was later released on $2,000 bond.

The indictment charged that Mrs. McCommons mailed letters to Rayner asking that a $19,000 cashier's check be sent for deposit to a Spokane bank and advising he would learn the whereabouts of Hurtt and the boy if he did so.

Rayner notified the FBI.

The indictment was made public after Mrs. McCommons was arrested last night. She was released on $1,000 bond.

The boy was with Hurtt when he was picked up and then was turned over to the custody of his mother who came here for him from Louisiana.

Carl Maxey, Hurtt's attorney here, said Mrs. Hurtt had interceded on her husband's be half with the United States attorney in Spokane and would do so with the U.S. attorney in New Orleans.

William Bantz, U.S. attorney here, said she has started divorce proceedings against Hurtt, however, in Louisiana.

Captain James Cook began probing the Antarctic Circle in 1773, and reached the fartherest south of any man in the 18th century.

Illinois and Pennsylvania have an annual railway payroll of more than 500 million dollars each.

Youth Booked After Rescue From Ditch

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Bobby Gray, 18, today was booked with reckless driving and causing damage and injury after a 15-year-old cousin rescued him from a submerged car.

Officers said the car Gray was driving went out of control and cut a zig-zagging course into Bayou St. John. It crossed the neutral ground, uprooted a tree and struck a tree stump before flipping into the 15-foot-deep water, they said.

Richard Holt, 15, who was behind Gray in another car, dived into the water to untangle Gray and rescue him, police said. Thomas Gray, 20, was riding with Holt.

The youths went home to change clothes, officers said, and returned just as divers were preparing to search the sunken car for victims.

Matches For Campaign Turn Up As Mystery

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP) — Dr. Ewin E. Dale, a Republican candidate for state representative in the 44th District, acknowledged Saturday that a 'Ralph Gwaltney" is running well in the Moultrie County area of the district.

Dale made a campaign sweep into the area to get his fight for nomination rolling, and passed out book matches by the scores. It turned out the matches weren't boosting Dale, but a "Ralph Gwaltney," a candidate for trustee for Jeffersonville Township in the May 8 primary.

Perhaps the match book error won't hurt Dale, but it won't do either him or Gwaltney any good. There isn't any primary in Illinois in May, and folks in the Moultrie County area haven't ever heard of a Jeffersonville Township.

The Illinois primary will be held April 8.

The surprised Dale had returned to his home here before he discovered he was boosting Gwaltney's candidacy and not his own with the match books. He said he attempted to retrieve most of them, but a good many had been scattered too far to reclaim.

Dale is wondering if the "Ralph Gwaltney" has the matches intended for Dale.

Labor Leader Says Kohler Responsible

WASHINGTON (UP) — Walter P. Reuther predicted Saturday that Senate Rackets Committee hearings will show that the Kohler Co. bears the "full moral responsibility" for its violence-ridden strike dispute with the United Auto Workers.

The UAW president told newsmen he is in Washington to testify "voluntarily" before the committee and would "never" claim the protection of the Fifth Amendment. He said he wants to be a lead-off witness to present the union's case in the Kohler controversy.

"We're convinced that when the people have the facts they will place the full moral responsibility for this strike on the Kohler Co., which was found guilty of violating the law of the land by the NLRB trial examiner."

An examiner for the National Labor Relations Board has found that the company was guilty of an unfair labor practice in the dispute which is now nearly 4 years old. That finding has not yet been acted upon by the board.

Reuther made his statement as he emerged from a gathering at the Capitol honoring former President Truman.

His remarks came as the Rackets Committee was embroiled in a party - line split over whether Reuther should be a lead - off witness.

Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-N.Y.), commenting on the split, said it "looks like politics" have been injected into the committee's handling of the Kohler investigation.

The New York Republican, vice chairman of the Rackets Committee, directed the remark at maneuverings of committee Democrats.

The split developed at a Friday meeting. The committee will try to break it at the session Monday.

The split developed when the committee's four Republicans blocked a Democrat - sponsored proposal which would have called plumbing fixture executive Herbert Kohler and Reuther—in that order—as lead-off witnesses.

Committee Democrats then used their four votes to defeat, on a second tie ballot, Ives' compromise which would have permitted attorneys for both sides to outline the positions of their clients.

"It would be very bad to put Reuther and Kohler on first," said Ives, commenting on the jockeying. "That looks like politics."

BALLET

Excellent Staging Marks Production

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

Color, excellent staging and technical adroitness were highlights of the performance of Ruth Page's Chicago Opera Ballet on the Neville stage Friday night.

With a repertoire based on two operatic pieces, Verdi's "Il Trovatore" and Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow," the orchestra, stars and corps de ballet—comprising a company of some 50 persons—put the true meaning of music into meticulous motions of the body.

Clothed in the most beautiful costumes ever to appear on local boards, the combination of music and motion reached the audience with full dramatic impact.

Opera is a strange medium to more or less literal minded Anglo-Saxons, and ballet even more removed. At first, the lack of spoken dialogue may by the time of the prison scene in the Verdi piece, the emotional gap had been bridged. This feeling was shared to a lesser extent, perhaps, by lovers of the celebrated arias from "Il Trovatore." It is indeed a challenge to tackle Verdi with any medium outside of the human voice.

During the early days of television, many radio entertainers — particularly in the field of comedy—heaped coals of criticism on the new medium because visibility ran conventional acts into the ground.

Gestures

The same applies to gestures of the body; overdone, they can put the mark of vaudeville on the most serious attempts at classical ballet.

By this reasoning, it may be said some of the best work on the stage Friday night was done by Job Sanders in the role of Baron Popoff in "The Merry Widow." Here was the part of a comic who had to move across the stage with baronial dignity; an old man who still had a spark o f the woman chaser, and a nobleman in need of making a "deal." Sanders carried the part to subtle perfection — dramatically as well as technically.

Equally impressive were the parts played by Mia Slavenska and Sonia Arova in "The Merry Widow" and the pas de deux from "Don Quixote," respectively.

The pas de deux number, from a piece which introduced Spanish dances to Moscow at the Bolshoi Theatre in 1869, contained elements of the dance of greatest interest to the serious student of ballet.

Elevations — leaps into the air —were superbly controlled; entrechat — the rapid beating of the feet with the body off the floor—was brilliantly executed.

Dancing together, Sonia Arova and Job Sanders, "Mr. and Mrs." in private life, showed a remarkable sense of line and a true feeling for music in the slower "adagio" sections of the "Don Quixote."

Noting this marked her second appearance before a Twin City Concerts audience, prima ballerina Mia Slavenska cited "rigid discipline of the body and will" during practice with a measure of caution for slick stages during performances when "on the road" as two of her success secrets.

State Civitan Group To Meet Here Today

Some 40 state and local Civitan officials will meet at 10:30 this morning to discuss plans for the State Civitan Convention, District Lt. Gov. Jimmy Herren announced last night.

The meeting will get underway in Walt's Restaurant in West Monroe, Herren said.

This will be the last of three such meetings for the fiscal year 1957-58. The state meeting will be held this May in Alexandria, with the international convention to follow the next month in New Orleans.

WATCH OUT, LADIES

Bird On Hat May Be Coming Home

By WILLIAM O. TOME
Staff Correspondent

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 22—UP—Lady, don't faint if that bird perches on your new cheapeau. You may be wearing part of his old homestead.

Such woodsy items as pine cones, tree bark, sawdust, moss and flowers make up some of the world's most exclusive creations for madame's head covering—and they are waterproof, too.

The back-to-nature move is the idea of Mrs. Theron Vick of Hamilton, Ala., a small community of about 2,000 souls in the northwest portion of the state.

Sawdust Starts Hats

"My husband is in the lumber business and two years ago, I saw all this beautiful sawdust going to waste," she said. "That got me into the hat business."

Actually, it's not much of a business. Mrs. Vick has made only about 65 to 70 hats so far and most of them went to friends, those "who appreciate the beauties of the forest." She still considers it a hobby.

Her hats have been displayed at style shows in Biloxi, Miss., Birmingham, New Orleans and at other points. She has a date in May at Myrtle Beach, S. C., and the National Association of Manufacturers want her to send some to Washington to show off.

Pictures and articles have also appeared in lumber industry publications.

Mrs. Vick said the first one took her a year to make—she has only been turning them out since 1955—and was a stylish affair trimmed with the petals from pine cones.

She treats them with preservatives to maintain the colors of nature and probably a'so to bar the door to interested termites and other insects. The preservative also provides waterproofing.

To add the Dixie touch, some of the hats bear cotton or flattened-out Magnolia blossoms.

"At first, my husband was afraid to show them to anyone," she said, "but now even he will give them a boost."

AFL-CIO To Test Power On Mergers

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 22 (AP)—The AFL-CIO will test its authority to force merger of labor groups on the state level at a three - day convention opening here Monday.

AFL-CIO President George Meany ordered the special convention after two years of negotiations had failed to bring about a voluntary merger of the AFL and CIO organizations in Michigan.

Meany's 15-million-member united labor movement was formed Dec. 5, 1955. State and local groups were allowed two years to effect mergers.

The outcome of Meany's crackdown on quarreling unions in Michigan may set a precedent for action in other states where the AFL and CIO have been slow to merge. Ohio, Indiana, New York and New Jersey are among the states that have failed so far to effect voluntary mergers.

Meany singled out Michigan for action after the AFL - Michigan Federation of Labor had defied his orders.

Back of the AFL's reluctance about 300,000 members since the expulsion of the Teamsters, fears domination by the 650,000-member Michigan CIO organization. James K. Hoffa, Detroit, is national president of the Teamsters union and a power in the Michigan AFL.

A special state convention in Lansing Feb. 1 voted to boycott the Grand Rapids convention. The state group also defied Meany by taking no action on his order to expel the Teamsters. It accused Meany of "trying to destroy the authority and autonomy of international unions."

Meany has lifted the charters of both the Michigan Federation of Labor and the State CIO Council to pave the way for the merger convention.

The CIO group complied with Meany's order to turn over all its assets to his special representative, R. J. Thomas, a former president of the United Auto Workers.

But the AFL group defied a similar order to turn over its assets to another AFL-CIO special representative, Peter M. McGavin.

BALLET

Excellent Staging Marks Production

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

Color, excellent staging and technical adroitness were highlights of the performance of Ruth Page's Chicago Opera Ballet on the Neville stage Friday night.

With a repertoire based on two operatic pieces, Verdi's "Il Trovatore" and Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow," the orchestra, stars and corps de ballet—comprising a company of some 50 persons—put the true meaning of music into meticulous motions of the body.

Clothed in the most beautiful costumes ever to appear on local boards, the combination of music and motion reached the audience with full dramatic impact.

Opera is a strange medium to more or less literal minded Anglo-Saxons, and ballet even more removed. At first, the lack of spoken dialogue may by the time of the prison scene in the Verdi piece, the emotional gap had been bridged. This feeling was shared to a lesser extent, perhaps, by lovers of the celebrated arias from "Il Trovatore." It is indeed a challenge to tackle Verdi with any medium outside of the human voice.

During the early days of television, many radio entertainers — particularly in the field of comedy—heaped coals of criticism on the new medium because visibility ran conventional acts into the ground.

Gestures

The same applies to gestures of the body; overdone, they can put the mark of vaudeville on the most serious attempts at classical ballet.

By this reasoning, it may be said some of the best work on the stage Friday night was done by Job Sanders in the role of Baron Popoff in "The Merry Widow." Here was the part of a comic who had to move across the stage with baronial dignity; an old man who still had a spark of the woman chaser, and a nobleman in need of making a "deal." Sanders carried the part to subtle perfection — dramatically as well as technically.

Equally impressive were the parts played by Mia Slavenska and Sonia Arova in "The Merry Widow" and the pas de deux from "Don Quixote," respectively.

The pas de deux number, from a piece which introduced Spanish dances to Moscow at the Bolshoi Theatre in 1869, contained elements of the dance of greatest interest to the serious student of ballet.

Elevations — leaps into the air —were superbly controlled; entrechat — the rapid beating of the feet with the body off the floor—was brilliantly executed.

Dancing together, Sonia Arova and Job Sanders, "Mr. and Mrs." in private life, showed a remarkable sense of line and a true feeling for music in the slower "adagio" sections of the "Don Quixote."

Noting this marked her second appearance before a Twin City Concerts audience, prima ballerina Mia Slavenska cited "rigid discipline of the body and will" during practice with a measure of caution for slick stages during performances when "on the road" as two of her success secrets.

State Civitan Group To Meet Here Today

Some 40 state and local Civitan officials will meet at 10:30 this morning to discuss plans for the State Civitan Convention, District Lt. Gov. Jimmy Herren announced last night.

The meeting will get underway in Walt's Restaurant in West Monroe, Herren said.

This will be the last of three such meetings for the fiscal year 1957-58. The state meeting will be held this May in Alexandria, with the international convention to follow the next month in New Orleans.

WATCH OUT, LADIES

Bird On Hat May Be Coming Home

By WILLIAM O. TOME
Staff Correspondent

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 22—UP—Lady, don't faint if that bird perches on your new cheapeau. You may be wearing part of his old homestead.

Such woodsy items as pine cones, tree bark, sawdust, moss and flowers make up some of the world's most exclusive creations for madame's head covering—and they are waterproof, too.

The back-to-nature move is the idea of Mrs. Theron Vick of Hamilton, Ala., a small community of about 2,000 souls in the northwest portion of the state.

Sawdust Starts Hats

"My husband is in the lumber business and two years ago, I saw all this beautiful sawdust going to waste," she said. "That got me into the hat business."

Actually, it's not much of a business. Mrs. Vick has made only about 65 to 70 hats so far and most of them went to friends, those "who appreciate the beauties of the forest." She still considers it a hobby.

Her hats have been displayed at style shows in Biloxi, Miss., Birmingham, New Orleans and at other points. She has a date in May at Myrtle Beach, S. C., and the National Association of Manufacturers want her to send some to Washington to show off.

Pictures and articles have also appeared in lumber industry publications.

Petal and Pine Cone Trim

Mrs. Vick said the first one took her a year to make—she has only been turning them out since 1955—and was a stylish affair trimmed with the petals from pine cones.

She treats them with preservatives to maintain the colors of nature and probably also to bar the door to interested termites and other insects. The preservative also provides waterproofing.

Along with the usual woods raw material, "I have also started processing maple buds, dogwood, even flowers from the yard," she said.

Hats Have Dixie Touch

To add the Dixie touch, some of the hats bear cotton or flattened-out Magnolia blossoms.

"At first, my husband was afraid to show them to anyone," she said, "but now even he will give them a boost."

Mrs. Vick has two children, a daughter, Ann, 16, who often models for her, and a son, Earl, 15.

What do they think of the hats?

"They don't mind, they think it's kind of nice if I would keep them off the dining room table so they can eat."

STOP-LIGHT SERMON—The Rev. Dale H. Conrad, pastor of Crescent Heights Methodist Church in Hollywood, Calif., completes one of his messages to the passing public on the billboard of his church. He changes the "stop-light sermons" weekly and thought up the idea to give a sermon to "all the people who never would step in the door of a church." A Hollywood song writer was so taken with one of his messages he called the clergyman for permission to write such a song. (AP Wirephoto)

ANNOUNCEMENT SOON

Faubus To Decide On 3rd Term Race

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas said today he will announce within 10 days or two weeks whether he will seek a third term.

The governor came here to attend a Democratic fund-raising dinner tonight honoring former President Harry Truman. Faubus attended a brunch given for Arkansas Democrats by Mrs. Jack Carnes of Camden, Ark., the state's Democratic national committeewoman.

Faubus was asked by reporters whether he thinks a third party is necessary because of the school integration situation in the South. He replied he does not believe it necessary and that he opposes the idea. He added he hopes the Democratic party would be able to settle its own differences within itself.

Faubus said he did not want to discuss while in Washington the school integration situation in Little Rock. He said there still are more than 400 federalized national guard troops on duty at Little Rock's Central High School—ordered there by President Eisenhower last September to enforce court-ordered integration.

Asked about possible candidates for the Democratic nomination for president in 1960, Faubus said more sentiment seemed to be developing in Arkansas for Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey and Sen. Kennedy of Massachusetts. He said there had been some mention of Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee and Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan.

Close Race Seen Today In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 22 (AP) — A close race appeared likely tomorrow in Argentina's first free presidential election in more than 10 years. Supporters of ex-Dictator Juan D. Peron could swing it either way.

Only two of the 13 candidates are given a chance of winning. They are:

Radical Arturo Frondizi, 49, a lawyer-intellectual who has support from diehard Peronistas.

Ricardo Balbin, 53, a lawyer and fighter against the old Peron regime. He has the quiet support of the provisional government which overthrew Peron and exiled him in 1955.

In an election eve broadcast, Provisional President Pedro Aramburu told the country the voters will decide the nation's destiny in tomorrow's election, "leaving behind the bitter hours that will never return." Aramburu is not a candidate.

"Democracy has won, wrecking the last vestiges of dictatorship," Aramburu declared.

Peron, now in exile in the Dominican Republic, had called upon his supporters in Argentina to vote for any candidate opposing "tyranny." He predicted this week that Frondizi would win.

Up to then Peronistas were planning to cast blank ballots. But the Peron statement was taken to mean support for Frondizi, who has also a motley following of Communists, left-wingers, workers, and fascists.

However, Peronista pamphlets appeared in the mails today calling for blank ballots.

Cab Driver Killed

MERIDIAN, Miss., Feb. 22 (AP)—A taxi crashed into a bridge abutment near here today, killing the driver.

The highway patrol identified the dead as Gus Willie Roberts, 46-year-old Meridian Negro.

Officers said Roberts apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

MEETING SET

An important meeting of Monroe Temple No. 1, Pythian Sisters, will take place at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Castle Hall, 127½ St. John St.

M.E.C. Beatrice Buelow requested that all officers, Sisters and Knights attend.

Farmers Set Credit Record In Year 1957

More than 10,000 Louisiana Future Farmers of America will participate in the national observance of FFA week which starts today.

The week has been set aside to focus attention on the work of the Future Farmers of today who will be the successful farmers of tomorrow. The arganization is composed of boys who are studying vocational agriculture in the public secondary schools as preparation for careers in farming.

Louisiana has 237 active chapters of the organization with more than 10,000 presently active members and more than 150,000 former members.

The members of the FFA perform valuable community services and provide important leadership in developing the agricultural economy and in building a better state, Jerry J. Stovall, supervisor of vocational agricultural education, said.

"The nation must have about 130,000 new farmers each year to replace those who die, retire, or otherwise leave the farm. They must be men with experience and training enough to become successful farmers. Generally, they must be men who have begun farming at an early age, so that by the time they are ready to marry and start a family they will be firmly established in a farming program that promises a good future.

"Vocational Agriculture and the FFA constitute the most effective program yet developed for training boys to be good farmers and helping them to become established in the farming occupations of their choice," Stovall said.

'REST TRIP'

Ike, Mamie To Fly To Arizona

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (UP) — President Eisenhower will accompany his wife Sunday to Phoenix, Ariz., where she is going for a rest, a White House spokesman announced Saturday at a press parley where tempers grew edgy over details of the trip.

The President will fly with Mrs. Eisenhower from his vacation headquarters here and spend about eight hours in Phoenix, then fly back to Washington in his personal plane, the Columbine III.

The presidential couple has visited here 10 days with former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. It was to have been a quail-shooting holiday but one of the worst cold spells in Dixie history kept the party indoors until the last few days.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said that the President would fly out with his wife to Phoenix, where Mrs. Eisenhower will rest at the Maine Chance Farm of Mrs. Elizabeth Arden Graham, woman.

Reporters questioned Hagerty about the reasons for the President making the trip and the press secretary grew noticeably irritated.

Asked why Eisenhower did not take another plane directly to Washington, Hagerty replied:

"I think that when the President of the United States wants to go any place that he wants to, with his wife, that is his business and nobody else's."

Hagerty then engaged in an exchange with Laurence Burd, White House reporter for the Chicago Tribune who said "I think I have a right" to ask such a question.

When the President "has to account for that or make any reporting on that, I think you are getting a little out of bounds," Hagerty said.

Burd and Hagerty exchanged a few more words before the topic shifted.

Hagerty said that Mrs. Eisenhower will be accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Gordon Moore of Washington, and Mrs. Ellis D. Slater of New York, wife of a retired distillery executive.

Back To Washington

Reporters asked if Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Slater "will be billed" of their trip on the presidential plane and Hagerty stiffened again.

"Of course they don't get billed," he replied. "This is the President's plane and they are the President's guests."

The party will take off from Spence Field at nearby Moultrie, Ga., at 8 a.m. (CST) and arrive at Phoenix at 3 p. m.(CST). After spending the rest of the day there, Eisenhower will take off from Sky Harbor Airport at 11 p.m. (CST), arriving in Washington at about 6 a.m. (CST) Monday.

The White House explained earlier that the President would not keep his speech date with the National Food Conference in Washington Monday morning. At the later meeting with reporters, however,Hagerty said the President would be back in Washington in time to "drop in" on the food conference.

Presumably the ladies in Mrs. Eisenhower's party will all be the guests of Mrs. Graham. But their hostess, according to word she gave reporters in the East, does not plan to join them in person. She plans to stay closer to her horses now running at Hialeah in Florida.

Meet At NE To Deal With Science Topic

Stimulation of science learning will be emphasized by the Third District School Principals' Association at Tuesday's conference on the Northeast State campus.

Registration and a coffee period are scheduled from 9 to 9:30 a.m. in the Little Theater lounge of the Fine Arts building, according to Association President W. Carlton Johnson, principal of Delhi High School.

Main features on Tuesday's agenda will be a panel discussion and business meeting. E. J. Foster, head of the pure and applied science department at Northeast, will lead the discussion.

Panel Discussion

Panelists will underscore the science fair as a tool in stimulating science learning. Featured in this phase of the program will Mrs. B. A. Tullos, high school science teacher from Chatham, and Henry Hazlitt, Delhi High School science teacher.

Students of Mrs. Tullos have won national honors in science competition for the past two years, and Hazlitt's students have included many state winners.

These two instructors will use in connection with the program demonstrations by several of their students and scientific displays prepared by them.

Major business items in the session to follow will deal with proposed legislation for the coming session of the state legislature.

Grocery Store Is Burglarized

Steel window bars were ripped from Faulk's Grocery at 518 S. night and police were investigating the theft of ciragettes and money taken there.

Police said that taken in the burglary were a carton and a half carton of ciragettes, plus fifty cent in nickels. The money was taken from the cash register, officers said.

While most Americans expect to live to nearly 70, the average America nIndian dies at 39. Approximately 33 per cent of Indians die before they reach the age of five, whereas in the general population the rate is now about 3 per cent.

Five Teenagers Are Released To Parnets' Custody

EPPS (Special) — Mayor E. C. Jones said here last night that five teenagers have been released in custody of their parents following a Thursday night grocery store burglary.

Juvenile officers are scheduled to look into the matter next week, Jones said.

The mayor pointed out that only cigarettes and cigars were taken by the group which entered through a rear window in the Sharplin grocery store.

One of the youths, according to the mayor, admitted that Thursday night was the second time he had been the store. He also implicated the other four boys as being with him on the first trip, the mayor said, but no admissions had been gained from the youth's companions.

STOP-LIGHT SERMON—The Rev. Dale H. Conrad, pastor of Crescent Heights Methodist Church in Hollywood, Calif., completes one of his messages to the passing public on the billboard of his church. He changes the "stop-light sermons" weekly and thought up the idea to give a sermon to "all the people who never would step in the door of a church." A Hollywood song writer was so taken with one of his messages he called the clergyman for permission to write such a song. (AP Wirephoto)

ANNOUNCEMENT SOON

Faubus To Decide On 3rd Term Race

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas said today he will announce within 10 days or two weeks whether he will seek a third term.

The governor came here to attend a Democratic fund-raising dinner tonight honoring former President Harry Truman. Faubus attended a brunch given for Arkansas Democrats by Mrs. Jack Carnes of Camden, Ark., the state's Democratic national committeewoman.

Faubus was asked by reporters whether he thinks a third party is necessary because of the school integration situation in the South. He replied he does not believe it necessary and that he opposes the idea. He added he hopes the Democratic party would be able to settle its own differences within itself.

Faubus said he did not want to discuss while in Washington the school integration situation in Little Rock. He said there still are more than 400 federalized national guard troops on duty at Little Rock's Central High School—ordered there by President Eisenhower last September to enforce court-ordered integration.

Asked about possible candidates for the Democratic nomination for president in 1960, Faubus said more sentiment seemed to be developing in Arkansas for Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey and Sen. Kennedy of Massachusetts. He said there had been some mention of Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee and Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan.

Close Race Seen Today In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 22 (AP) — A close race appeared likely tomorrow in Argentina's first free presidential election in more than 10 years. Supporters of ex-Dictator Juan D. Peron could swing it either way.

Only two of the 13 candidates are given a chance of winning. They are:

Radical Arturo Frondizi, 49, a lawyer-intellectual who has support from diehard Peronistas.

Ricardo Balbin, 53, a lawyer and fighter against the old Peron regime. He has the quiet support of the provisional government which overthrew Peron and exiled him in 1955.

In an election eve broadcast, Provisional President Pedro Aramburu told the country the voters will decide the nation's destiny in tomorrow's election, "leaving behind the bitter hours that will never return." Aramburu is not a candidate.

"Democracy has won, wrecking the last vestiges of dictatorship," Aramburu declared.

Peron, now in exile in the Dominican Republic, had called upon his supporters in Argentina to vote for any candidate opposing "tyranny." He predicted this week that Frondizi would win.

Up to then Peronistas were planning to cast blank ballots. But the Peron statement was taken to mean support for Frondizi, who has also a motley following of Communists, left-wingers, workers, and fascists.

However, Peronista pamphlets appeared in the mails today calling for blank ballots.

Farmers Set Credit Record In Year 1957

More than 10,000 Louisiana Future Farmers of America will participate in the national observance of FFA week which starts today.

The week has been set aside to focus attention on the work of the Future Farmers of today who will be the successful farmers of tomorrow. The arganization is composed of boys who are studying vocational agriculture in the public secondary schools as preparation for careers in farming.

Louisiana has 237 active chapters of the organization with more than 10,000 presently active members and more than 150,000 former members.

The members of the FFA perform valuable community services and provide important leadership in developing the agricultural economy and in building a better state, Jerry J. Stovall, supervisor of vocational agricultural education, said.

"The nation must have about 130,000 new farmers each year to replace those who die, retire, or otherwise leave the farm. They must be men with experience and training enough to become successful farmers. Generally, they must be men who have begun farming at an early age, so that by the time they are ready to marry and start a family they will be firmly established in a farming program that promises a good future.

"Vocational Agriculture and the FFA constitute the most effective program yet developed for training boys to be good farmers and helping them to become established in the farming occupations of their choice," Stovall said.

'REST TRIP'

Ike, Mamie To Fly To Arizona

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (UP) — President Eisenhower will accompany his wife Sunday to Phoenix, Ariz., where she is going for a rest, a White House spokesman announced Saturday at a press parley where tempers grew edgy over details of the trip.

The President will fly with Mrs. Eisenhower from his vacation headquarters here and spend about eight hours in Phoenix, then fly back to Washington in his personal plane, the Columbine III.

The presidential couple has visited here 10 days with former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey. It was to have been a quail-shooting holiday but one of the worst cold spells in Dixie history kept the party indoors until the last few days.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said that the President would fly out with his wife to Phoenix, where Mrs. Eisenhower will rest at the Maine Chance Farm of Mrs. Elizabeth Arden Graham, woman.

Reporters questioned Hagerty about the reasons for the President making the trip and the press secretary grew noticeably irritated.

Asked why Eisenhower did not take another plane directly to Washington, Hagerty replied:

"I think that when the President of the United States wants to go any place that he wants to, with his wife, that is his business and nobody else's."

Hagerty then engaged in an exchange with Laurence Burd, White House reporter for the Chicago Tribune who said "I think I have a right" to ask such a question.

When the President "has to account for that or make any reporting on that, I think you are getting a little out of bounds," Hagerty said.

Burd and Hagerty exchanged a few more words before the topic shifted.

Hagerty said that Mrs. Eisenhower will be accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Gordon Moore of Washington, and Mrs. Ellis D. Slater of New York, wife of a retired distillery executive.

Back To Washington

Reporters asked if Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Slater "will be billed" of their trip on the presidential plane and Hagerty stiffened again.

"Of course they don't get billed," he replied. "This is the President's plane and they are the President's guests."

The party will take off from Spence Field at nearby Moultrie, Ga., at 8 a.m. (CST) and arrive at Phoenix at 3 p. m.(CST). After spending the rest of the day there, Eisenhower will take off from Sky Harbor Airport at 11 p.m. (CST), arriving in Washington at about 6 a.m. (CST) Monday.

The White House explained earlier that the President would not keep his speech date with the National Food Conference in Washington Monday morning. At the later meeting with reporters, however,Hagerty said the President would be back in Washington in time to "drop in" on the food conference.

Presumably the ladies in Mrs. Eisenhower's party will all be the guests of Mrs. Graham. But their hostess, according to word she gave reporters in the East, does not plan to join them in person. She plans to stay closer to her horses now running at Hialeah in Florida.

Meet At NE To Deal With Science Topic

Stimulation of science learning will be emphasized by the Third District School Principals' Association at Tuesday's conference on the Northeast State campus.

Registration and a coffee period are scheduled from 9 to 9:30 a.m. in the Little Theater lounge of the Fine Arts building, according to Association President W. Carlton Johnson, principal of Delhi High School.

Main features on Tuesday's agenda will be a panel discussion and business meeting. E. J. Foster, head of the pure and applied science department at Northeast, will lead the discussion.

Panel Discussion

Panelists will underscore the science fair as a tool in stimulating science learning. Featured in this phase of the program will Mrs. B. A. Tullos, high school science teacher from Chatham, and Henry Hazlitt, Delhi High School science teacher.

Students of Mrs. Tullos have won national honors in science competition for the past two years, and Hazlitt's students have included many state winners.

These two instructors will use in connection with the program demonstrations by several of their students and scientific displays prepared by them.

Major business items in the session to follow will deal with proposed legislation for the coming session of the state legislature.

Five Teenagers Are Released To Parnets' Custody

EPPS (Special) — Mayor E. C. Jones said here last night that five teenagers have been released in custody of their parents following a Thursday night grocery store burglary.

Juvenile officers are scheduled to look into the matter next week, Jones said.

The mayor pointed out that only cigarettes and cigars were taken by the group which entered through a rear window in the Sharplin grocery store.

One of the youths, according to the mayor, admitted that Thursday night was the second time he had been the store. He also implicated the other four boys as being with him on the first trip, the mayor said, but no admissions had been gained from the youth's companions.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Costs Climbing As Dip Deepens

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—The cost of many of the things you buy kept inching up this week even as the recession deepened.

Food costs, probably the biggest item in most family budgets, pointed skyward. Dun & Bradstreet's weekly wholesale food price index climbed to its highest level in nearly three years. Cold weather damage to crops signaled a further increase. It was a foregone conclusion that retail food prices would follow the same path.

Also trending higher were haircuts, hospital care, telephone service, auto insurance and commuter transportation. The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad won a 20 per cent rise in commutation fares. In New York there was talk of abandoning the 15-cent subway token in favor of a 20 or 25-cent fare.

State and local governments, hard pressed for funds, pondered tax increases.

In Washington the Senate Post Office Committee approved a 750-million-dollar boost in postal rates. The bill would require a five-cent stamp on out-of-town letters and eight cents for air mail.

If you want to save a dollar, big discounts were still available on winter clothing, home appliances, furniture, rugs and cars. How long the discounting would last was another question. Manufacturers complained that present wholesale prices are not high enough to cover costs.

Retail merchants, also worried by the high cost of doing business, woefully contemplated a steady drop in sales. Department store sales in the week ended Feb. 15 were down six per cent from a year ago, partly because of snow and bitterly cold weather. In the four weeks ended Feb. 15, sales were five per cent below last year.

Big inventories and slow sales continued to plague the auto makers. Dealers' showrooms, warehouses, and storage lots were glutted with unsold cars; the latest unofficial inventory count was 825,000.

Several plants switched to a four-day week. Friday Ford laid off 14,000 workers at its big River Rouge plant. Four thousand more will be laid off in the coming week. The announced reason: to adjust production to inventories.

Other signs of slowdown: mounting surpluses of gasoline and drastic cutbacks in oil production. Conservation authorities in Texas ordered a nine-day production schedule for March, lowest in the history of the nation's biggest oil state. Crude oil output will be held to 2,517,249 barrels a day. That's 513,814 barrels under the state's current production rate. Independent oil producers, anxious to share in the shrinking demand for Texas crude, had clamored for the cutback. Said one: "if we're going to go broke, let's all go broke together."

Backgrounding the Texas move was a towering surplus of crude oil and refined petroleum products. At the latest count, nationwide stocks of gasoline were at a record high of 210½ million barrels. Also of concern to Texas producers was a rising flow of foreign oil. Petroleum imports in the week ended Feb. 14 averaged 1,897,000 barrels a day, a new record.

The steel industry waited hopefully this week for an upsurge of new business. Output still limped along at 54 per cent of the industry's beefed-up capacity. Several companies — including Wheeling Steel Corp., Colorado Fuel & Iron Corp., and United States Steel Corp.'s National Tube Division—recalled a few workers. But there was no real pickup in sight.

All was not too rosy with the railroads. Freight carloadings in the latest week were down 21 per cent from a year ago. The giant Pennsylvania Railroad reported a net loss of 2½ million dollars for January.

Stockholders of the world's three biggest corporations in communications, cars, and electrical equipment learned this week how their companies fared in 1957.

General Motors reported sales at $10,989,813,000, an increase, but lower profits, $843,592,000. It blamed the earnings dip on higher costs.

For stockholders of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and General Electric Co. the news was brighter. Both reported 1957 profits at a record high.

Briefly over the business scene: Phillip D. Reed, 58, will retire this spring as board chairman of General Electric Co. . . . American Motors Corp. says its dealers have sold 41,515 Ramblers since the 1958 models were introduced, an increase of 66 per cent over last year. . . . Here's the latest style flash from the Clothing Manufacturers Assn.: men's suits next fall will be predominately dark, with deep-toned browns, blues and grays the favorite colors. . . . In case you hadn't heard, the last week in Feb. will go down in the books as Pencil Week, so designated by the Lead Pencil Manufacturers Assn.

Inventory Of Gasoline In U.S. Soaring

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Gasoline inventories in need of a market continue to soar despite a 12 per cent decline in the nation's oil refinery operations.

Inventories have jumped to a record 210 million barrels although only 80 per cent of the domestic refining capacity is in current use. A year ago refineries were operating at 92 per cent of capacity, and gasoline stocks were just short of 200 million barrels.

Cold weather in the North and East has caused a minor drop in the level of heating oil stocks, but they still are excessive.

Localized gasoline price wars continue to flare and die away.

Petroleum Week said that production and actual refinery runs must be reduced by at least 400,000 barrels a day for about six weeks if a collapse in the general price structure is to be prevented.

Gov. Raymond Gary of Oklahoma, blaming foreign oil imports, this week warned that a crisis is shaping up in the oil industry. He said a drastic reduction in current allowables will be in order when the Oklahoma Conservation Commission meets next Tuesday to set a crude production ceiling for March.

Cotton Price Irregular In Week's Trades

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—Cotton futures prices traced an irregular pattern this week but finished with nearly all deliveries in higher ground.

Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange closed at prices ranging from 20 cents a bale lower to $3.70 a bale higher. All new crop months scored life-of-contract highs.

Factors in the upturn included approval by the House Appropriations Committee of a bill to increase funds for the acreage reserve portion of the soil bank program. The increase voted by the committee—175 million dollars—would boost the total to 675 millions.

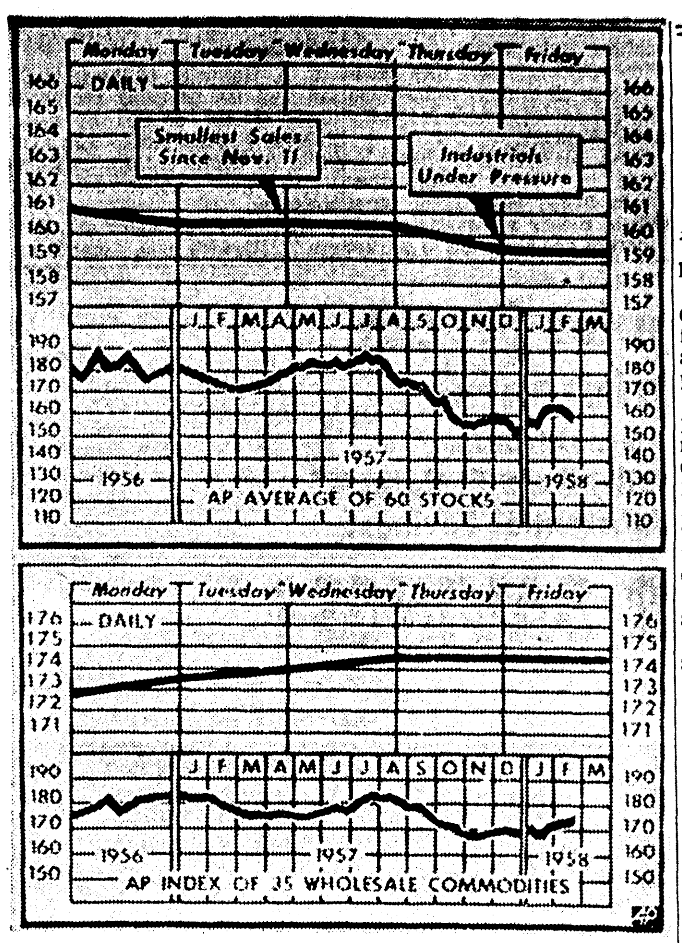
Some selling was prompted by fears that President Eisenhower might veto the bill.

After the close of trading Friday, the Commodity Credit Corp. reported it had sold only 704 bales of government cotton for export against bids opened at this week's auction. Trade sources had looked for a much larger figure. Since the start of the current season, sales by the CCC under this program have totaled 1,535,000 bales.

With issuance of the government's official consumption report delayed by bad weather, the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau estimated mills used 795,000 bales of the staple in the five-week period from Dec. 29 to Feb. 1 against 842,000 bales consumed in the like period a year ago.

This figures out to a consumption rate of 31,800 bales a day for January against a daily rate of 28,600 in December and 33,700 in January last year.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 113,000 bales, vs. 165,000 the previous week and 117,000 in the like 1957 week.



STOCKS DECLINE—The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined for the second straight week to 159.3 from 161.0 in the dullest trading since early October. For the third week in a row the commodity index pushed higher, closing at 174.4 from 172.9 with food and livestock the leading gainers. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

VOLUME SMALL

Stock Market Takes A Tumble

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—The stock market took a tumble this week.

The decline was no toboggan ride. Prices fell on the smallest volume since the week ended Oct. 5.

It was the market's second straight weekly dip. Prices were still ahead of their 1957 close on balance. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $1.70 to $159.30.

The heavy snowstorm cut down trading Monday and Tuesday.

Economic and corporate news remained spotty. Two big items of news were exploded in Wall Street and should have had a bullish effect, but they didn't.

One was the long hoped for reduction in the reserve requirements of Federal Reserve Banks, an antirecession move making possible a theoretical expansion of about three billion dollars in available bank credit.

The other was a jump in the "short interest" to highest point in 26 years.

Both these news items came Wednesday after the close. Early Thursday there was a moderate rise, aided by some short covering. But there was no follow-through. The market was lower at the close. Wall Streeters said the drop in reserve requirements was "too little and too late."

The market's decline was irregular as shown by the weekly total of 698 declines to 481 advances.

Lorillard again was an outstanding feature but this week on the downside. The word was out to take profits on this stock, which was selling at a price almost triple its low the past year.

U.S. government bonds drifted lower this week.

Grain Futures Climb In Week

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 —The rise in grain futures prices this week was credited by traders more to developments in Washington than to any economic factor.

At the close of the week, wheat was 3⅛-3⅝ cents a bushel higher than last week's close, corn was 1⅛-1½ higher, oats ⅛-1½ higher, rye 1¾-2 higher, soybeans 1⅛-4⅜ higher, lard 58 to 90 cents a hundred pounds higher.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Costs Climbing As Dip Deepens

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—The cost of many of the things you buy kept inching up this week even as the recession deepened.

Food costs, probably the biggest item in most family budgets, pointed skyward. Dun & Bradstreet's weekly wholesale food price index climbed to its highest level in nearly three years. Cold weather damage to crops signaled a further increase. It was a foregone conclusion that retail food prices would follow the same path.

Also trending higher were haircuts, hospital care, telephone service, auto insurance and commuter transportation. The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad won a 20 per cent rise in commutation fares. In New York there was talk of abandoning the 15-cent subway token in favor of a 20 or 25-cent fare.

State and local governments, hard pressed for funds, pondered tax increases.

In Washington the Senate Post Office Committee approved a 750-million-dollar boost in postal rates. The bill would require a five-cent stamp on out-of-town letters and eight cents for air mail.

If you want to save a dollar, big discounts were still available on winter clothing, home appliances, furniture, rugs and cars. How long the discounting would last was another question. Manufacturers complained that present wholesale prices are not high enough to cover costs.

Retail merchants, also worried by the high cost of doing business, woefully contemplated a steady drop in sales. Department store sales in the week ended Feb. 15 were down six per cent from a year ago, partly because of snow and bitterly cold weather. In the four weeks ended Feb. 15, sales were five per cent below last year.

Big inventories and slow sales continued to plague the auto makers. Dealers' showrooms, warehouses, and storage lots were glutted with unsold cars; the latest unofficial inventory count was 825,000.

Several plants switched to a four-day week. Friday Ford laid off 14,000 workers at its big River Rouge plant. Four thousand more will be laid off in the coming week. The announced reason: to adjust production to inventories.

Other signs of slowdown: mounting surpluses of gasoline and drastic cutbacks in oil production. Conservation authorities in Texas ordered a nine-day production schedule for March, lowest in the history of the nation's biggest oil state. Crude oil output will be held to 2,517,249 barrels a day. That's 513,814 barrels under the state's current production rate. Independent oil producers, anxious to share in the shrinking demand for Texas crude, had clamored for the cutback. Said one: "if we're going to go broke, let's all go broke together."

Backgrounding the Texas move was a towering surplus of crude oil and refined petroleum products. At the latest count, nationwide stocks of gasoline were at a record high of 210½ million barrels. Also of concern to Texas producers was a rising flow of foreign oil. Petroleum imports in the week ended Feb. 14 averaged 1,897,000 barrels a day, a new record.

The steel industry waited hopefully this week for an upsurge of new business. Output still limped along at 54 per cent of the industry's beefed-up capacity. Several companies — including Wheeling Steel Corp., Colorado Fuel & Iron Corp., and United States Steel Corp.'s National Tube Division—recalled a few workers. But there was no real pickup in sight.

All was not too rosy with the railroads. Freight carloadings in the latest week were down 21 per cent from a year ago. The giant Pennsylvania Railroad reported a net loss of 2½ million dollars for January.

Stockholders of the world's three biggest corporations in communications, cars, and electrical equipment learned this week how their companies fared in 1957.

General Motors reported sales at $10,989,813,000, an increase, but lower profits, $843,592,000. It blamed the earnings dip on higher costs.

For stockholders of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and General Electric Co. the news was brighter. Both reported 1957 profits at a record high.

Briefly over the business scene: Phillip D. Reed, 58, will retire this spring as board chairman of General Electric Co. . . . American Motors Corp. says its dealers have sold 41,515 Ramblers since the 1958 models were introduced, an increase of 66 per cent over last year. . . . Here's the latest style flash from the Clothing Manufacturers Assn.: men's suits next fall will be predominately dark, with deep-toned browns, blues and grays the favorite colors. . . . In case you hadn't heard, the last week in Feb. will go down in the books as Pencil Week, so designated by the Lead Pencil Manufacturers Assn.

Inventory Of Gasoline In U.S. Soaring

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Gasoline inventories in need of a market continue to soar despite a 12 per cent decline in the nation's oil refinery operations.

Inventories have jumped to a record 210 million barrels although only 80 per cent of the domestic refining capacity is in current use. A year ago refineries were operating at 92 per cent of capacity, and gasoline stocks were just short of 200 million barrels.

Cold weather in the North and East has caused a minor drop in the level of heating oil stocks, but they still are excessive.

Localized gasoline price wars continue to flare and die away.

Petroleum Week said that production and actual refinery runs must be reduced by at least 400,000 barrels a day for about six weeks if a collapse in the general price structure is to be prevented.

Gov. Raymond Gary of Oklahoma, blaming foreign oil imports, this week warned that a crisis is shaping up in the oil industry. He said a drastic reduction in current allowables will be in order when the Oklahoma Conservation Commission meets next Tuesday to set a crude production ceiling for March.

Cotton Price Irregular In Week's Trades

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—Cotton futures prices traced an irregular pattern this week but finished with nearly all deliveries in higher ground.

Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange closed at prices ranging from 20 cents a bale lower to $3.70 a bale higher. All new crop months scored life-of-contract highs.

Factors in the upturn included approval by the House Appropriations Committee of a bill to increase funds for the acreage reserve portion of the soil bank program. The increase voted by the committee—175 million dollars—would boost the total to 675 millions.

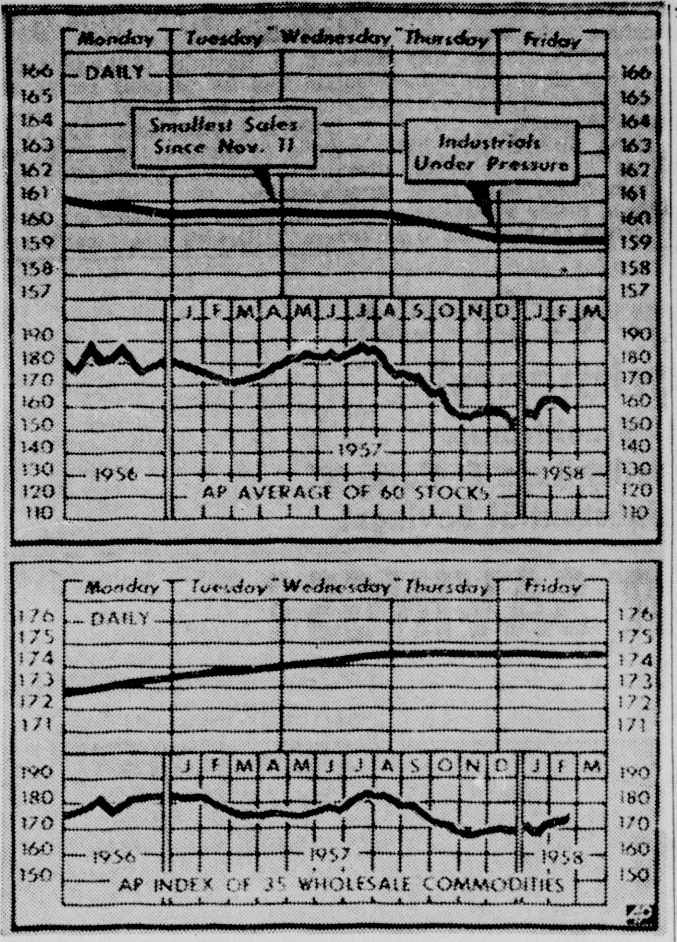
Some selling was prompted by fears that President Eisenhower might veto the bill.

After the close of trading Friday, the Commodity Credit Corp. reported it had sold only 704 bales of government cotton for export against bids opened at this week's auction. Trade sources had looked for a much larger figure. Since the start of the current season, sales by the CCC under this program have totaled 1,535,000 bales.

With issuance of the government's official consumption report delayed by bad weather, the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau estimated mills used 795,000 bales of the staple in the five-week period from Dec. 29 to Feb. 1 against 842,000 bales consumed in the like period a year ago.

This figures out to a consumption rate of 31,800 bales a day for January against a daily rate of 28,600 in December and 33,700 in January last year.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 113,000 bales, vs. 165,000 the previous week and 117,000 in the like 1957 week.



STOCKS DECLINE—The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined for the second straight week to 159.3 from 161.0 in the dullest trading since early October. For the third week in a row the commodity index pushed higher, closing at 174.4 from 172.9 with food and livestock the leading gainers. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

VOLUME SMALL

Stock Market Takes A Tumble

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—The stock market took a tumble this week.

The decline was no toboggan ride. Prices fell on the smallest volume since the week ended Oct. 5.

It was the market's second straight weekly dip. Prices were still ahead of their 1957 close on balance. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $1.70 to $159.30.

The heavy snowstorm cut down trading Monday and Tuesday.

Economic and corporate news remained spotty. Two big items of news were exploded in Wall Street and should have had a bullish effect, but they didn't.

One was the long hoped for reduction in the reserve requirements of Federal Reserve Banks, an antirecession move making possible a theoretical expansion of about three billion dollars in available bank credit.

The other was a jump in the "short interest" to highest point in 26 years.

Both these news items came Wednesday after the close. Early Thursday there was a moderate rise, aided by some short covering. But there was no follow-through. The market was lower at the close. Wall Streeters said the drop in reserve requirements was "too little and too late."

The market's decline was irregular as shown by the weekly total of 698 declines to 481 advances.

Lorillard again was an outstanding feature but this week on the downside. The word was out to take profits o this stock, which was selling at a price almost triple its low the past year.

U.S. government bonds drifted lower this week.

Grain Futures Climb In Week

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 —The rise in grain futures prices this week was credited by traders more to developments in Washington than to any economic factor.

At the close of the week, wheat was 3⅛-3⅝ cents a bushel higher than last week's close, corn was 1⅛-1½ higher, oats ⅛-1½ higher, rye 1¾-2 higher, soybeans 1⅛-4⅜ higher, lard 58 to 90 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Importers Argue For Quotas

By CHARLES HASLET

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) — Companies seeking to get into the oil importing business gave a variety of reasons in arguing their cases in more than a week of hearings. But the basic plea in most cases was one of economics—foreign oil is cheaper.

The hearings, latest in a series, wound up this week before Navy Capt. M. V. Carson Jr. of Hearne, Tex., administrator of the government's program for voluntary curtailment of oil imports. The applicants included refiners, wholesalers, marketers and producers. All asked quotas as new importers. Carson took the various applications under study.

Most applicants said they needed foreign oil to meet competition from companies already in the importing business.

Some pleaded they have interests in Venezuelan or other foreign fields, have spent large sums of money in developing the properties and now want to market some of their own foreign oil in this country.

C. Z. Hardwick of the Ohio Oil Co. said his company recognizes the problems created by crude imports and has looked with sympathy on efforts of the administrator to regulate imports fairly and equitably.

"It should be pointed out, however," Harwick said, "that it has been and is a policy of the U.S. Government to foster and encourage the investment of American private capital in foreign countries."

Several companies estimated that foreign crude is from 50 cents to $1 a barrel cheaper than domestic crude, permitting refiners to blend the oils and produce a less costly product. These companies said they needed import quotas in order to meet competition in their marketing areas.

A few applicants said they needed specific types of foreign crude for use in making special products such as asphalt.

Railroads still carry more than half the freight transported in the United States despite increasing use of trucks.

Importers Argue For Quotas

By CHARLES HASLET

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) — Companies seeking to get into the oil importing business gave a variety of reasons in arguing their cases in more than a week of hearings. But the basic plea in most cases was one of economics—foreign oil is cheaper.

The hearings, latest in a series, wound up this week before Navy Capt. M. V. Carson Jr. of Hearne, Tex., administrator of the government's program for voluntary curtailment of oil imports. The applicants included refiners, wholesalers, marketers and producers. All asked quotas as new importers. Carson took the various applications under study.

Most applicants said they needed foreign oil to meet competition from companies already in the importing business.

Some pleaded they have interests in Venezuelan or other foreign fields, have spent large sums of money in developing the properties and now want to market some of their own foreign oil in this country.

C. Z. Hardwick of the Ohio Oil Co. said his company recognizes the problems created by crude imports and has looked with sympathy on efforts of the administrator to regulate imports fairly and equitably.

"It should be pointed out, however," Harwick said, "that it has been and is a policy of the U.S. Government to foster and encourage the investment of American private capital in foreign countries."

The bidding:
South, 1 heart; West, pass; North, 2 hearts; East, pass.
South, 4 hearts; West, pass; North, pass; East, pass.

Opening lead: king of spades.

One of the cardinal principles of play by declarer is to avoid the strong trump hand to ruff. Yet even so fundamental a doctrine as this has its exceptions.

Today's hand on the surface appears to present no problem. The opening lead of the king of spades was taken with the ace. Trumps were drawn in three rounds and since three diamonds had to be lost, the success of the contract appeared to hinge upon the chance that the clubs would break three - three. When this failed, the contract was down one.

Since there are six clubs out, the chances are against the break. It has been observed that an even number of outstanding cards probably will not be divided evenly.

Declarer should therefore look for a better way to play the hand. Note that dummy's hearts are high enough to pull the adverse trumps.

Since there are five trumps outstanding (an odd number), they probably will break, so that there is a good chance to pull them in three rounds. If dummy's spades are all ruffed by South, the only losers will be the three diamonds.

A spade should be returned and ruffed by South. A small trump to the nine puts dummy in and another spade is ruffed with the king. The jack of hearts is overtaken with the queen and the last spade is ruffed with South's ace of trumps.

Dummy is entered with the queen of clubs in order to pull the last trump as South discards a diamond. If at this point clubs should break, one of dummy's losing diamonds will be discarded on the 13th club and declarer will make five odd. With the clubs failing to break, declarer gives up the last three tricks.

This type of play is known as "dummy reversal," or making the dummy the master hand. The play itself is the essence of simplicity. The dummy's trumps are high enough to draw the adverse trumps and the short suit is in the closed hand.

Big topic of conversation in the Twin Cities this week was the Mardi Gras ball at the Bayou DeSiard Country club and the costumes seen there — gay, gaudy sublime or ridiculous. In keeping with the Spotlight on Hollywood theme, club members came dressed to represent actors, characters in movies, or just plain and fancy west coast residents. Winning the prizes for the most original costumes were BLANCHE and HARRY OLIVER. She was Confidential magazine, with a long nose to stick into everyone's business. Harry was lawyer "I. Winnum," representing the scandal magazine in court. . . . Best couple were the DICK DICKENHORST's who were disguised as a pair of Oscars in gold lame.

Prizewinning group was made up of eight couples, each person dressed as a character from "Song of the South." JACK EASTERLING was Uncle Remus; ARMAND M'HENRY, JR., Brer Rabbit; MILES SAGER, Brer Bear; and EDMUND BROWN, the Brier Patch. . . . JOANN SAGER made a sensational Brer Terrapin, complete to the intricately marked shell. . . . CISSY RYAN was Mrs. Possum; C. D. OAKLEY, JR., the Tar Baby; JERRY OAKLEY, the beehive (Brer Rabbit's laughing place). . . . Others, dressed as the children who heard the Uncle Remus stories, were THAD RYAN, BITZA BROWN, the JIM EWINGS, BARBARA EASTERLING, the THEO TERZIA.

Western attire was favored by many celebrants. BUB CALLOWAY wore a blue cowboy outfit—solid shirt under a blue striped vest, two wide belts and a pair of six-shooters. . . . LON HEUER was Wyatt Earp, complete to the long mustache, wife MARTHA was his dance-hall girl friend. . . . Another cowboy squiring a dancer was GEORGE MOUK with wife CAROL. . . . Tailored rancher suits such as are seen in the modern West were worn by JOAN and TOBY BANCROFT and MARY and JIM FORTNER. . . . Truly Western, too, was LOUISE LEIGH in an Indian blanket. She was accompanied by her daughter, RHODA KELLOGG NORMAN, who was visiting here from New Orleans.

Among the visitors here for the dance were JERRY LEVI of Demopolis, Ala., and LAURA McGEHEE of Summit, Miss., guests of ASHLEY HAMILTON; and TOMMY LOU McMILLAN, who visited ROSEANN MARX. . . Sixteen of the college crowd were entertained at a buffet supper at the Hamilton's home before the ball.

Numbers of actors, or reasonable facsimiles thereof, were seen in the club rooms. PAULINE RILEY was Gloria Swanson, in black with long gloves and egret feathers in her hair. . . . MARY LEE MILAM wore a blond wig to enhance her resemblance to Jayne Mansfield. . . . SPEED BANCROFT came as James Dean in jeans and a black leather jacket. . . . D. V. LOFLIN was W. C. Fields; FLO KELLY, Carmen Miranda; BESSIE BIEDENHARN, Lillian Russell . . . . PAT RILEY's coloring was perfect for playing Lucille Ball . . . . Perfect, too, was BESS COURTMAN as Dorothy Lamour, wearing an elegant sarong with her hair down her back.

Other interesting costumes included FRED FUDICKAR's Shirley Temple outfit, with a wig of blonde corkscrew curls. Completing the picture was wife ROSALIE as Shirley's famous dancing partner, Bojangles Robinson. . . . FLORA POTTS was a screen siren in a big flowered hat and a slit skirt. . . . JOE DIXON was Sylvestre the cat, stalking TEEDEE, Tweety-pie herself.

Denise was proud to learn that Monroe's own GEORGE SNELLINGS III was in the court of Rex. . . . Also in New Orleans for Mardi Gras were ESTHER and LOUIS MASUR and their children, LYN and LOUIS III. They went down last week end and returned this Wednesday. . . . JOYCE and DICK KELLOGG were in the Crescent City for some of the parades and balls. . . . CAROLYN and DAVID MARX took advantage of a business trip to Baton Rouge to go on down to New Orleans for fun.

Travelling to Shreveport Friday were a group of Monroe bankers who drove over for the Louisiana Clearing House district meeting this week end. Thus combining business and pleasure were MARTILLE and ROBERT COWDEN, FRANCES AND GRAYSON GUTHRIE, CINDY and BENTON WAKEFIELD, and JOY and BEN MARSHALL.

Another group who will be going to Shreveport this week are the local THETA UPSILON alumnae. Miss CAROL MICHALSON, province secretary of the sorority, will be honored with a luncheon at the Eastridge Country Club Saturday. MILDRED LANCE, who is handling reservations for this area, reports that several cars will go over from Monroe for the day.

'Twas a pleasure to see JUNE and WALTER ELDRED, former Monroyans who were back in town this week. With young DAVID and DEBBY, they were guests of PAT and TOM MARTIN. . . . An informal seated coffee in the home of CHRISTINE GRAY Thursday gave June a chance to chat with old friends. . . . Following the coffee, MARILYN TAYLOR hosted a small luncheon at the Lotus Club. . . . That night the visitors were honored at a dinner party in the home of BETTY SUE and AAGE GLUD. . . . Friday a congenial group gathered for an early dinner and then proceeded to the opening of the "Boy Friend" at the Little Theatre. . . . The Eldreds returned to their home in New Orleans Saturday.

Little Miss THERESA ANN is the new daughter now being welcomed at the Deborah Drive home of DR. and MRS. V. J. SAMPOGNARO. . . . Young LEE JEROME is not only the first son for MARY KAY and JERRY WEBSTER, but is the first grandchild on either side. AND he arrived on the birthday of his maternal grandfather, LEE H. KROUGH of St. Peter, Minn.

The UNITED CHURCH WOMEN held services throughout the city Friday for the World Day of Prayer. This reminded Denise that some of our finest poetry is found in the Bible. Consider Psalm 121:

I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from which cometh my help.
My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth.
He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: He that keepeth thee will not slumber.
Behold, He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep.
The Lord is thy keeper: the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand.
The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night.
The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul.
The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore.

On Dit'

by Denise

Big topic of conversation in the Twin Cities this week was the Mardi Gras ball at the Bayou DeSiard Country club and the costumes seen there — gay, gaudy sublime or ridiculous. In keeping with the Spotlight on Hollywood theme, club members came dressed to represent actors, characters in movies, or just plain and fancy west coast residents. Winning the prizes for the most original costumes were BLANCHE and HARRY OLIVER. She was Confidential magazine, with a long nose to stick into everyone's business. Harry was lawyer "I. Winnum," representing the scandal magazine in court. . . . Best couple were the DICK DICKENHORST's who were disguised as a pair of Oscars in gold lame.

Prizewinning group was made up of eight couples, each person dressed as a character from "Song of the South." JACK EASTERLING was Uncle Remus; ARMAND M'HENRY, JR., Brer Rabbit; MILES SAGER, Brer Bear; and EDMUND BROWN, the Brier Patch. . . . JOANN SAGER made a sensational Brer Terrapin, complete to the intricately marked shell. . . . CISSY RYAN was Mrs. Possum; C. D. OAKLEY, JR., the Tar Baby; JERRY OAKLEY, the beehive (Brer Rabbit's laughing place). . . . Others, dressed as the children who heard the Uncle Remus stories, were THAD RYAN, BITZA BROWN, the JIM EWINGS, BARBARA EASTERLING, the THEO TERZIA.

Western attire was favored by many celebrants. BUB CALLOWAY wore a blue cowboy outfit—solid shirt under a blue striped vest, two wide belts and a pair of six-shooters. . . . LON HEUER was Wyatt Earp, complete to the long mustache, wile MARTHA was his dance-hall girl friend. . . . Another cowboy squiring a dancer was GEORGE MOUK with wife CAROL. . . . Tailored rancher suits such as are seen in the modern West were worn by JOAN and TOBY BANCROFT and MARY and JIM FORTNER. . . . Truly Western, too, was LOUISE LEIGH in an Indian blanket. She was accompanied by her daughter, RHODA KELLOGG NORMAN, who was visiting here from New Orleans.

Among the visitors here for the dance were JERRY LEVI of Demopolis, Ala., and LAURA McGEHEE of Summit, Miss., guests of ASHLEY HAMILTON; and TOMMY LOU McMILLAN, who visited ROSEANN MARX. . . Sixteen of the college crowd were entertained at a buffet supper at the Hamilton's home before the ball.

Numbers of actors, or reasonable facsimiles thereof, were seen in the club rooms. PAULINE RILEY was Gloria Swanson, in black with long gloves and egret feathers in her hair. . . . MARY LEE MILAM wore a blond wig to enhance her resemblance to Jayne Mansfield. . . . SPEED BANCROFT came as James Dean in jeans and a black leather jacket. . . . D. V. LOFLIN was W. C. Fields; FLO KELLY, Carmen Miranda; BESSIE BIEDENHARN, Lillian Russell . . . . PAT RILEY's coloring was perfect for playing Lucille Ball . . . . Perfect. too, was BESS COURTMAN as Dorothy Lamour, wearing an elegant sarong with her hair down her back.

Other interesting costumes included FRED FUDICKAR's Shirley Temple outfit, with a wig of blonde corkscrew curls. Completing the picture was wife ROSALIE as Shirley's famous dancing partner, Bojangles Robinson. . . . FLORA POTTS was a screen siren in a big flowered hat and a slit skirt. . . . JOE DIXON was Sylvestre the cat, stalking TEEDEE, Tweety-pie herself.

Denise was proud to learn that Monroe's own GEORGE SNELLINGS III was in the court of Rex. . . . Also in New Orleans for Mardi Gras were ESTHER and LOUIS MASUR and their children, LYN and LOUIS III. They went down last week end and returned this Wednesday. . . . JOYCE and DICK KELLOGG were in the Crescent City for some of the parades and balls. . . . CAROLYN and DAVID MARX took advantage of a business trip to Baton Rouge to go on down to New Orleans for fun.

Travelling to Shreveport Friday were a group of Monroe bankers who drove over for the Louisiana Clearing House district meeting this week end. Thus combining business and pleasure were MARTILLE and ROBERT COWDEN, FRANCES AND GRAYSON GUTHRIE, CINDY and BENTON WAKEFIELD, and JOY and BEN MARSHALL.

Another group who will be going to Shreveport this week are the local THETA UPSILON alumnae. Miss CAROL MICHALSON, province secretary of the sorority, will be honored with a luncheon at the Eastridge Country Club Saturday. MILDRED LANCE, who is handling reservations for this area, reports that several cars will go over from Monroe for the day.

If Hair Is Gray Get Rid Of Gold In Your Jewelry

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—When your hair has turned to silver, get rid of the gold in your jewelry wardrobe.

So advises Mrs. Hilda Altmark, a designer in her late 40's, who's been greying since her 20's.

"Gold jewelry gives a brassy, harsh look to the grey - haired woman" said Mrs. Altmark. "Wear pearls, rhinestones or colored beads. And nothing chunky."

Wear Strong Shades

Mrs. Altmark, chief designer for the dress and suit firm of Braneil, believes the silver-haired also should go easy on the "sissy" pastels, and wear strong shades—pinks, blues, violets, emerald green, blue green, and beige (not brown).

"And no yellow green," said the designer. Grey is an excellent color, if it has character. . .not a washed out shade. Wear black, but select a true jet shade."

"Colored hats are most becoming," said Mrs. Altmark. "And select those with a light and airy look, not old lady-ish. Silhouettes with an upswept line are most flattering."

Must Watch Skirt Length

In hosiery, she suggested selection of grey or soft pink tones, rather than the tawny or brown shades. "And the greying woman, whether she's 40 or double that, must watch skirt lengths," she said. "No matter what the younger woman dares, wear the length which is most flattering to your legs."

Hilda Altmark, who grew up a blonde, now has hair a pearl grey, nearly white shade.

"It's never tinted," she said. "I think the woman should use a hint of blue or lavender tint, only if her skin is sallor or swarthy."

Her own formula is simple: Plenty of brushing and good care.

"The one thing all of us with grey hair must avoid is a 'do' she said. "The soft arrangement is by far the most flattering."

It takes less time to cook dried fruits, beans, and some cereals if they are soaked in water for several hours before cooking.

Sack Or Shift Will Be Worn The Most Now

NEW YORK, (AP) — Call it chemise, sack or shift—whatever the name, it's what most women are going to be wearing this spring.

As New York designers prepared today to preview their spring collections next week for some 200 visiting fashion editors from all over this country and abroad, it was apparent that if you're going to be in step with fashion in 1958, my dear, you're going to accept the sack silhouette.

This controversial fashion, which has been on its way for the last several years, was given top priority at last fall's Paris showings, and is definitely due for the big push in American stores this spring.

Women who recall with horror the graceless styles of the 1920s may shudder and vow, "Never again!" But most of them will find themselves stepping out along about Easter in the modern version of flapper fashions. Such is the force of the high potentials of international fashion.

Though the outlook may be grim, it's really not as bad as it seems. Today's sack is far different from those of 30 years ago, and also different from the extreme versions shown in Paris. American designers, with their usual skill, have retained the basic silhouette but have modified and adapted it until it has become actually wearable.

The 1958 chemise, made in America, is carefully shaped, smoothly fitted at shoulder, bust and hipline and often comes with a half belt, back or front. It has that new look demanded by the changing tides of fashion, but it doesn't necessarily make every woman look like a sack of potatoes. The hemline is shorter, but only an inch or two shorter—not to the knees. And designers have found ways to draw the eye away from the unfitted midriff to other areas of the anatomy.

Interest at neckline and hemline focuses attention at these points, instead of at the waist. Much thought has been put into flattering necklines, which may stand away from the neck, portrait fashion, or may employ detail or color contrast as accents. Hemlines may be finished with a pleated flounce or dramatized by slashes or low-placed trimming. Thus is the eye trained to accept a new silhouette.

In the spring suit lineup, the unfitted look again is evident, with jackets straight and short, usually hugging the hipbones. Skirts are slender, often slightly pegged, and overblouses are almost universal. Often the overblouse is in a silk print matching the lining and trim of the jacket, which is likely to be worn open.

HOSTESSES for the opening night performance of "The Boy Friend" at Little Theatre were, left, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Travis MacClendon, Mrs. Robert Evans and Mrs. M. H. Collet attired in the costumes of the Twenties.

As New York designers prepared today to preview their spring collections next week for some 200 visiting fashion editors from all over this country and abroad, it was apparent that if you're going to be in step with fashion in 1958, my dear, you're going to accept the sack silhouette.

This controversial fashion, which has been on its way for the last several years, was given top priority at last fall's Paris showings, and is definitely due for the big push in American stores this spring.

Women who recall with horror the graceless styles of the 1920s may shudder and vow, "Never again!" But most of them will find themselves stepping out along about Easter in the modern version of flapper fashions. Such is the force of the high potentials of international fashion.

Though the outlook may be grim, it's really not as bad as it seems. Today's sack is far different from those of 30 years ago, and also different from the extreme versions shown in Paris. American designers, with their usual skill, have retained the basic silhouette but have modified and adapted it until it has become actually wearable.

The 1958 chemise, made in America, is carefully shaped, smoothly fitted at shoulder, bust and hipline and often comes with a half belt, back or front. It has that new look demanded by the changing tides of fashion, but it doesn't necessarily make every woman look like a sack of potatoes. The hemline is shorter, but only an inch or two shorter—not to the knees. And designers have found ways to draw the eye away from the unfitted midriff to other areas of the anatomy.

Interest at neckline and hemline focuses attention at these points, instead of at the waist. Much thought has been put into flattering necklines, which may stand away from the neck, portrait fashion, or may employ detail or color contrast as accents. Hemlines may be finished with a pleated flounce or dramatized by slashes or low-placed trimming. Thus is the eye trained to accept a new silhouette.

In the spring suit lineup, the unfitted look again is evident, with jackets straight and short, usually hugging the hipbones. Skirts are slender, often slightly pegged, and overblouses are almost universal. Often the overblouse is in a silk print matching the lining and trim of the jacket, which is likely to be worn open.

HOSTESSES for the opening night performance of "The Boy Friend" at Little Theatre were, left, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Travis MacClendon, Mrs. Robert Evans and Mrs. M. H. Collet attired in the costumes of the Twenties.

Candlelight illuminated the double-ring ceremony that united in marriage Miss Linda Lar Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Rogers, of Crossett, and Dennis Anderson, son of Mrs. Florence B. NO CHANCE AT ALL

CONCORDIA, Kan. (AP)—It cost Richard Patrick Ahrendads $50 an 30 days to sell chances on a washer and dryer to residents of this Kansas town — but police scratched their heads before they came up with a charge.

He was convicted of "soliciting and canvassing without a city license."

It wasn't gambling, they decide because the enterpriser's $1 customers didn't have a chance. The washer was a small metal one with a hole in the middle; and the dryer was a paper napkin.

New Synthetics Bring Many New Fabric Names

CHICAGO — The nation's clothing industry is adding new words to the language.

The University of Illinois textiles and clothing specialist says such names as Ban-Lon, Taslan, Tycora and Helanca are becoming common-place in the growing synthetic fiber industry. But Mrs. Katharine Maxey says these brand names do not apply to a specific fiber, but refer to the method of obtaining the soft, fluffy appearance and feel of the new yarns.

These yarns are made from long, continuous strands of fiber that have been looped, crimped or curled to increase their bulkiness.

MRS. DENNIS ANDERSON

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Miss Rogers And Dennis Anderson

Candlelight illuminated the double-ring ceremony that united in marriage Miss Linda Lar Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Rogers, of Crossett, and Dennis Anderson, son of Mrs. Florence B. Anderson, of Oakland, California, in marriage. The vows were read at 7:00 o'clock Saturday evening, February 15th, in the First Methodist Church of Crossett, with the Rev. J. W. Buckner officiating. White stock and snapdragons with white tapers in standing candelabra formed a background for the service. Miss Betty Hines was organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of peau de soie which fell in deep folds from the waistline to a chapel train in back was topped with an imported Chantilly lace bodice featuring a portrait neckline edged in cut scallops of the lace. The sleeves came to calla points at the writst. Her finger-tip length veil of bridal illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of ivory roses.

Miss Barbara Hancock was maid of honor, attire in mauve antique taffeta with back drapery falling from an orchid pink crystalline cummerbund. Her headdress was of pink pleated crystalline, and she carried pink frosted grapes with glossy greenery. Identically dressed bridesmaids were Misses Cecelia Watson, Linda Dodd, and Rebecca Wood.

Glenn Neaville, of Clay, Louisiana, served as best man. Groomsmen were Norman Scott, Larry Crossland, and Dwight Shelton, all of Crossett.

Immediately following the wedding the parents entertained in the home with a reception. The bride's table was centered with pink carnations and white candles in white porcelain holders, on a cut-work linen cloth. Miss Betty McKelvy presided at the bride's book, and Miss Carlynn Booles and Miss Margie Miles served.

For travel the bride wore a beige and black two - peice ensemble, with an ivory rose from her bouquet pinned at her shoulder. The couple left immediately for California, where they will be at home in North Hollywood.

Scott of Austin, Texas, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thomisee, Jr. The wedding will be an event of April fourth, at seven-thirty in the evening at the First Baptist Church of West Monroe.

FULL CIRCLE

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Found in a book collection donated to the public library were two books missing since 1915. Librarians said the overdue fine would have been $276.65 — but the books were never checked out, just taken from the library shelves.

Miss Thomisee And Seth Scott Are Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thomisee, Jr., of West Monroe, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Sharon Maria Thomisee, to Seth Allan Scott, of Natchez, Miss., son of Mr. and Mrs. Seth J. Scott of Austin, Tex.

The ceremony will be performed on April fourth, at seven-thirty in the evening at the First Baptist Church of West Monroe, with Dr. Jaroy Weber, assisted by the Rev. Jack Day, officiating.

Mrs. Henry A. Little will serve as matron of honor and the bridesmaids will be Misses Jane Gill, Fairbanks; Evelyn Cruse, Monroe; Patricia Hogan, West Monroe; and Barbara Gall, cousin of the groom from Abilene, Tex.

Best man will be Ferrell Lunceford of Natchez and the ushers will be John Jenkins of Natchez, Bob O'Connor of Rayville, Joe Naff of Monroe, and Bruce Lee of West Monroe.

The bride's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Roy P. Lee and the paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thomisee. Miss Thomisee is a graduate of Ouachita High School and Northeast Louisiana State College.

The groom-elect is the grandson of the late W. W. Sebourn of Spiro, Okla., and Mrs. Maggie Scott of San Antonio, Tex. He is a graduate of Little Rock Senior High School, attended the University of Texas and a graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College. He is at present a band director of the Montebello Junior High School, Natchez, Miss.

MISS PEGGY ANN KING, whose engagement and approaching marriage to William Earl Adcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Adcock of Tyler, Texas, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cloise S. King of Tallulah. The wedding will take place the latter part of March in Baton Rouge. Miss King is a graduate of Tallulah High School and Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, and is teaching at Quitman.

Golden Wedding In The Rogers' Home Celebrated

An open house was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Rogers of Oak Grove in celebration of their Golden Wedding Anniversary. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Stanley Rogers and Mrs. K. O. Rogers, assisted by Mrs. M. R. Miller, Mrs. Luther Rogers and Mrs. Olin Rogers of Lake Charles.

The beautifully appointed table was covered with white lace cloth and was centered with yellow roses interspersed with greenery featuring a golden number "50" as a focal point. The oversize white and gold confection was placed at one end of the table with a punch service at the opposite end. The two hostesses alternated at the table. The guest book was kept by Miss Mattie Rae Miller.

Mrs. Rogers chose for her occasion a charming fall frock and wore a corsage of gold chrysanthemums. Many gifts were presented to the honor couple.

Over a hundred guests called between the appointed afternoon hours of two until five o'clock.

NO CHANCE AT ALL

CONCORDIA, Kan. (AP)—It cost Richard Patrick Ahrendads $50 an 30 days to sell chances on a washer and dryer to residents of this Kansas town — but police scratched their heads before they came up with a charge.

He was convicted of "soliciting and canvassing without a city license."

It wasn't gambling, they decide because the enterpriser's $1 customers didn't have a chance. The washer was a small metal one with a hole in the middle; and the dryer was a paper napkin.

New Synthetics Bring Many New Fabric Names

CHICAGO — The nation's clothing industry is adding new words to the language.

The University of Illinois textiles and clothing specialist says such names as Ban-Lon, Taslan, Tycora and Helanca are becoming common-place in the growing synthetic fiber industry. But Mrs. Katharine Maxey says these brand names do not apply to a specific fiber, but refer to the method of obtaining the soft, fluffy appearance and feel of the new yarns.

These yarns are made from long, continuous strands of fiber that have been looped, crimped or curled to increase their bulkiness.

THE HOME SHIFT

Plant Glad Bulbs Deep

By MILDRED SWIFT

The icy fingers of Jack Frost reached into our gardens and played havoc with camellia blooms. As for permanent damage to trees and shrubs — that remains to be seen. However, unless the temperature drops lower than it has so far, the old gardeners say no plants will die from freeze. The ground was so wet. A wet freeze is not nearly so damaging as a dry one.

All-America Selections

The gladiolus selected for All-America awards has been grown and tested in 30 trial gardens in the United States. The name is Emperor, and it is a gorgeous shade of purple. Emperor makes tall majestic spikes with seven to eight of its curved florets open at one time. The plants are hardy and the spikes tall and straight. It has been known to reach six feet.

You called my hand on the sentence in last week's column "plant glad bulbs deep." You said, "How deep?" The corms should be set about four inches deep. If your soil is sandy, the corms should go deeper than four inches; and if it is clayey, they might be set more shallow.

However, when you set corms this deep, they don't produce as many cormels. You're not too interested in that, though. The deeper the corms, the better support the plants get from the soil, and the less likely they will be to need special support to hold up the flower heads when they bloom. Those heads get rather heavy at times.

Gardening

January, February, and March are considered the best months for grafting camellias. Call for a camellia bulletin and read what Dr. Hanchey says about grafting.

If you're planning to buy some Japanese magnolias, here is a partial classification:

Lennei — flowers large, deep crimson on the outside, a late bloomer.
Alexandrina — deep purple at outside base, white inside. One of the early bloomers.
Alba Superba — white
Brozzonii — white shaded purple.
Cyathiformis — cup shaded, light purple.
Grandis — white outer petals, purple at base and in the middle.
Rustica — deep purple outside
Speciosa — white, striped purple outside
Triumphans — pink toward the outside base
Magnolia lilliflora nigra — tulip shaped flowers, dark purple outside, pink inside.

The nurseries have most of these varieties, or excellent substitutes.

If you haven't cut back your chrysanthemums, attend to that job right away.

Sometime we are prone to neglect our large vigorous shrubs like ligustrum, pitrosporum and viburnum, and let them shift for themselves. Yet their beauty depends on shiny foliage, compact growth and a steady production of new terminal shoots.

Examine your evergreens with a critical eye. Is their color good? If not they are probably starving to death. Fertilize. Is the soil packed around their roots? Plant food and water are wasted on caked soil. If so, work lightly and mulch. If the foliage is rusty-looking, the chances are red spider mites are at work. Spray with malathion when you spray your azaleas and camellias.

Ants at the roots of plants are a danger signal, since they are carriers of many virus diseases and they build up colonies of aphids on the new growth of shrubs. Get rid of ants with chlordane. The malathion will take care of the white fly. Even oleanders will bear watching when the new growth starts. Aphids will establish themselves on new growth. Use a nicotine spray.

Does that all sound discouraging? Well, for every plant we grow we seem to have several pests trying to keep them from growing. Just get a good spray gun and the job won't be too hard.

It's time to plant montbretia and watsonia bulbs. Montbretias are summer bloomers. Both are lovely in flower arrangements.

If you want to root crape myrtles, this is an excellent time. They are easy to grow from cuttings.

Crinums and amaryllis bulbs can be planted now.

Garden tools

This is the time to get garden tools in shape. Test the lawn mower. I heard that groan from Dad, but mowing time is only a few weeks away. Did you put the hand spade, hoe, etc., up with mud on them? If so clean with steel wool and wax with floor wax. Paint the handles of tools red. They're easy to find.

The Easy Look

The spring style picture describes the easy look as being the relaxed overblouse, the tie belt chemise, the supple sheath, the bloused sheath, the chemise ensemble. And glory be, there's the soft shirt-waist for us who have lost the battle of the bulge. Can't you imagine some of us 160 pounders in a chemise? We'd probably be accused of having them made at the tent and awning shop.

Family Room Needs Plans As Home Unit

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The recreation room is fast becoming an integral part of every home. Even apartment dwellers can sometimes afford an extra room for family fun. It's the hideaway where adults entertain their guests, where children may amuse themselves, where family pets may cavort to their hearts' content. It is a room apart from the rest of the house that may be cleaned easily and spares other parts of the house from heavy use.

When making a plan for a fun room, think it out carefully. You should: (1) Avoid clutter (2) Use easy - to - clean flooring (3) Employ washable fabrics (4) Use sturdy furnishings. If the recreation room is to be in the basement you'll also want to solve any moisture and drainage problems that may exist before you embark on your decorating scheme. You don't want a leaky cellar after you invest in good floor and wall covering.

Painted walls can give your room a cozy look, although wood panelling also is very attractive. A bright gay Bermuda pink, turquoise, yellow or even an apricot hue can do wonders in creating a snug feeling. If the ceiling is loaded with pipes, put in a false ceiling below the pipe - laden one.

Cabinets Help

A cabinet arrangement around one side of a room to house all sorts of paraphanalia records, toys, hobby equipment — helps to avoid clutter.

If the playroom is an integral part of the house, hard flooring is to be preferred for its cleanability. The room will look larger if you stick to a solid color, although a big fad now is the floor with the built - in checkerboard or chess game. You may have stripes, diagonals or rectangles if you prefer. If the floor surface is level laying the tile should be a simple matter. There are many systems for leveling off uneven floors.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Show Features Nature's Line

By MARY M. JARDINE

The beauty of Nature's own line materials were featured in John Wright's television program and display at the Garden Center this week. Branches of wild cherry, winged sweet-gum and pine were selected for the designs.

The first arrangement was vertical in pattern. The container, a soft gray cylinder held a single branch of gray winged-sweet-gum, judiciously pruned so that three lateral branches remained, giving a three-dimensional effect within the vertical pattern. Two small branches of clipped pine were placed just above the rim of the container adding contrast, depth and interest to the design. The interior of the container was filled with pine needles for a "mechanic." This served a two-fold purpose, that of holding the plant material firmly in place, and it also had an antiseptic effect on the water in the container. This distinctive arrangement would look well on a small book case or a small entrance hall table.

Very interesting effects can be achieved with the wild plum branches. For instance, Mr. Wright selected a round white bowl, rather shallow and with a pie crust edge in which he made another vertical arrangement. The single branch of cherry was slightly curved and the buds were just beginning to form. The branch was so placed in the bowl that the tip was directly over the center of the bowl to achieve perfect balance. Three Fortune daffodils were placed low following the line. The needle point holder was concealed by three camellia leaves. This attractive container is what I refer to as an "either." It can be used for flower arrangements as above, fruit or as an oversize ash tray. The next container to be described doubles in my home as a fruit bowl and flower container. It is round, black soft glaze, shallow and supported by three short legs. In this Mr. Wright arranged three tall curved spikes of variegated sansevieria in a triangular design. Three red camellia buds with self foliage repeated the triangular pattern low in the design. Weather conditions had caused the foliage to take on a maroon cast and somewhat dulled the usual gloss. This created interest in color and was a perfect choice for the soft glaze of the container.

Daffodil Accent

A free-form container of flaring lines emphasized the rather angular lines often found in the wild-cherry. Again a single branch was used with the main line sharply angled to the left with two shorter lateral branches angling to the right. This was placed a little to the left of center and toward the back of the needle point holder for good balance, stressing by placement the line of the branch and the flare of the container. Three bright yellow Carleton daffodils completed the design.

An interesting and unusual boat shaped container was featured in another arrangement. Designed by Mark Harris, Louisiana Tech art director, as an example of texture and pattern, the exterior was dark brown, and patterned with smooth grooved lines, rough ridges and rounded knobs just below the rim. The interior was rough textured deep tan. Mr. Wright selected for this bowl a single branch of pine with interesting curved lines. The holder was placed to the left of the bowl and the pine firmly impaled creating a rhythmic design. Roadside pebbles covered the needle holder.

Dates to remember: Thursday, Feb. 26, Winnsboro Garden Club will present Mrs. Ione Talbot Richardson in a Flower Arrangement Workshop, 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. V. F. W. Hall, Winnsboro. Small fee. Bring your own containers and materials. Public invited.

Iris Garden Club of Crossett will present Dorothy Biddle in a flower arrangement lecture, March 6, City Hall in Crossett, 2 to 4 p.m.

Don't fret over a broken glass on a coffee table top. Replace it with a panel of woodgrain or marble pattern to give the table a distinctive appearance. Attach the predecorated hardboard panel to the coffee table with contact cement.

SHINY KITCHEN - - Among the tricks to help modernize an outdated kitchen is a wall installation of stainless steel tiles. Easy to keep clean, they also coordinate with any colors or decorative motifs in an existing room.

Kitchen Improvements Can Take Place Of Remodeling

Almost every woman has ideas about her "dream kitchen" — but it's possible that making it a reality has to be postponed for a time. A "complete overhaul" may not fit in with the family budget at present. Or perhaps an outmoded or too - small kitchen has been "inherited" from an older home or rented apartment.

But a few "day dreams", at least, can come true immediately. Imagination plus some inexpensive improvements on the existing room can do worlds for the kitchen's efficiency — and the housewife's morale.

1. Start off by changing or adding a new decorative color. You might want to re-paint the whole room, but it isn't necessary. Equally effective is a new accent color used tastefully on cabinets, moldings, windows or one wall surface. Existing colors in kitchens might well be white, yellow or green. Consider combining them with some of today's interesting decorative tones. For instance, royal blue or pink could be added to an existing green. Orange or red add high fashion brightness to a yellow room. Of course, you have an unlimited choice of colors to choose from if your present kitchen is all-white.

Coordinate the decorative tones in gay printed curtains for the windows. Stores have an immense variety in ready - mades, or, if you sew, they're easy to whip up in one of the delightful prints available at yard goods counters. Fresh curtains can give the same life to a kitchen as a new hat does for you.

2. The wall behind the stove often poses a problem. There's an inevitable accumulation of grease, especially if the stove is "vintage." You can give this area a clean, modern look by covering it with a few stainless steel tiles. These are reasonably priced, easy to apply and maintain, and the natural luster of the metal will give off an attractive reflection of your decorative color scheme.

3. Utilize areas of available wall space for convenient storage. Nests of saucepans, utensils, measuring cups and spoons frequently come equipped with matching stainless steel racks which attach to the wall. Or use a pegboard with hooks for this purpose. Working in a kitchen is far easier if your most - used pots, pan and utensils are within easy reach instead of inside overstuffed drawers or cabinets. Besides, the latest designs in these, especially in stainless steel and copper, are attractive decorative notes in themselves.

4. One of the big problems of an out - dated kitchen is usually inadequate built-in cabinets and drawers. With careful analysis, you can make the best with what you have. Sometimes it's helpful to change concepts. You don't have to keep cleaning equipment in the broom closet just because of its name — it might be a far better place to store canned goods, pots and pans, or dishes and glassware with the addition of several inexpensive shelves inside. Mops and brooms can be stored in a hall closet or behind a door, arranged neatly on one of the cleverly designed racks for this purpose which are available at hardware and dime stores.

A shoe bag attached behind one of the doors or a broom - closet wall can be wonderful for holding household potpourri. Vacumn attachments, dust rags, cleaning brushes and tools fit as neatly inside the pockets as does pretty footwear. If your husband has an extra tie - rack, you could affix this near the sink — its many prongs afford lots of extra spaces for holding vegetable brushes, dish rags, towels, etc.

5. A bookshelf provides another area of additional open storage space for such items as small appliances and stainless steel electric cookware. Department stores have many sizes and shapes of book cases in their unpainted furniture departments, so you should have no trouble finding one that fits into even the smallest kitchen. Paint it to match the accent color of the room. And you might cover the top with stainless steel tiles to give you an extra working table that's also a safe surface for hot pans.

6. Kitchens designed some years ago did not provide for the many appliances we consider essential and helpful today, so you may be in need of some new wires or a re-arrangement of outlets. Call on the advice of an electrical contractor or some other expert in the field. Do-it-yourself multiple sockets and extension cords will not solve the problem, and might even be dangerous.

7. The primary purpose of the kitchen being to turn out good things to eat, the best possible cooking wear is your best investment. Those in stainless steel fill this requirement. Easy to maintain and extremely durable, they'll look pristine as new years later when you're ready to install the entire "dream kitchen."

Plant Roses In Right Way For Growth, Blooms

Before you buy roses, work up the planting bed and dig the holes. On new beds, put on a layer of peatmoss three inches deep plus an application of 30 pounds of rose food per thousand square feet and spade it in thoroughly. Plants should be set from 18 to 24 inches apart and the planting holes should be dug to a depth of 10 inches and a foot in diameter at the bottom. Put a mound of good soil in the bottom of the hole in which to set the plants.

Buy only truly dormant plants. Bushes that have shoots several inches long will receive a serious setback and may never recover. Preferably, the plants should not even be in bud. Set them in the soil as soon after removing the wrappings as possible, placing the graft union an inch below the surface of the ground in the northern states and an inch above it in the southern states. Fill in soil after setting the plant firmly with the roots spread over the mound; when half the soil has been replaced, soak it down with the hose. Fill in the remainder of the soil and mound the canes up to a height of 8 or 10 inches. Cut off the canes at this height, also removing any small or twiggy shoots. Leave them mounded up for two to three weeks, removing the soil a little at a time as the new shoots begin to grow.

Add a 3 to 4-inch mulch of ground corncobs, or a 2-inch mulch of peatmoss to keep the soil cool and preserve moisture. An additional surface application of plant food is desirable if corncobs are used as a mulch, in order to prevent the bacteria which decompose the cobs from competing with the plants for needed nutrient elements.

Daffodils Brave Cold

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In spite of the coldest winter in years, the daffodils are sticking up their heads hopefully, and some have already bloomed. It is the rains that really make them come up. Most kinds are not afraid of a little cold weather. When the foliage begins to come out on any kind of narcissus, the whole plant is in active growth. Some of the plant's strength goes into developing the flower stems and buds already packed away in the bulbs. The rest of the strength of the plant goes into making the new bulb for next year. With two things going on like this at once, food is necessary.

We usually plant daffodils in any kind in soil that is rich enough to need only the yearly addition of some bone meal to grow the bulbs for several years. It is necessary to scratch in a good handful of bone meal lightly each year to keep the bulbs properly fed. If you have not fed your bulbs since last spring, now is the time to do it. Just rake or take off by hand the mulch or whatever lies on top of the soil over the bulbs, scatter a handful of bone meal over each ten square feet, scratch it into the top inch of soil lightly and replace the mulch.

Bone Meal

Bone meal has been used for years as a slow acting food for bulbs. It has been preferred to super - phosphate specifically because of its slow action. Complete fertilizers are frowned upon by bulb growers because they tend to encourage basal rot of narcissi. If you use complete fertilizers on your daffodils, you will get very long leaves and stems that flop over on the ground. Animal manures of any kind are also frowned upon as inviting trouble.

Where the soil in which you planted your daffodils was rich and where trees or shrubs do not compete too closely for the food in your daffodil beds, you can usually keep the bulbs flowering normally for from three to six years with the yearly bone meal top dressing. When daffodils cease to flower properly, take them up, prepare the soil down to eighteen inches deep again and replant the best bulbs with no diseases on them.

Cut Flowers

For the enjoyment of your daffodils as cut flowers, remember that a daffodil will expand in the house in water into a larger, finer blossom than it will in the garden. If you will pick the buds just when they have barely broken the papery little sheath that encloses them and put them right into water, the flowers will completely develop. Do not wait until they are already open if you want the finest flowers. Let them open in a place just warm enough to make them develop and away from strong light. In this way, you will see all the colors they claim for the fine varieties in the catalogues!

New HD Club Is Organized

By AUDREY DAWSON

Fertilizing

March is the time to fertilize your rose bushes, shrubs and trees. Be sure to use a complete fertilizer such as 8-8-8 or 5-10-5. Fertilizer should be applied around trees and shrubs just under the tips of the branches, as this is where the small feeder roots occur. Do not allow fertilizer to touch stems of leaves of any young plants as it may cause burning.

If you have a few pecan trees around your house for shade purposes and for pecan production, be sure to fertilize them either this month or March. The amount and analysis are governed to a great extent by soil type and condition of the soil. Generally, an 8-8-8, 6-8-8, or 5-10-5 analysis is recommended. Two pounds per year age of tree is usually enough. If you have one or two around the house, the best way to fertilize is to punch a series of holes in the ground with a pipe or shovel and apply the fertilizer in the holes. This places the plant food near the feeder roots of the pecan and reduces growth of grass on top of the ground. Apply it well away from the trunk beginning halfway between the trunk and tips of the branches and ending slightly beyond the tips of the branches. If you cannot do this, broadcast it under the tree and wash it in with water with a slow running hose.

Roses

If you have not pruned your roses, be sure to get this done as soon as ole man winter permits you to stay in the yard an hour without freezing. Radiance may be cut back 12 to 15 inches from the ground. Most varieties should be ground if that much can be left. Weak growing plans should be pruned slightly. Be sure to remove that pruned portions and it is safest to burn them. All leaves and debris should be raked from the ground around the plants. The pruned plants annd ground around them should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture to control black spot.

More About Pruning

Prune evergreen shrubs and late summer and fall flowering shrubs now. Do not prune spring flowering shrubs such as forsythia, yellow jasmine, spirea, deutsia and etc. now. Wait until after blooming season. Take time to prune your shrubs to give them a well groomed look which adds to the appearance of your garden.

New Club

A new Home Demonstration Club was organized with a group of homemakers in North Monroe. The name of the new club is "Lakeshore." Mrs. Albritton was elected as president and Mrs. Egloff as secretary.

Just Talking

Mr. S. R. Aycock, work unit conservationists and I talk camellias when we have a spare moment in our office building. He told me last week that he had added several varieties to his selection this year: Thelma Dale, a rose pink; Lindsay Neil, red variety; C. M. Wilson, all solid light pink; Mathotiana Supreme, which he told me is the Purple Dawn of 58 and Magnoliaeflora, very light semi-double pink, that is a must for every camellia lover. Mr. Aycock said that he followed the camellia bulletin from our office. If you have not gotten yours, call our office at FA 3-2251 and get your copy.

Hints for Homemakers

Before taking medicine, hold a piece of ice on the tongue to chill the taste buds.

If curtains won't drape just right after laundering, fasten them to the sill or baseboard with small pieces of Scotch tape. It is not noticeable, and can be removed without damage after the curtain hangs properly.

Slip a clean plastic bowl cover over the end of the loaf of Italian or French bread that you have partly used. Covering the cut end keeps bread from drying out.

A Thought

Someone has said, "Well arranged time is the surest mark of a well arranged mind."

Lowering Ceiling Easy With 'Trough'

By JOHN O. B. WALLACE
AP Newsfeatures

Have you ever thought of lowering the ceiling in your home? A reader from Winona, Minn., wants to do it. Take our word — it's no do - it - yourself project under the conditions the lady from Minnesota imposes.

Mrs. L. M. writes:

"I have a house that has a 10½ ft. ceiling. I would like to lower the ceiling to the picture moulding, which is 16 inches lower than the ceiling. But the window casings are only 10 inches below the ceiling.

"How can I lower this ceiling and still take care of the windows without putting in all new windows in the house? I have 18 windows, all down stairs, which would be very expensive if I had to change all of them. Thanking you for any information you can give me."

The simple solution to this problem, of course, would be to compromise by not bringing the ceiling down to the level of the picture moulding — but to hold it high enough to clear the top of the window.

In such a case, the owner would have a choice of the type of ceiling to use because it would be a plain, flat surface. The new ceiling could be plaster, dry wall, wood, or could be finished in any one of the many wall board or acoustical tile finishes.

The reader, however, presumably has good reasons for wanting the ceiling lowered to the level of the picture moulding.

In seeking a practical solution, we enlisted the technical advice of a top architect. His first reaction was to suggest the simple solution.

"But, wait a minute," added Architect Herman H. York. "You know, this is a very interesting problem. Let's put our heads together and see what we can come up with."

The result is an ingenious method for lowering the ceiling, keeping the windows — and supplying, as well, a dramatic effect to the interior.

The essence of York's idea is to create a "light trough" across the entire wall in which the windows are located. In this way, the ceiling is brought down only to the top of the windows at the point where the ceiling joins the side wall; yet beyond the "light trough," the ceiling will be lowered to the level of the picture moulding.

This indirect lighting trough adds effective decorative treatment to the room and also enhances lighting for the entire area.

Plant Glad Bulbs Deep

By MILDRED SWIFT

The icy fingers of Jack Frost reached into our gardens and played havoc with camellia blooms. As for permanent damage to trees and shrubs — that remains to be seen. However, unless the temperature drops lower than it has so far, the old gardeners say no plants will die from freeze. The ground was so wet. A wet freeze is not nearly so damaging as a dry one.

All-America Selections

The gladiolus selected for All-America awards has been grown and tested in 30 trial gardens in the United States. The name is Emperor, and it is a gorgeous shade of purple. Emperor makes tall majestic spikes with seven to eight of its curved florets open at one time. The plants are hardy and the spikes tall and straight. It has been known to reach six feet.

You called my hand on the sentence in last week's column "plant glad bulbs deep." You said, "How deep?" The corms should be set about four inches deep. If your soil is sandy, the corms should go deeper than four inches; and if it is clayey, they might be set more shallow.

However, when you set corms this deep, they don't produce as many cormels. You're not too interested in that, though. The deeper the corms, the better support the plants get from the soil, and the less likely they will be to need special support to hold up the flower heads when they bloom. Those heads get rather heavy at times.

Gardening

January, February, and March are considered the best months for grafting camellias. Call for a camellia bulletin and read what Dr. Hanchey says about grafting.

If you're planning to buy some Japanese magnolias, here is a partial classification:

Lennei — flowers large, deep crimson on the outside, a late bloomer.

Alexandrina — deep purple at outside base, white inside. One of the early bloomers.

Alba Superba — white

Brozzonii — white shaded purple.

Cyathiformis — cup shaded, light purple.

Grandis — white outer petals, purple at base and in the middle.

Rustica — deep purple outside

Speciosa — white, striped purple outside

Triumphans — pink toward the outside base

Magnolia lilliflora nigra — tulip shaped flowers, dark purple outside, pink inside.

The nurseries have most of these varieties, or excellent substitutes.

If you haven't cut back your chrysanthemums, attend to that job right away.

Sometime we are prone to neglect our large vigorous shrubs like ligustrum, pitrosporum and viburnum, and let them shift for themselves. Yet their beauty depends on shiny foliage, compact growth and a steady production of new terminal shoots.

Examine your evergreens with a critical eye. Is their color good? If not they are probably starving to death. Fertilize. Is the soil packed around their roots? Plant food and water are wasted on caked soil. If so, work lightly and mulch. If the foliage is rusty-looking, the chances are red spider mites are at work. Spray with malathion when you spray your azaleas and camellias.

Ants at the roots of plants are a danger signal, since they are carriers of many virus diseases and they build up colonies of aphids on the new growth of shrubs. Get rid of ants with chlordane. The malathion will take care of the white fly. Even oleanders will bear watching when the new growth starts. Aphids will establish themselves on new growth. Use a nicotine spray.

Does that all sound discouraging? Well, for every plant we grow we seem to have several pests trying to keep them from growing. Just get a good spray gun and the job won't be too hard.

It's time to plant montbretia and watsonia bulbs. Montbretias are summer bloomers. Both are lovely in flower arrangements.

If you want to root crape myrtles, this is an excellent time. They are easy to grow from cuttings.

Crinums and amaryllis bulbs can be planted now.

Garden tools

This is the time to get garden tools in shape. Test the lawn mower. I heard that groan from Dad, but mowing time is only a few weeks away. Did you put the hand spade, hoe, etc., up with mud on them? If so clean with steel wool and wax with floor wax. Paint the handles of tools red. They're easy to find.

The Easy Look

The spring style picture describes the easy look as being the relaxed overblouse, the tie belt chemise, the supple sheath, the bloused sheath, the chemise ensemble. And glory be, there's the soft shirt-waist for us who have lost the battle of the bulge. Can't you imagine some of us 160 pounders in a chemise? We'd probably be accused of having them made at the tent and awning shop.

Family Room Needs Plans As Home Unit

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The recreation room is fast becoming an integral part of every home. Even apartment dwellers can sometimes afford an extra room for family fun. It's the hideaway where adults entertain their guests, where children may amuse themselves, where family pets may cavort to their hearts' content. It is a room apart from the rest of the house that may be cleaned easily and spares other parts of the house from heavy use.

When making a plan for a fun room, think it out carefully. You should: (1) Avoid clutter (2) Use easy - to - clean flooring (3) Employ washable fabrics (4) Use sturdy furnishings. If the recreation room is to be in the basement you'll also want to solve any moisture and drainage problems that may exist before you embark on your decorating scheme. You don't want a leaky cellar after you invest in good floor and wall covering.

Painted walls can give your room a cozy look, although wood panelling also is very attractive. A bright gay Bermuda pink, turquoise, yellow or even an apricot hue can do wonders in creating a snug feeling. If the ceiling is loaded with pipes, put in a false ceiling below the pipe - laden one.

Cabinets Help

A cabinet arrangement around one side of a room to house all sorts of paraphanalia records, toys, hobby equipment — helps to avoid clutter.

If the playroom is an integral part of the house, hard flooring is to be preferred for its cleanability. The room will look larger if you stick to a solid color, although a big fad now is the floor with the built - in checkerboard or chess game. You may have stripes, diagonals or rectangles if you prefer. If the floor surface is level laying the tile should be a simple matter. There are many systems for leveling off uneven floors.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Show Features Nature's Line

By MARY M. JARDINE

The beauty of Nature's own line materials were featured in John Wright's television program and display at the Garden Center this week. Branches of wild cherry, winged sweet-gum and pine were selected for the designs.

The first arrangement was vertical in pattern. The container, a soft gray cylinder held a single branch of gray winged-sweet-gum, judiciously pruned so that three lateral branches remained, giving a three-dimensional effect within the vertical pattern. Two small branches of clipped pine were placed just above the rim of the container adding contrast, depth and interest to the design. The interior of the container was filled with pine needles for a "mechanic." This served a two-fold purpose, that of holding the plant material firmly in place, and it also had an antiseptic effect on the water in the container. This distinctive arrangement would look well on a small book case or a small entrance hall table.

Very interesting effects can be achieved with the wild plum branches. For instance. Mr. Wright selected a round white bowl, rather shallow and with a pie crust edge in which he made another vertical arrangement. The single branch of cherry was slightly curved and the buds were just beginning to form. The branch was so placed in the bowl that the tip was directly over the center of the bowl to achieve perfect balance. Three Fortune daffodils were placed low following the line. The needle point holder was concealed by three camellia leaves. This attractive container is what I refer to as an "either." It can be used for flower arrangements as above, fruit or as an oversize ash tray. The next container to be described doubles in my home as a fruit bowl and flower container. It is round, black soft glaze, shallow and supported by three short legs. In this Mr. Wright arranged three tall curved spikes of variegated sansevieria in a triangular design. Three red camellia buds with self foliage repeated the triangular pattern low in the design. Weather conditions had caused the foliage to take on a maroon cast and somewhat dulled the usual gloss. This created interest in color and was a perfect choice for the soft glaze of the container.

Daffodil Accent

A free-form container of flaring lines emphasized the rather angular lines often found in the wild-cherry. Again a single branch was used with the main line sharply angled to the left with two shorter lateral branches angling to the right. This was placed a little to the left of center and toward the back of the needle point holder for good balance, stressing by placement the line of the branch and the flare of the container. Three bright yellow Carleton daffodils completed the design.

An interesting and unusual boat shaped container was featured in another arrangement. Designed by Mark Harris, Louisiana Tech art director, as an example of texture and pattern, the exterior was dark brown, and patterned with smooth grooved lines, rough ridges and rounded knobs just below the rim. The interior was rough textured deep tan. Mr. Wright selected for this bowl a single branch of pine with interesting curved lines. The holder was placed to the left of the bowl and the pine firmly impaled creating a rhythmic design. Roadside pebbles covered the needle holder.

Dates to remember: Thursday, Feb. 26, Winnsboro Garden Club will present Mrs. Ione Talbot Richardson in a Flower Arrangement Workshop, 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. V. F. W. Hall, Winnsboro. Small fee. Bring your own containers and materials. Public invited.

Iris Garden Club of Crossett will present Dorothy Biddle in a flower arrangement lecture, March 6, City Hall in Crossett, 2 to 4 p.m.

Don't fret over a broken glass on a coffee table top. Replace it with a panel of woodgrain or marble pattern to give the table a distinctive appearance. Attach the predecorated hardboard panel to the coffee table with contact cement.

SHINY KITCHEN - - Among the tricks to help modernize an outdated kitchen is a wall installation of stainless steel tiles. Easy to keep clean, they also coordinate with any colors or decorative motifs in an existing room.

Kitchen Improvements Can Take Place Of Remodeling

Almost every woman has ideas about her "dream kitchen" — but it's possible that making it a reality has to be postponed for a time. A "complete overhaul" may not fit in with the family budget at present. Or perhaps an outmoded or too - small kitchen has been "inherited" from an older home or rented apartment.

But a few "day dreams", at least, can come true immediately. Imagination plus some inexpensive improvements on the existing room can do worlds for the kitchen's efficiency — and the housewife's morale.

1. Start off by changing or adding a new decorative color. You might want to re-paint the whole room, but it isn't necessary. Equally effective is a new accent color used tastefully on cabinets, moldings, windows or one wall surface. Existing colors in kitchens might well be white, yellow or green. Consider combining them with some of today's interesting decorative tones. For instance, royal blue or pink could be added to an existing green. Orange or red add high fashion brightness to a yellow room. Of course, you have an unlimited choice of colors to choose from if your present kitchen is all-white.

Coordinate the decorative tones in gay printed curtains for the windows. Stores have an immense variety in ready - mades, or, if you sew, they're easy to whip up in one of the delightful prints available at yard goods counters. Fresh curtains can give the same life to a kitchen as a new hat does for you.

2. The wall behind the stove often poses a problem. There's an inevitable accumulation of grease, especially if the stove is "vintage." You can give this area a clean, modern look by covering it with a few stainless steel tiles. These are reasonably priced, easy to apply and maintain, and the natural luster of the metal will give off an attractive reflection of your decorative color scheme.

3. Utilize areas of available wall space for convenient storage. Nests of saucepans, utensils, measuring cups and spoons frequently come equipped with matching stainless steel racks which attach to the wall. Or use a pegboard with hooks for this purpose. Working in a kitchen is far easier if your most - used pots, pan and utensils are within easy reach instead of inside overstuffed drawers or cabinets. Besides, the latest designs in these, especially in stainless steel and copper, are attractive decorative notes in themselves.

4. One of the big problems of an out - dated kitchen is usually inadequate built-in cabinets and drawers. With careful analysis, you can make the best with what you have. Sometimes it's helpful to change concepts. You don't have to keep cleaning equipment in the broom closet just because of its name — it might be a far better place to store canned goods, pots and pans, or dishes and glassware with the addition of several inexpensive shelves inside. Mops and brooms can be stored in a hall closet or behind a door, arranged neatly on one of the cleverly designed racks for this purpose which are available at hardware and dime stores.

A shoe bag attached behind one of the doors or a broom - closet wall can be wonderful for holding household potpourri. Vacumn attachments, dust rags, cleaning brushes and tools fit as neatly inside the pockets as does pretty footwear. If your husband has an extra tie - rack, you could affix this near the sink — its many prongs afford lots of extra spaces for holding vegetable brushes, dish rags, towels, etc.

5. A bookshelf provides another area of additional open storage space for such items as small appliances and stainless steel electric cookware. Department stores have many sizes and shapes of book cases in their unpainted furniture departments, so you should have no trouble finding one that fits into even the smallest kitchen. Paint it to match the accent color of the room. And you might cover the top with stainless steel tiles to give you an extra working table that's also a safe surface for hot pans.

6. Kitchens designed some years ago did not provide for the many appliances we consider essential and helpful today, so you may be in need of some new wires or a re-arrangement of outlets. Call on the advice of an electrical contractor or some other expert in the field. Do-it-yourself multiple sockets and extension cords will not solve the problem, and might even be dangerous.

7. The primary purpose of the kitchen being to turn out good things to eat, the best possible cooking wear is your best investment. Those in stainless steel fill this requirement. Easy to maintain and extremely durable, they'll look pristine as new years later when you're ready to install the entire "dream kitchen."

Plant Roses In Right Way For Growth, Blooms

Before you buy roses, work up the planting bed and dig the holes. On new beds, put on a layer of peatmoss three inches deep plus an application of 30 pounds of rose food per thousand square feet and spade it in thoroughly. Plants should be set from 18 to 24 inches apart and the planting holes should be dug to a depth of 10 inches and a foot in diameter at the bottom. Put a mound of good soil in the bottom of the hole in which to set the plants.

Buy only truly dormant plants. Bushes that have shoots several inches long will receive a serious setback and may never recover. Preferably, the plants should not even be in bud. Set them in the soil as soon after removing the wrappings as possible, placing the graft union an inch below the surface of the ground in the northern states and an inch above it in the southern states. Fill in soil after setting the plant firmly with the roots spread over the mound; when half the soil has been replaced, soak it down with the hose. Fill in the remainder of the soil and mound the canes up to a height of 8 or 10 inches. Cut off the canes at this height, also removing any small or twiggy shoots. Leave them mounded up for two to three weeks, removing the soil a little at a time as the new shoots begin to grow.

Add a 3 to 4-inch mulch of ground corncobs, or a 2-inch mulch of peatmoss to keep the soil cool and preserve moisture. An additional surface application of plant food is desirable if corncobs are used as a mulch, in order to prevent the bacteria which decompose the cobs from competing with the plants for needed nutrient elements.

Daffodils Brave Cold

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In spite of the coldest winter in years, the daffodils are sticking up their heads hopefully, and some have already bloomed. It is the rains that really make them come up. Most kinds are not afraid of a little cold weather. When the foliage begins to come out on any kind of narcissus, the whole plant is in active growth. Some of the plant's strength goes into developing the flower stems and buds already packed away in the bulbs. The rest of the strength of the plant goes into making the new bulb for next year. With two things going on like this at once, food is necessary.

We usually plant daffodils in any kind in soil that is rich enough to need only the yearly addition of some bone meal to grow the bulbs for several years. It is necessary to scratch in a good handful of bone meal lightly each year to keep the bulbs properly fed. If you have not fed your bulbs since last spring, now is the time to do it. Just rake or take off by hand the mulch or whatever lies on top of the soil over the bulbs, scatter a handful of bone meal over each ten square feet, scratch it into the top inch of soil lightly and replace the mulch.

Bone Meal

Bone meal has been used for years as a slow acting food for bulbs. It has been preferred to super - phosphate specifically because of its slow action. Complete fertilizers are frowned upon by bulb growers because they tend to encourage basal rot of narcissi. If you use complete fertilizers on your daffodils, you will get very long leaves and stems that flop over on the ground. Animal manures of any kind are also frowned upon as inviting trouble.

Where the soil in which you planted your daffodils was rich and where trees or shrubs do not compete too closely for the food in your daffodil beds, you can usually keep the bulbs flowering normally for from three to six years with the yearly bone meal top dressing. When daffodils cease to flower properly, take them up, prepare the soil down to eighteen inches deep again and replant the best bulbs with no diseases on them.

Cut Flowers

For the enjoyment of your daffodils as cut flowers, remember that a daffodil will expand in the house in water into a larger, finer blossom than it will in the garden. If you will pick the buds just when they have barely broken the papery little sheath that encloses them and put them right into water, the flowers will completely develop. Do not wait until they are already open if you want the finest flowers. Let them open in a place just warm enough to make them develop and away from strong light. In this way, you will see all the colors they claim for the fine varieties in the catalogues!

Fertilizing

March is the time to fertilize your rose bushes, shrubs and trees . Be sure to use a complete fertilizer such as 8-8-8 or 5-10-5. Fertilizer should be applied around trees and shrubs just under the tips of the branches, as this is where the small feeder roots occur. Do not allow fertilizer to touch stems of leaves of any young plants as it may cause burning.

If you have a few pecan trees around your house for shade purposes and for pecan production, be sure to fertilize them either this month or March. The amount and analysis are governed to a great extent by soil type and condition of the soil. Generally, an 8-8-8, 6-8-8, or 5-10-5 analysis is recommended. Two pounds per year age of tree is usually enough. If you have one or two around the house, the best way to fertilize is to punch a series of holes in the ground with a pipe or shovel and apply the fertilizer in the holes. This places the plant food near the feeder roots of the pecan and reduces growth of grass on top of the ground. Apply it well away from the trunk beginning halfway between the trunk and tips of the branches and ending slightly beyond the tips of the branches. If you cannot do this, broadcast it under the tree and wash it in with water with a slow running hose.

Roses

If you have not pruned your roses, be sure to get this done as soon as ole man winter permits you to stay in the yard an hour without freezing. Radiance may be cut back 12 to 15 inches from the ground. Most varieties should be ground if that much can be left. Weak growing plans should be pruned slightly. Be sure to remove that pruned portions and it is safest to burn them. All leaves and debris should be raked from the ground around the plants. The pruned plants annd ground around them should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture to control black spot.

More About Pruning

Prune evergreen shrubs and late summer and fall flowering shrubs now. Do not prune spring flowering shrubs such as forsythia, yellow jasmine, spirea, deutsia and etc. now. Wait until after blooming season. Take time to prune your shrubs to give them a well groomed look which adds to the appearance of your garden.

New Club

A new Home Demonstration Club was organized with a group of homemakers in North Monroe. The name of the new club is "Lakeshore." Mrs. Albritton was elected as president and Mrs. Egloff as secretary.

Just Talking

Mr. S. R. Aycock, work unit conservationists and I talk camellias when we have a spare moment in our office building. He told me last week that he had added several varieties to his selection this year: Thelma Dale, a rose pink; Lindsay Neil, red variety; C. M. Wilson, all solid light pink; Mathotiana Supreme, which he told me is the Purple Dawn of 58 and Magnoliaeflora, very light semi-double pink, that is a must for every camellia lover. Mr. Aycock said that he followed the camellia bulletin from our office. If you have not gotten yours, call our office at FA 3-2251 and get your copy.

Hints for Homemakers

Before taking medicine, hold a piece of ice on the tongue to chill the taste buds.

If curtains won't drape just right after laundering, fasten them to the sill or baseboard with small pieces of Scotch tape. It is not noticeable, and can be removed without damage after the curtain hangs properly.

Slip a clean plastic bowl cover over the end of the loaf of Italian or French bread that you have partly used. Covering the cut end keeps bread from drying out.

A Thought

Someone has said, "Well arranged time is the surest mark of a well arranged mind."

Lowering Ceiling Easy With 'Trough'

By JOHN O. B. WALLACE
AP Newsfeatures

Have you ever thought of lowering the ceiling in your home? A reader from Winona, Minn., wants to do it. Take our word — it's no do - it - yourself project under the conditions the lady from Minnesota imposes.

Mrs. L. M. writes:

"I have a house that has a 10½ ft. ceiling. I would like to lower the ceiling to the picture moulding, which is 16 inches lower than the ceiling. But the window casings are only 10 inches below the ceiling.

"How can I lower this ceiling and still take care of the windows without putting in all new windows in the house? I have 18 windows, all down stairs, which would be very expensive if I had to change all of them. Thanking you for any information you can give me."

The simple solution to this problem, of course, would be to compromise by not bringing the ceiling down to the level of the picture moulding — but to hold it high enough to clear the top of the window.

In such a case, the owner would have a choice of the type of ceiling to use because it would be a plain, flat surface. The new ceiling could be plaster, dry wall, wood, or could be finished in any one of the many wall board or acoustical tile finishes.

The reader, however, presumably has good reasons for wanting the ceiling lowered to the level of the picture moulding.

In seeking a practical solution, we enlisted the technical advice of a top architect. His first reaction was to suggest the simple solution.

"But, wait a minute," added Architect Herman H. York. "You know, this is a very interesting problem. Let's put our heads together and see what we can come up with."

The result is an ingenious method for lowering the ceiling, keeping the windows — and supplying, as well, a dramatic effect to the interior.

The essence of York's idea is to create a "light trough" across the entire wall in which the windows are located. In this way, the ceiling is brought down only to the top of the windows at the point where the ceiling joins the side wall; yet beyond the "light trough," the ceiling will be lowered to the level of the picture moulding.

This indirect lighting trough adds effective decorative treatment to the room and also enhances lighting for the entire area.

DR. R. G. LEE

Noted Dr. R. G. Lee To Hold Meet Here

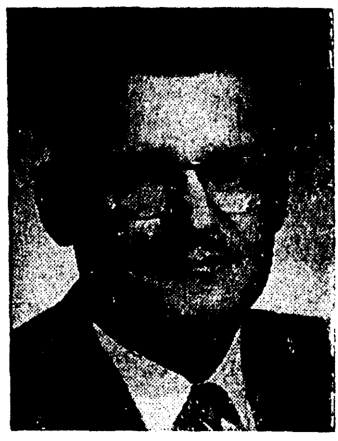
Beginning February 23 and continuing through March 2, the College Place Baptist church will be in revival services. Dr. Robert G. Lee, internationally known pastor and evangelist, will be the speaker beginning on Monday night, February 2. Dr. Lee, former pastor of the First Baptist Church of New Orleans, has now been pastor of the Bellevue Baptist Church of Memphis, Tenn. for 31 years. During this time, the membership of the church has grown from 100 to almost 10,000. The total additions to this church during these 31 years have been 22,221 and over 7,000 of these have been upon profession of their faith in Christ.

Dr. Lee has a radio ministry over four stations in the Memphis area and has a half-hour program on a Memphis television station. He is the author of some 25 books. Hundreds of magazine articles and numerous booklets have been written by this man during these 31 years at Bellevue.

His church has been willing to share him with the world and he has made many trips around the world. In 1948. Dr. Lee was elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention and was reelected on two succeeding years, an unprecedented event in Southern Baptist history. He is in demand all over the country as speaker at conventions, Bible conferences, youth meetings, revival meetings, state and convention assemblies and evangelistic conferences. The city of Monroe is fortunate to have this man in the city in one of their churches for these days.

Highland To Break Ground For Edifice

The Highland Park Baptist Church located on Roberts Avenue at Orleans Street in Monroe, La., will break ground for a new building on Sunday, Feb. 23 at the conclusion of the morning worship service. The building to be constructed of solid masonry will have a total of 8800 square feet of floor space. This total includes about 2000 square feet of covered walks. Included in the building will be space for a modern nursery suite, Beginner Department and Primary Department. Also included in the building will be a temporary sanctuary with seating capacity of 300. A modern, properly designed baptistry is planned for the temporary sanctuary. All of the building will be air conditioned.



CHARLES B. THOMPSON

Allen Turpin designed the building. Ira Cagle, Sr. is the general contractor. The Monroe Building and Loan Association will finance the job.

The cost of the project is $63,064.00. When the building is complete the total value of Highland Park Baptist Church property will be in excess of $100,000.

Rev. Charles B. Thompson is the first and only pastor of the church. This church is the result of work begun by the Parkview Baptist Church in 1953.

Mission Work To Be Theme Sunday

Mrs. Clyde B. Stuntz will be the guest speaker at the sharing session of the church - wide mission study at McGuire Methodist Church next Sunday evening. The program will get under way with a fellowship covered dish supper for the entire family beginning at 6 p.m.

At about 6:30 or 7 p.m., Mrs. Stuntz will speak to the entire group out of her intimate acquaintance with missions and missionaries.

Born the daughter of a Methodist minister, Mrs. Stuntz married a Methodist minister, and the two of them went out to India as missionaries in 1915. After learning the Urdu language, and with the city of Lahore as the center from which the couple worked, she began a varied ministry with the Indian people. In addition to caring for her own home and family which came to include four children, she found time to assist her husband in his work in the Boy's School, direct the ill to proper sources for the right type medical treatment. Later she headed the Biology Dept. and taught pre-med students for two years at Foreman Christian College. During World War II and the fateful years of partition of India she did practical nursing, and personally assisted in the establishment of two hospitals, the United Christian Hospital, and the Landaur Hospital.

MY ANSWER

By Billy Graham

QUESTION: I was recently converted, and have been trying my best to get my wife converted. So far all I get is a sarcastic reply. She says it won't last, and that I had better live it before I start preaching to her. Would you write her a letter or have someone do so because I would like to have her experience what I did. M. A. D.

ANSWER: It is well that you desire so much the conversion of your wife. Every true believer seeks especially the salvation of his loved ones. Quite often, however, such things are the least understood in the home. Prehaps your wife is sincere when she says it may not last. I would offer these suggestions. First, give her a demonstration of what the Christian life is before you begin to persuade her too much. She will wonder what has taken place when she sees the change working out in everyday life. It won't be long until she will know that it is a lasting change, and then she will desire what you have found in Christ. Read I Peter 3:1 Second, show her that a Christian husband is far better than a non - Christian husband. All of the virtues of manhood are raised to the highest in the life of one who is surrendered to Christ. Finally, pray for her. More things are wrought through prayer than this world dreams of. God will answer your request in due time and you will have the joy of seeing her converted and your prayers answered.

Doctor Irma Jones To Get High Honor

Southside Methodist church is going all out to do honor to an outstanding supporter of the church, one who has ever been stalwartly behind this organization whenever occasion required. The pastor and church board are, at the 10:50 morning service today to recognize this wonderful woman by naming the main sanctuary, the Irma Jones Chapel. The sermon of dedication will be preached by the Rev. James T. Harris, district superintendent of local Methodist churches.

A bit of history of this consecrated and highly successful professional and church woman will be told. She was born in Bonita in 1896 and graduated at Southwestern college in 1916. She was wed to Dr. W. E. Jones Sept. 2, 1922 and completed her medical course at Tulane in 1924.

Both Dr. Irma Jones and her husband practiced their profession in Monroe all of their married life up to late in 1957. They are parents of an only daughter, Mrs. Frank Reilly, of Columbia, S. C.

Before its inception and at the starting of operations of this badly - needed Southside Methodist church, Dr. Irma was a steadfast supporter. She carried her membership in the Monroe First Methodist church but she was made honorary member of the Southside Methodist Church. She never wavered in her devotion to both churches.

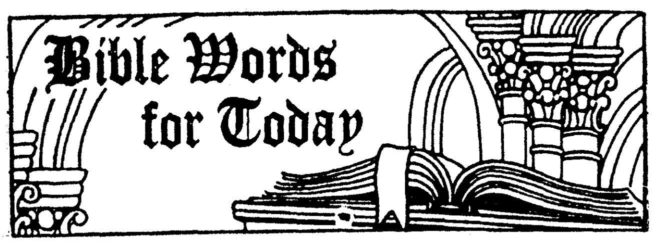
Her guidance in the affairs of this new church has been ever devoted to the great cause it represents and her pocket book has been open to help in the financial needs of the Southside.

Dr. Irma in her professional life is member of the Ouachita Parish Medical society; Louisiana State Medical society, the American Medical association and is on the staffs of St. Francis Hospital and the E. A. Conway Memorial hospital here. Incidentally Dr. Irma has proved a great help to many families when illness has occurred and she is known to have been unusually generous when cases of need came within the scope of her professional skill.

All who know Dr. Irma are deeply appreciative of her unusual nature, so consecrated to her profession, and to Methodism generally.

Naming of the beautiful chapel for her is regarded as a tribute that is timely and highly fitting.

Members of the local medical profession are cordially invited to attend the dedicatory exercises as are members of the nursing profession and all others interested in Southside Methodist Church.



PSALM 139:8 — "If I ascend to heaven, thou art there! If I make my bed in Sheol, thou art there!" (RSV)

* * *

The God of the Bible is the "hound of heaven" who tracks man relentlessly in whatever "heavens" or "hells" man may construct for himself.

This news is both comforting and disturbing. It is comforting in that neither "height nor depth nor anything else in all creation will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord." (Romans 8:39) It is disturbing in that there is no height or depth where a man is free from the claims of God upon him.

Whether we experience the "news" as "comfort" or as "disturbance," it is a truth — that not so simple lesson we learned in childhood, that "God is everywhere."

Mormons In Election Of New Officers

Francis Marion Hatcher of Monroe has been named as president of the Monroe Branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, it was announced this week, succeeding Travis T. Tynes who has been called as an officer in the North Louisiana District. A convert to the church in 1941, Elder Hatcher has been active in the church ever since becoming a member for he has served as First Councillor to two Sunday School superintendents for a total of eight years, as First Councillor to the Branch President four years, as Second Councillor to the Branch President three years, and as Priesthood supervisor for the Monroe Branch from 1944 until 1954. A native of East Baton Rouge Parish, he has been a resident of Monroe for the past 25 years, and has owned and operated his own business here since 1939. He is married to the former Mrs. Barbara Raiford Tynes of Sabine parish.

Named as Elder Hatcher's assistants were Raymond R. Rugg as First Councillor, Charles M. Wade, as Second Councillor, and Dan L. Caldwell as Branch Clerk.

Elder Raymond R. Rugg, a native of Union Parish, served as Branch Clerk and First Councillor to the Branch Presidency in the Farmerville Branch, before coming to Monroe in 1952. Since that time he has been most active in the youth's Mutual Improvement association of the church both in the Monroe Branch and on a district level. He has also served as Sunday School superintendent, and just this week has been called to head the Mutual Improvement Association of the North Louisiana District. Mr. Rugg was in the U. S. Army during 1944-46 serving in the European Theatre of operations. He has since been employed by a local carbon company for ten years, and at present is employed by the United States Postal Service. He and his wife, the former Euna Gates, have four sons, Charles Ramsey, Walter Pierce, John Wayne, and Phillip Randall. During the past few years Mr. Rugg has been active with the Monroe Recreation Department managing one of the Little League Baseball teams.

Elder Wade, a recent convert to the church in 1951, has served as Second Councillor to the branch presidency since 1953. A native of Kentucky, he has resided in Monroe the past ten years during which time he has been employed by a local stave mill. He married the former Alma Wilkins and they have four children and eleven grandchildren.

Elder Dan Caldwell, an excellent teacher by the lecture method, has taught consistently in the various organizations of the church since his conversion in 1943.

Other officers of the newly organized branch are: Relief Society president, Mrs. L. T. Bivins; Mutual Improvement Association, president, Mre. Joe B. Smith; Sunday School superintendent, Thomas Larkin Bayles; Primary president, Mrs. Raymond Rugg; Genealogy supervisor, Mrs. F. M. Curtis.

All officers in the Latter-Day Saint Church are volunteer workers receiving no monetary aid for their services.

Lewis Thomas Bivins, of Monroe, has been named as president of the North Louisiana district of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter - Day Saints, it is announced. He succeeds John Milton Belisle of Many, a member of the House of Representatives from Sabine parish, in this position.

Elder Bivins has served as the first Sunday school superintendent in Monroe, as the first branch president of the Monroe branch during 1944 through June of 1947, and since that time has served in various capacities in the North Louisiana district organization.

Names as his assistants were Gilbert Conner of Winnfield, as first councillor, and Travis T. Tynes, of Monroe, as second councillor. The new district clerk, Jerrell Hudnall, is also of Monroe.

Elder Tynes, has served as president of the Monroe Branch for the past ten and one-half years. Mr. Tynes, who is a native of Sabine parish, has been a partner in a local business firm for the past twelve years. He has been an instructor for the Ouachita Valley Vocational school for ten years, is a member of the Sheet Metal Workers Apprenticeship committee, Union Local 503, and is presently serving on the Board of Directors for the Ouachita Genealogical and Historical society. He is married to the former Doris Whitaker of Monroe and they have four children, Barbara Louise, Travis Tilmon Jr., Kenneth Wayne, and John Marion.

Jerrell Hudnall, who holds the office of Priest in the Aaronic Priesthood, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Hudnall of Monroe. He is a student of Ouachita Parish High school where he is majoring in art, English and history. Jerrell, a native of Gilmer, Texas, has already served as president of the Mutual Improvement Association in the Monroe branch and as a councillor to the district Sunday School superintendent for the past two years.

T. L. OSBORN

3 Day Mission Leader Will Open Meets

Rev. T. L. Osborn and his wife will initiate a three - day missionary crusade in the West Monroe High School auditorium starting Friday, February 28. For 18 years this mission worker has spent more than 18 years traveling around the globe preaching the gospel.

He will show his feature-length missionary film, "Black Gold" at 7:30 p.m. Saturday night. Services are set for 2:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday afternoon. The public is cordially invited.

For almost two years, Evangelist T. L. Osborn and his wife have been conducting great missionary evangelistic crusades among the people of 28 foreign countries. He has preached to fetish worshippers of Africa, Buddhists in China and Siam, Shintoists and infidels in Japan, Catholics in South America, Moslems in Java and Africa and Hindus in Kenya and India. Over 70 crusades have been held, with crowds exceeding 50,000 attending many of the services. He has preached in countries from Alaska to Chile and in almost every free nation from east to west around the world. It is doubtful if any person living today has exerted a greater influence upon the mission fields than T. L. Osborn.

He will be in the United States for about three months, conducting 3-day crusades in a number of the larger cities. These will be his first crusades in the Americas since 1953, when he began devoting most of his time and efforts to evangelism abroad.

One of the outstanding features of these 3-day crusades will be the premier showing of his new film, "Black Gold," a complete feature-length sound film in gorgeous, full color. Audiences will see cruel, pagan practices, multitudes who gathered to hear T. L. Osborn, thousands of conversions and many other things that happened as they actually occurred, never shown on any film before.

T. L. Osborn was born in Oklahoma, 34 years ago, of Baptist parents. With very little education (his total schooling did not exceed 9 years) he began preaching at the age of 15. For over 18 years, he has traveled around the world preaching the gospel. He is inter - denominational; his meetings are backed by almost every denomination in the foreign lands. He travels with his wife, Daisy, and his two children, Tommy and Donna. Each campaign pays it's own expenses, although the money for food and travel fares is provided through gifts from the American people.

His foreign crusades are held in race tracks, bull fighting arenas, ball parks and other open areas where a large platform can be erected. This is necessary, because the crowds are usually far too large to be accommodated by any indoor auditorium. Few of those who attend his meetings abroad know anything about Christianity and are reluctant to enter a church building, but quickly respond when the meetings are conducted in a public gathering place.

"Mind" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, February 12, 1958

The Golden Text is: "Behold. God is mighty, and despiseth not any: he is mighty in strength and wisdom." (Job 36:5).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all." (1 John 1:5).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Metaphysics, as revealed to spiritual understanding, shows clearly that all is Mind, and that Mind is God, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience, —that is, all power, all presence, all science.

DR. R. G. LEE

Noted Dr. R. G. Lee To Hold Meet Here

Beginning February 23 and continuing through March 2, the College Place Baptist church will be in revival services. Dr. Robert G. Lee, internationally known pastor and evangelist, will be the speaker beginning on Monday night, February 2. Dr. Lee, former pastor of the First Baptist Church of New Orleans, has now been pastor of the Bellevue Baptist Church of Memphis, Tenn. for 31 years. During this time, the membership of the church has grown from 100 to almost 10,000. The total additions to this church during these 31 years have been 22,221 and over 7,000 of these have been upon profession of their faith in Christ.

Dr. Lee has a radio ministry over four stations in the Memphis area and has a half-hour program on a Memphis television station. He is the author of some 25 books. Hundreds of magazine articles and numerous booklets have been written by this man during these 31 years at Bellevue.

His church has been willing to share him with the world and he has made many trips around the world. In 1948, Dr. Lee was elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention and was reelected on two succeeding years, an unprecedented event in Southern Baptist history. He is in demand all over the country as speaker at conventions, Bible conferences, youth meetings, revival meetings, state and convention assemblies and evangelistic conferences. The city of Monroe is fortunate to have this man in the city in one of their churches for these days.

Highland To Break Ground For Edifice

The Highland Park Baptist Church located on Roberts Avenue at Orleans Street in Monroe, La., will break ground for a new building on Sunday, Feb. 23 at the conclusion of the morning worship service. The building to be constructed of solid masonry will have a total of 8800 square feet of floor space. This total includes about 2000 square feet of covered walks. Included in the building will be space for a modern nursery suite, Beginner Department and Primary Department. Also included in the building will be a temporary sanctuary with seating capacity of 300. A modern, properly designed baptistry is planned for the temporary sanctuary. All of the building will be air conditioned.

CHARLES B. THOMPSON

Allen Turpin designed the building. Ira Cagle, Sr. is the general contractor. The Monroe Building and Loan Association will finance the job.

The cost of the project is $63,064.00. When the building is complete the total value of Highland Park Baptist Church property will be in excess of $100,000.

Rev. Charles B. Thompson is the first and only pastor of the church. This church is the result of work begun by the Parkview Baptist Church in 1953.

Mission Work To Be Theme Sunday

Mrs. Clyde B. Stuntz will be the guest speaker at the sharing session of the church - wide mission study at McGuire Methodist Church next Sunday evening. The program will get under way with a fellowship covered dish supper for the entire family beginning at 6 p.m.

At about 6:30 or 7 p.m., Mrs. Stuntz will speak to the entire group out of her intimate acquaintance with missions and missionaries.

Born the daughter of a Methodist minister, Mrs. Stuntz married a Methodist minister, and the two of them went out to India as missionaries in 1915. After learning the Urdu language, and with the city of Lahore as the center from which the couple worked, she began a varied ministry with the Indian people. In addition to caring for her own home and family which came to include four children, she found time to assist her husband in his work in the Boy's School, direct the ill to proper sources for the right type medical treatment. Later she headed the Biology Dept. and taught pre-med students for two years at Foreman Christian College. During World War II and the fateful years of partition of India she did practical nursing, and personally assisted in the establishment of two hospitals, the United Christian Hospital, and the Landaur Hospital.

MY ANSWER

By Billy Graham

QUESTION: I was recently converted, and have been trying my best to get my wife converted. So far all I get is a sarcastic reply. She says it won't last, and that I had better live it before I start preaching to her. Would you write her a letter or have someone do so because I would like to have her experience what I did. M. A. D.

ANSWER: It is well that you desire so much the conversion of your wife. Every true believer seeks especially the salvation of his loved ones. Quite often, however, such things are the least understood in the home. Prehaps your wife is sincere when she says it may not last. I would offer these suggestions. First, give her a demonstration of what the Christian life is before you begin to persuade her too much. She will wonder what has taken place when she sees the change working out in everyday life. It won't be long until she will know that it is a lasting change, and then she will desire what you have found in Christ. Read I Peter 3:1 Second, show her that a Christian husband is far better than a non - Christian husband. All of the virtues of manhood are raised to the highest in the life of one who is surrendered to Christ. Finally, pray for her. More things are wrought through prayer than this world dreams of. God will answer your request in due time and you will have the joy of seeing her converted and your prayers answered.

Doctor Irma Jones To Get High Honor

Southside Methodist church is going all out to do honor to an outstanding supporter of the church, one who has ever been stalwartly behind this organization whenever occasion required. The pastor and church board are, at the 10:50 morning service today to recognize this wonderful woman by naming the main sanctuary, the Irma Jones Chapel. The sermon of dedication will be preached by the Rev. James T. Harris, district superintendent of local Methodist churches.

A bit of history of this consecrated and highly successful professional and church woman will be told. She was born in Bonita in 1896 and graduated at Southwestern college in 1916. She was wed to Dr. W. E. Jones Sept. 2, 1922 and completed her medical course at Tulane in 1924.

Both Dr. Irma Jones and her husband practiced their profession in Monroe all of their married life up to late in 1957. They are parents of an only daughter, Mrs. Frank Reilly, of Columbia, S. C.

Before its inception and at the starting of operations of this badly - needed Southside Methodist church, Dr. Irma was a steadfast supporter. She carried her membership in the Monroe First Methodist church but she was made honorary member of the Southside Methodist Church. She never wavered in her devotion to both churches.

Her guidance in the affairs of this new church has been ever devoted to the great cause it represents and her pocket book has been open to help in the financial needs of the Southside.

Dr. Irma in her professional life is member of the Ouachita Parish Medical society; Louisiana State Medical society, the American Medical association and is on the staffs of St. Francis Hospital and the E. A. Conway Memorial hospital here. Incidentally Dr. Irma has proved a great help to many families when illness has occurred and she is known to have been unusually generous when cases of need came within the scope of her professional skill.

All who know Dr. Irma are deeply appreciative of her unusual nature, so consecrated to her profession, and to Methodism generally.

Naming of the beautiful chapel for her is regarded as a tribute that is timely and highly fitting.

Members of the local medical profession are cordially invited to attend the dedicatory exercises as are members of the nursing profession and all others interested in Southside Methodist Church.

Mormons In Election Of New Officers

Francis Marion Hatcher of Monroe has been named as president of the Monroe Branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, it was announced this week, succeeding Travis T. Tynes who has been called as an officer in the North Louisiana District. A convert to the church in 1941, Elder Hatcher has been active in the church ever since becoming a member for he has served as First Councillor to two Sunday School superintendents for a total of eight years, as First Councillor to the Branch President four years, as Second Councillor to the Branch President three years, and as Priesthood supervisor for the Monroe Branch from 1944 until 1954. A native of East Baton Rouge Parish, he has been a resident of Monroe for the past 25 years, and has owned and operated his own business here since 1939. He is married to the former Mrs. Barbara Raiford Tynes of Sabine parish.

Named as Elder Hatcher's assistants were Raymond R. Rugg as First Councillor, Charles M. Wade, as Second Councillor, and Dan L. Caldwell as Branch Clerk.

Elder Raymond R. Rugg, a native of Union Parish, served as Branch Clerk and First Councillor to the Branch Presidency in the Farmerville Branch, before coming to Monroe in 1952. Since that time he has been most active in the youth's Mutual Improvement association of the church both in the Monroe Branch and on a district level. He has also served as Sunday School superintendent, and just this week has been called to head the Mutual Improvement Association of the North Louisiana District. Mr. Rugg was in the U. S. Army during 1944-46 serving in the European Theatre of operations. He has since been employed by a local carbon company for ten years, and at present is employed by the United States Postal Service. He and his wife, the former Euna Gates, have four sons, Charles Ramsey, Walter Pierce, John Wayne, and Phillip Randall. During the past few years Mr. Rugg has been active with the Monroe Recreation Department managing one of the Little League Baseball teams.

Elder Wade, a recent convert to the church in 1951, has served as Second Councillor to the branch presidency since 1953. A native of Kentucky, he has resided in Monroe the past ten years during which time he has been employed by a local stave mill. He married the former Alma Wilkins and they have four children and eleven grandchildren.

Elder Dan Caldwell, an excellent teacher by the lecture method, has taught consistently in the various organizations of the church since his conversion in 1943.

Other officers of the newly organized branch are: Relief Society president, Mrs. L. T. Bivins; Mutual Improvement Association, president, Mre. Joe B. Smith; Sunday School superintendent, Thomas Larkin Bayles; Primary president, Mrs. Raymond Rugg; Genealogy supervisor, Mrs. F. M. Curtis.

All officers in the Latter-Day Saint Church are volunteer workers receiving no monetary aid for their services.

Lewis Thomas Bivins, of Monroe, has been named as president of the North Louisiana district of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter - Day Saints, it is announced. He succeeds John Milton Belisle of Many, a member of the House of Representatives from Sabine parish, in this position.

Elder Bivins has served as the first Sunday school superintendent in Monroe, as the first branch president of the Monroe branch during 1944 through June of 1947, and since that time has served in various capacities in the North Louisiana district organization.

Names as his assistants were Gilbert Conner of Winnfield, as first councillor, and Travis T. Tynes, of Monroe, as second councillor. The new district clerk, Jerrell Hudnall, is also of Monroe.

Elder Tynes, has served as president of the Monroe Branch for the past ten and one-half years. Mr. Tynes, who is a native of Sabine parish, has been a partner in a local business firm for the past twelve years. He has been an instructor for the Ouachita Valley Vocational school for ten years, is a member of the Sheet Metal Workers Apprenticeship committee, Union Local 503, and is presently serving on the Board of Directors for the Ouachita Genealogical and Historical society. He is married to the former Doris Whitaker of Monroe and they have four children, Barbara Louise, Travis Tilmon Jr., Kenneth Wayne, and John Marion.

Jerrell Hudnall, who holds the office of Priest in the Aaronic Priesthood, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Hudnall of Monroe. He is a student of Ouachita Parish High school where he is majoring in art, English and history. Jerrell, a native of Gilmer, Texas, has already served as president of the Mutual Improvement Association in the Monroe branch and as a councillor to the district Sunday School superintendent for the past two years.

T. L. OSBORN

3 Day Mission Leader Will Open Meets

Rev. T. L. Osborn and his wife will initiate a three - day missionary crusade in the West Monroe High School auditorium starting Friday, February 28. For 18 years this mission worker has spent more than 18 years traveling around the globe preaching the gospel.

He will show his feature-length missionary film, "Black Gold" at 7:30 p.m. Saturday night. Services are set for 2:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday afternoon. The public is cordially invited.

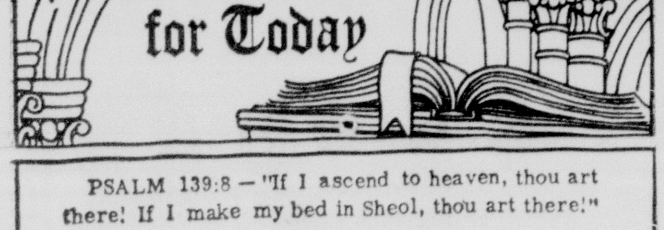
For almost two years, Evangelist T. L. Osborn and his wife have been conducting great missionary evangelistic crusades among the people of 28 foreign countries. He has preached to fetish worshippers of Africa, Buddhists in China and Siam, Shintoists and infidels in Japan, Catholics in South America, Moslems in Java and Africa and Hindus in Kenya and India. Over 70 crusades have been held, with crowds exceeding 50,000 attending many of the services. He has preached in countries from Alaska to Chile and in almost every free nation from east to west around the world. It is doubtful if any person living today has exerted a greater influence upon the mission fields than T. L. Osborn.

He will be in the United States for about three months, conducting 3-day crusades in a number of the larger cities. These will be his first crusades in the Americas since 1953, when he began devoting most of his time and efforts to evangelism abroad.

One of the outstanding features of these 3-day crusades will be the premier showing of his new film, "Black Gold," a complete feature-length sound film in gorgeous, full color. Audiences will see cruel, pagan practices, multitudes who gathered to hear T. L. Osborn, thousands of conversions and many other things that happened as they actually occurred, never shown on any film before.

T. L. Osborn was born in Oklahoma, 34 years ago, of Baptist parents. With very little education (his total schooling did not exceed 9 years) he began preaching at the age of 15. For over 18 years, he has traveled around the world preaching the gospel. He is inter - denominational; his meetings are backed by almost every denomination in the foreign lands. He travels with his wife, Daisy, and his two children, Tommy and Donna. Each campaign pays it's own expenses, although the money for food and travel fares is provided through gifts from the American people.

His foreign crusades are held in race tracks, bull fighting arenas, ball parks and other open areas where a large platform can be erected. This is necessary, because the crowds are usually far too large to be accommodated by any indoor auditorium. Few of those who attend his meetings abroad know anything about Christianity and are reluctant to enter a church building, but quickly respond when the meetings are conducted in a public gathering place.



Bible Words for Today

PSALM 139:8 — "If I ascend to heaven, thou art there! If I make my bed in Sheol, thou art there!" (RSV)

* * *

The God of the Bible is the "hound of heaven" who tracks man relentlessly in whatever "heavens" or "hells" man may construct for himself.

This news is both comforting and disturbing. It is comforting in that neither "height nor depth nor anything else in all creation will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord." (Romans 8:39) It is disturbing in that there is no height or depth where a man is free from the claims of God upon him.

Whether we experience the "news" as "comfort" or as "disturbance," it is a truth — that not so simple lesson we learned in childhood, that "God is everywhere."

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

AMBITIOUS!

McKeithen Hopes Are Reiterated

By BRYCE MILLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

BATON ROUGE, La. — Public Service Commissioner John J. McKeithen is ambitious. He says so himself. He wants to be the next governor of Louisiana. He thinks the current rate fight with Southern Bell Telephone Company may help him move into the governor's mansion in 1960.

McKeithen is a successful attorney. He heads a law firm with offices in Monroe and Columbia, his home town. He is a successful was elected on a platform of re- was elected on a platform of r-e ducing telephone rates — and he has done that. It's not enough. He wants to succeed Earl Long as chief executive of Louisiana.

Ambitious

"I'm ambitious, but not overly ambitious," he said. "Politics is sideline with me. I've got a pretty good law practice and it comes first. If I had to depend on politics for a living, I'd go hungry."

The tall lanky commissioner, a man with the poise, grace and good looks of Hollywood's best, was tired Friday as he lounged against the wall of a corridor outside the courtroom where the commission was in session. The tedious testimony in a flood of minor rate cases had been going on for two days now, and he was anxious to return home.

An interview gave him time for a breather. He seemed to welcome it. He shed his weariness as he talked in a soft, vibrant voice about the coming governor's race.

Next Wednesday, McKeithen returns to Baton Rouge to hear a continuation of the case that has served as his main claim to statewide fame. It is the request by Southern Bell for an emergency $7 million rate increase for additional construction and expansion.

Platform

When McKeithen ran for public service commissioner, he was elected on the following platform: reduction in telephone rates; reduction of price of butane gas; expansion of rural telephone service; continuance of mail and passenger services and full-time public service commission office located within the district.

It may or may not be significant that the telephone rate reduction plank was placed first on his campaign publicity. He has accomplished the rate reduction. Now, the telephone company is back before him asking the commission to return part of the revenue taken away — and a little bit more.

McKeithen was asked point blank:

"Do you think that the telephone case before the commission and the previous action of the commission in regard to the telephone company is helping or hurting a possible bid for the governorship?"

"I think the majority of the people in the state are with me," he said. "And those who aren't will remember me as a fellow that did what he thought was right."

The race for governor is still two years off. It's way too early to announce, although it appears common knowledge McKeithen is one of the major potential candidates. To the next logical question "will you run" he gave the stock answer:

"I'm too busy trying to do a job as public service commissioner and help my wife raise six children to give too much thought at this time to running for another public office."

But, he added with a chuckle:

"I do think, however, that it is possible for a popular candidate to remain popular in office despite past performances."

If McKeithen runs, and there is little doubt that he intends to do just that, he will run as an independent or "Anti-Long" candidate.

Floor Leader

During the 1951 session, he was Gov. Earl Long's floor leader in the house, but had a falling out with the governor when Long was re-elected in 1956. McKeithen was one of the first to jump on Long after he was named to a third term for what McKeithen termed "outragous" tactics.

McKeithen thinks he will have a better chance as an independent.

"I think the public is becoming more independent in its voting. There is no doubt about it — the day of the machine politics in Louisiana is over."

McKeithen says it's too early to start talking of a platform, but said that "it would be one of the most progressive" ever offered in this state.

Sea Hates To Give Up The Dead In It

By TOM HORGAN

BOSTON, (AP) — The sea, that ageless seducer, lures many ships to her murky depths and, consistent with legend, hates to give up her dead.

Take the Navy supply ship Cyclops.

Bound from Rio de Janeiro to Baltimore with 30 aboard and a cargo of 10,800 tons of manganese, she left Barbadoes, B. W. I., after taking on some coal. She was never heard from again. No wireless messages, no calls of distress, no bits of wreckage. Nothing.

That was 40 years ago this week.

Despite long and exhaustive search by the Navy Department, no trace of the ship or cargo has ever been found.

There were theories and suspicions aplenty, bred by the wartime hysteria of the times. And, of course, the ghoulish pranksters had a nautical field day. Bottles washed up on various shores with notes of sabotage, enemy action and violent storm. Even a faked diary or two showed up, purporting to detail the fate to the Cyclops.

But in the end, the Navy ruled: "The disappearance of this ship has been one of the most baffling mysteries in the annals of the Navy, all attempts to locate her having proved unsuccessful. Many theories have been advanced, but none that satisfactorily accounts for her disappearance."

Since the advent of radio and with constant improvement in navigation devices, the number of vanished vessels has steadily declined, but enough still call at the port of missing ships to keep up the sea's air of unfathomable mystery.

The Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru had a radio, one of the first, a spark-gap set that the operator kept at long enough to tap out, 'danger like dagger now, come quick," before she disappeared.

Only the wildest guess could even estimate the number of ships that dropped from sight in the days before radio allowed time for a death gasp.

Since 1800, more than 200 wrecks have been identified and charted at a single location in the Atlantic—off Sable Island, often called the "Graveyard of the Atlantic." The treacherous island, low, sandy and roughly 20 miles long and four miles wide, is located about 110 miles southeast of Cape Canso, Nova Scotia. Its long reaching shoals are paved with the skeletons of many lost ships. The island is now inhabited mainly by wild horses, descended from animals that came ashore from long forgotten shipwrecks.

At least 100 known and a score or more unknown sunken hulls are littered along the Massachusetts coast, occasionally spewing up pieces of china and other cargo during violent storms.

Many of the ships that disappeared without trace during the era of mass immigration to the United States were loaded to the gunnels with passengers. The City of Glasgow sailed from England in 1854 with 480 passengers bound for Castle Garden, New York's huge immigration center in the days before Ellis Island. In 1870 the City of Boston embarked from Europe with 200 aboard. Neither was ever heard from again.

In the opposite direction, the Pacific sailed from New York in 1856 with 288 aboard and likewise disappeared.

Numbered among the missing are many fishing boats and private yachts, none perhaps more notable than the schooner Columbia, a new, swift and beautiful sailing vessel that was expected to represent Gloucester, Mass., in an international fisherman's race with Canada. The Columbia sailed from her home port in August, 1927, with a crew of 25, bound for the fishing banks. She was never again reported and is believed to have joined the graveyard fleet off Sable Island, taking with her the largest human toll in New England fishing history.

One of the sea's most baffling riddles concerns the disappearance of a crew and not a ship. This was the celebrated case of the Mary Celeste, bound from New York to Europe and found abandoned between the Azores and Portugal on Dec. 4, 1872.

Much fiction and fantasy has been woven about this famous ghost ship, but she remains to this day as unexplained as the disappearance of the Cyclops.

The Mary Celeste, when found, was not disabled in any way, had ample provisions and water and there was no evidence of fire, explosion, mutiny or piracy. Among the missing were Capt. S. Briggs, his wife, his 2-year-old daughter, and a full crew of eight. Also missing was her small boat.

The only clue, if such it can be called, was some evidence of hasty departure. The brig was under short sail, some canvas had been furled and some trailed on the deck. Crew members had left clothing behind, including boots and foul weather gear, and, perhaps significantly, their tobacco pipes. Where did they go? Why did they go?

The sea, sullen and cryptic, has yet to answer.

Speech, Hearing Clinic Slated

The fifth annual conference for students in or interested in speech and hearing therapy, sponsored by the clinic faculty and students at Louisiana State University, will be held in the Music and Dramatic Arts Building at Louisiana State University Thursday, March 6.

All college students and juniors and seniors in high schools throughout the state may attend.

The program will be built upon the same framework established in previous years. In the morning there will be a series of films depicting the various areas of speech correction and hearing.

The key program in the afternoon will be built around the area of hearing. Those closely associated with it are watching advances taken by the state department of health in promoting a hearing conservation program in Louisiana. Yet it is believed that comparatively few people know about the services that are now being offered.

Included also will be a "clinic in action" in which cases will be presented in the L. S. U. Speech and Hearing Clinic. The day will close with a coffee hour at which time the students will meet the day's guest. During the entire day there will be an exhibit of recent books, pamphlets and materials that are used in clinical work. All speech and hearing clinics in the state are invited to bring materials for this exhibit.

Sea Hates To Give Up The Dead In It

By TOM HORGAN

BOSTON, (AP) — The sea, that ageless seducer, lures many ships to her murky depths and, consistent with legend, hates to give up her dead.

Take the Navy supply ship Cyclops.

Bound from Rio de Janeiro to Baltimore with 30 aboard and a cargo of 10,800 tons of manganese, she left Barbadoes, B. W. I., after taking on some coal. She was never heard from again. No wireless messages, no calls of distress, no bits of wreckage. Nothing.

That was 40 years ago this week.

Despite long and exhaustive search by the Navy Department, no trace of the ship or cargo has ever been found.

There were theories and suspicions aplenty, bred by the wartime hysteria of the times. And, of course, the ghoulish pranksters had a nautical field day. Bottles washed up on various shores with notes of sabotage, enemy action and violent storm. Even a faked diary or two showed up, purporting to detail the fate to the Cyclops.

But in the end, the Navy ruled: "The disappearance of this ship has been one of the most baffling mysteries in the annals of the Navy, all attempts to locate her having proved unsuccessful. Many theories have been advanced, but none that satisfactorily accounts for her disappearance."

Since the advent of radio and with constant improvement in navigation devices, the number of vanished vessels has steadily declined, but enough still call at the port of missing ships to keep up the sea's air of unfathomable mystery.

The Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru had a radio, one of the first, a spark-gap set that the operator kept at long enough to tap out, 'danger like dagger now, come quick," before she disappeared.

Only the wildest guess could even estimate the number of ships that dropped from sight in the days before radio allowed time for a death gasp.

Since 1800, more than 200 wrecks have been identified and charted at a single location in the Atlantic—off Sable Island, often called the "Graveyard of the Atlantic." The treacherous island, low, sandy and roughly 20 miles long and four miles wide, is located about 110 miles southeast of Cape Canso, Nova Scotia. Its long reaching shoals are paved with the skeletons of many lost ships. The island is now inhabited mainly by wild horses, descended from animals that came ashore from long forgotten shipwrecks.

At least 100 known and a score or more unknown sunken hulls are littered along the Massachusetts coast, occasionally spewing up pieces of china and other cargo during violent storms.

Many of the ships that disappeared without trace during the era of mass immigration to the United States were loaded to the gunnels with passengers. The City of Glasgow sailed from England in 1854 with 480 passengers bound for Castle Garden, New York's huge immigration center in the days before Ellis Island. In 1870 the City of Boston embarked from Europe with 200 aboard. Neither was ever heard from again.

In the opposite direction, the Pacific sailed from New York in 1856 with 288 aboard and likewise disappeared.

Numbered among the missing are many fishing boats and private yachts, none perhaps more notable than the schooner Columbia, a new, swift and beautiful sailing vessel that was expected to represent Gloucester, Mass., in an international fisherman's race with Canada. The Columbia sailed from her home port in August, 1927, with a crew of 25, bound for the fishing banks. She was never again reported and is believed to have joined the graveyard fleet off Sable Island, taking with her the largest human toll in New England fishing history.

One of the sea's most baffling riddles concerns the disappearance of a crew and not a ship. This was the celebrated case of the Mary Celeste, bound from New York to Europe and found abandoned between the Azores and Portugal on Dec. 4, 1872.

Much fiction and fantasy has been woven about this famous ghost ship, but she remains to this day as unexplained as the disappearance of the Cyclops.

The Mary Celeste, when found, was not disabled in any way, had ample provisions and water and there was no evidence of fire, explosion, mutiny or piracy. Among the missing were Capt. S. Briggs, his wife, his 2-year-old daughter, and a full crew of eight. Also missing was her small boat.

The only clue, if such it can be called, was some evidence of hasty departure. The brig was under short sail, some canvas had been furled and some trailed on the deck. Crew members had left clothing behind, including boots and foul weather gear, and, perhaps significantly, their tobacco pipes. Where did they go? Why did they go?

The sea, sullen and cryptic, has yet to answer.

AMBITIOUS!

McKeithen Hopes Are Reiterated

By BRYCE MILLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

BATON ROUGE, La. — Public Service Commissioner John J. McKeithen is ambitious. He says so himself. He wants to be the next governor of Louisiana. He thinks the current rate fight with Southern Bell Telephone Company may help him move into the governor's mansion in 1960.

McKeithen is a successful attorney. He heads a law firm with offices in Monroe and Columbia, his home town. He is a successful was elected on a platform of re- was elected on a platform of r-e ducing telephone rates — and he has done that. It's not enough. He wants to succeed Earl Long as chief executive of Louisiana.

Ambitious

"I'm ambitious, but not overly ambitious," he said. "Politics is sideline with me. I've got a pretty good law practice and it comes first. If I had to depend on politics for a living, I'd go hungry."

The tall lanky commissioner, a man with the poise, grace and good looks of Hollywood's best, was tired Friday as he lounged against the wall of a corridor outside the courtroom where the commission was in session. The tedious testimony in a flood of minor rate cases had been going on for two days now, and he was anxious to return home.

An interview gave him time for a breather. He seemed to welcome it. He shed his weariness as he talked in a soft, vibrant voice about the coming governor's race.

Next Wednesday, McKeithen returns to Baton Rouge to hear a continuation of the case that has served as his main claim to statewide fame. It is the request by Southern Bell for an emergency $7 million rate increase for additional construction and expansion.

Platform

When McKeithen ran for public service commissioner, he was elected on the following platform: reduction in telephone rates; reduction of price of butane gas; expansion of rural telephone service; continuance of mail and passenger services and full-time public service commission office located within the district.

It may or may not be significant that the telephone rate reduction plank was placed first on his campaign publicity. He has accomplished the rate reduction. Now, the telephone company is back before him asking the commission to return part of the revenue taken away — and a little bit more.

McKeithen was asked point blank:

"Do you think that the telephone case before the commission and the previous action of the commission in regard to the telephone company is helping or hurting a possible bid for the governorship?'

"I think the majority of the people in the state are with me," he said. "And those who aren't will remember me as a fellow that did what he thought was right."

The race for governor is still two years off. It's way too early to announce, although it appears common knowledge McKeithen is one of the major potential candidates. To the next logical question "will you run" he gave the stock answer:

"I'm too busy trying to do a job as public service commissioner and help my wife raise six children to give too much thought at this time to running for another public office."

But, he added with a chuckle:

"I do think, however, that it is possible for a popular candidate to remain popular in office despite past performances."

If McKeithen runs, and there is little doubt that he intends to do just that, he will run as an independent or "Anti-Long" candidate.

Floor Leader

During the 1951 session, he was Gov. Earl Long's floor leader in the house, but had a falling out with the governor when Long was re-elected in 1956. McKeithen was one of the first to jump on Long after he was named to a third term for what McKeithen termed "outragous" tactics.

McKeithen thinks he will have a better chance as an independent.

"I think the public is becoming more independent in its voting. There is no doubt about it — the day of the machine politics in Louisiana is over."

McKeithen says it's too early to start talking of a platform, but said that "it would be one of the most progressive" ever offered in this state.

Speech, Hearing Clinic Slated

The fifth annual conference for students in or interested in speech and hearing therapy, sponsored by the clinic faculty and students at Louisiana State University, will be held in the Music and Dramatic Arts Building at Louisiana State University Thursday, March 6.

All college students and juniors and seniors in high schools throughout the state may attend.

The program will be built upon the same framework established in previous years. In the morning there will be a series of films depicting the various areas of speech correction and hearing.

The key program in the afternoon will be built around the area of hearing. Those closely associated with it are watching advances taken by the state department of health in promoting a hearing conservation program in Louisiana. Yet it is believed that comparatively few people know about the services that are now being offered.

Included also will be a "clinic in action" in which cases will be presented in the L. S. U. Speech and Hearing Clinic. The day will close with a coffee hour at which time the students will meet the day's guest. During the entire day there will be an exhibit of recent books, pamphlets and materials that are used in clinical work. All speech and hearing clinics in the state are invited to bring materials for this exhibit.

AS SHOW CLIMAX

Junior Livestock Auction Featured

DELHI (Special) — When area stockmen parade their animals before judges at the livestock show here this week, the prize money of previous shows will provide a point of measure for the exhibitors.

Last year's show saw two records established with a hog selling or $3.70 a pound and a fat lamb for $3.50. The prize hog was bought last year by Bryant James, president of the Farmerville State Bank. Owner Patricia Harvey, of Farmerville, got $547.50 for the champion. Freddy Wilson, owner of the champion lamb, received $332.50.

The year before, in 1956, Bruce Craven of the Morehouse 4-H received $172 from the sale of his grand champion barrow, while the champion fat lamb entered by Myles Hopkins of the Tensas 4-H brought $1.20 a pound for a total of $128.

Not all animals receiving grand champion awards are offered at the show's - end auction, but some are immediately loaded for the state spring livestock show in Baton Rouge.

Last year's grand champion bull, a 1,225 - pound Angus owned by Roger Boughton of Mangham, brought 50 cents a pound. The animal was in the junior division.

The 1956 show saw several red ribbon animals bringing good prices. Shirley Anderson, of the Richland parish 4-H got 60 cents a pound, $502.20, for her 837 pound Hereford steer.

At the close of last year's show, president W. P. Martin said, "It was the best show we have ever had."

He also remarked at that time, "and we will start work in the near future on the 1958 show."

From all early reports, work over the past year will be well rewarded this week.

BOATING FEATURED BY LIONS - - The Delhi Lions club float featured a boating crew pulling a water skier in the parade which marked the opening of the 17th annual show last year.

AS SHOW CLIMAX

Junior Livestock Auction Featured

DELHI (Special) — When area stockmen parade their animals before judges at the livestock show here this week, the prize money of previous shows will provide a point of measure for the exhibitors.

Last year's show saw two records established with a hog selling for $3.70 a pound and a fat lamb for $3.50. The prize hog was bought last year by Bryant James, president of the Farmerville State Bank. Owner Patricia Harvey, of Farmerville, got $647.50 for the champion. Freddy Wilson, owner of the champion lamb, received $332.50.

The year before, in 1956, Bruce Craven of the Morehouse 4-H received $172 from the sale of his grand champion barrow, while the champion fat lamb entered by Myles Hopkins of the Tensas 4-H brought $1.20 a pound for a total of $128.

Not all animals receiving grand champion awards are offered at the show's - end auction, but some are immediately loaded for the state spring livestock show in Baton Rouge.

Last year's grand champion bull, a 1,225 - pound Angus owned by Roger Boughton of Mangham, brought 50 cents a pound. The animal was in the junior division.

The 1956 show saw several red ribbon animals bringing good prices. Shirley Anderson, of the Richland parish 4-H got 60 cents a pound, $502.20, for her 837 pound Hereford steer.

At the close of last year's show, president W. P. Martin said, "It was the best show we have ever had."

He also remarked at that time, "and we will start work in the near future on the 1958 show."

From all early reports, work over the past year will be well rewarded this week.

BOATING FEATURED BY LIONS - - The Delhi Lions club float featured a boating crew pulling a water skier in the parade which marked the opening of the 17th annual show last year.

Anyone entering the showmanship contest must show either a fat steer or beef breeding animal when the contest is announced. The same applies to dairy and sheep. Swine showmanship will be in the arena at the time of judging.

Modification of past grading systems will be used. There will be four ribbon groups. All calves will be graded into the "purple ribbon," "blue ribbon," "red ribbon" and "white ribbon" groups. All calves below the white ribbon group will be placed in the unclassified group and will not receive premium money. White ribbon calves will be sold at the regular weekly auction commercial sale, held Wednesday at 1 p. m. during the show week.

For Junior Sale

Only purple, blue and red ribbon winners will be sold in the regular 4-H and FFA junior livestock sale Friday Feb. 28 in the sales arena.

The Rural Electrification Association awards a prize of $15 to the most deserving 4-H club member and $15 to the most deserving FFA representative in each of the parishes where the cooperative operates, Morehouse, East Carroll, West Carroll, Tensas, Madison, Richland and Franklin.

It was recommended by the board of directors of the livestock show that this money be offered for any of the activities the club members participate in and that the county agents, their assistants, and the home demonstration agents select the 4-H Club winners in their respective parishes. The vocational agriculture teachers will select the FFA winners.

West Crossett Negro Is Held After Shooting

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Arthur Warren, 45-year-old West Crossett Negro, was being held in the Hamburg County Jail on an open charge without bond last night in connection with the fatal shooting of George Leonard Hughes, Jr., Crossett Negro about 40.

Deputy Sheriff Wayde Parrott said he was driving by the Lewis Dance Hall on the outskirts of Crossett about 12:15 a.m. yesterday on a routine check when a crowd out front shouted, "There he goes — he shot him."

Parrott said he then followed the man the crowd had pointed out and picked up Warren on the edge of the surrounding wooded area.

Witnesses said the two Negroes were fighting over "an old grudge," and that Warren shot Hughes with a 32-calibre 5-shot revolver. Hughes was pronounced dead on arrival at the Crossett Health Center.

Many Features At Horse Show

DELHI (Special) — Lee Berwick of St. Joseph, superintendent of the quarter horse show in the livestock exposition here this week, said all animals to be shown must arrive not later than 5 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 25.

Man Arrested At Baton Rouge On Bank Count

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 22 (AP) — City detectives last night arrested a 28-year-old Elgin, Ill., man they said is wanted for the $2,500 armed robbery of a San Antonio, Tex., bank Wednesday.

Harold Bryant Smedley was taken without resistance in a local cafe. He was captured after detective Dempsey McMorris recognized him entering the cafe.

Officers said Smedley talked freely of the robbery of the Oppenheimer bank in downtown San Antonio, but refused to tell where the money is hidden or identify a man supposed to have helped him out in the robbery who in Smedley's words "chickened out."

Smedley described the robbery in detail, police said, even complaining newspaper reports were inaccurate.

Spiritual Preparation For The New Year

By GAYLE STORM

Movie and TV Star

My husband, Lee Bonnell, and I have a friend who has an effective formula for starting each day.

When he first awakens, he wriggles the toe of his right foot. When it moves obediently, he says aloud. "Thank God I'm alive." Then he opens his eyes.

It's with this sense of gratitude to God that our family tries to begin anything — a new day, a new project, or a new year.

New Year's Eve, for example, 's a very scared occasion for us because for the past six years we have chosen this time to sit down together and face our accomplishments and failures during the past year.

Written Down

Our objectives, written in a notebook for future reference, are broken down into five categories, an idea suggested by our friend, John Yates, who told us once: "Every so often I check myself in five areas — spiritual, physical, mental, social, and financial — to see if I'm growing in my Christian life."

Spiritual: We agreed upon the family custom of everybody joining hands around the dinner table while one of our three boys says a spontaneous grace.

Out of this has grown the habit of selecting whichever boy is most argumentative, tense, or tearful to give the blessing. There have been occasions when a full-blown tantrum has been rising and a young man has declared, "I can't I can't."

"Well, we'll wait till you can."

Bible Reading

As much as two minutes of silence has followed before a soft voice, all harshness gone, has given a simple thanks. Our boys have found it impossible to mix anger or tension with gratitude.

We also set times for meditation and prayer; a time for Bible reading, plus religious books. We outline spiritual truths to be shared with our sons, and pledge that if work prevents our being together, at least one of us will be with the boys each evening to hear their prayers.

A valuable addition to our spiritual plan came five years ago when we decided to get away together every three months for a private retreat. Two days would be devoted to meditation and prayer, while we made a progress report on our aims as set up the previous New Year's Eve. These quiet times we find invaluable.

'True Christians

Social: Our social growth has nothing to do with the Blue Book or Social Register.

We ask ourselves how close we are coming to being true Christians in our dealings with others? Do we bear false witness? Do we gossip? Do we indulge in or agree with destructive, negative conversation? Do we "go the second mile?"

When a friend is sick or in trouble, do we do nothing? Or do we climb into our car, armed with a jar of beef broth, and risk being thought silly or interfering to say, "Here I am if you need me?"

Physical: We concentrate on the idea that our bodies are temples of the living Spirit, that we have no right to defile them.

Release for Tension

Our health program includes setting-up exercises, proper sleep, intelligent eating both to promote health and to prevent self-indulgence.

For me there were added daily prayers to release myself from tension, to help me relax so that I could enjoy all parts of my life.

Mental: Each year we work out a general reading program. Last year it was biography. Each of us also tries to increase our working knowledge of our professions. Knowing that we are capable of doing more than we achieve, we constantly try to develop new skills.

Waited for New Home

Financial: Our objectives are solvency, security, never going over our heads, never ceasing to be grateful for what we have.

We plan and wait for certain things. A new home — a clean, airy, Chinese - style house on a hill, with room for us all — was in our financial plan for a long time. Today we are living in that house. Maybe it isn't yet finished just as we want it, but it has already grown from a dream to a blueprint to a house. Our yardstick requires progress, not perfection.

We wouldn't face a New Year without planning for it any more than we would build a new house without blueprints.

MONDAY — Pat Boone, singing star of records, TV and the movies, tells the one question he always asks when anything new comes up in his life.

Disabling eye injuries cost industry in the United States 20 million dollars annually, says the Better Vision Institute.

NO OTHER AMMONIUM NITRATE LIKE IT!

NEW Hi-D® and only Hi-D gives you all of these 8 big benefits

When you choose an economical source of supplemental nitrogen, be sure to look into the important combination of advantages supplied only by Hi-D. Made by an exclusive process, new Hi-D represents the latest development in nitrogen fertilizer. You get these 8 big benefits from Hi-D — and only from Hi-D.

1. Super Dryness. Hi-D is made by a patented process developed by Commercial Solvents Corporation. This entirely new manufacturing method removes all the moisture from Hi-D before the granules are formed.

2. High Density. Because of this new process, each Hi-D granule is of extremely high density. These hard, non-porous granules lock out moisture, even under humid field conditions. Hi-D is made dry — and stays dry.

3. Special-Shape Granules. Note the magnified granule. The unique shape and size are controlled so that distribution is even and accurate in all spreading operations. And Hi-D granules stay put on the ground.

4. Free Flow. Hi-D flows freely even on hot, sticky days. Because of its super dryness, high density, and special shape, Hi-D doesn't gum-up, doesn't stick, clog, cake or bridge.

5. Two Key Kinds of Nitrogen. You get nitrate nitrogen and ammonia nitrogen. One bag of Hi-D supplies as much nitrogen as 1½ bags of ammonium sulphate or 2 bags of sodium nitrate, yet costs less per unit of nitrogen.

6. Two-Speed Fertilizer Action. Hi-D supplies a total of 33.5% nitrogen in two equal "servings." 16.75% is nitrate nitrogen to get crops off to a fast vigorous start. And 16.75% is ammonia nitrogen to provide crops with a supplemental boost during the growing season.

7. Up to 25% More Nitrogen in the Hopper. Because Hi-D has less bulk than any other type of ammonium nitrate, you can get up to 25% more nitrogen in a normal hopper load—cover more ground per load. Hi-D saves storage space, too.

8. Guaranteed to Store a Full Year. Made dry. Delivered dry. And stays dry. So much so that Hi-D is guaranteed to store well, under normal conditions, for one full year.

Try Hi-D this year. Get all the advantages of the most up-to-date ammonium nitrate you can buy. See if you don't find it better than anything else you ever used. Remember, of course, that sound management calls first for soil testing, a liming program if needed, the mixed fertilizer your dealer recommends—and then the high-yield, pay-off boost of Hi-D. Call your dealer and order yours today!

NO OTHER
AMMONIUM NITRATE
LIKE IT!

NEW
Hi-D and only Hi-D
gives you all of these 8 big benefits

When you choose an economical source of supplemental nitrogen, be sure to look into the important combination of advantages supplied only by Hi-D. Made by an exclusive process, new Hi-D represents the latest development in nitrogen fertilizer. You get these 8 big benefits from Hi-D—and only from Hi-D.

1. Super Dryness. Hi-D is made by a patented process developed by Commercial Solvents Corporation. This entirely new manufacturing method removes all the moisture from Hi-D before the granules are formed.

2. High Density. Because of this new process, each Hi-D granule is of extremely high density. These hard, non-porous granules lock out moisture, even under humid field conditions. Hi-D is made dry—and stays dry.

3. Special-Shape Granules. Note the magnified granule. The unique shape and size are controlled so that distribution is even and accurate in all spreading operations. And Hi-D granules stay put on the ground.

4. Free Flow. Hi-D flows freely even on hot, sticky days. Because of its super dryness, high density, and special shape, Hi-D doesn't gum-up, doesn't stick, clog, cake or bridge.

5. Two Key Kinds of Nitrogen. You get nitrate nitrogen and ammonia nitrogen. One bag of Hi-D supplies as much nitrogen as 1½ bags of ammonium sulphate or 2 bags of sodium nitrate, yet costs less per unit of nitrogen.

6. Two-Speed Fertilizer Action. Hi-D supplies a total of 33.5% nitrogen in two equal "servings." 16.75% is nitrate nitrogen to get crops off to a fast vigorous start. And 16.75% is ammonia nitrogen to provide crops with a supplemental boost during the growing season.

7. Up to 25% More Nitrogen in the Hopper. Because Hi-D has less bulk than any other type of ammonium nitrate, you can get up to 25% more nitrogen in a normal hopper load—cover more ground per load. Hi-D saves storage space, too.

8. Guaranteed to Store a Full Year. Made dry. Delivered dry. And stays dry. So much so that Hi-D is guaranteed to store well, under normal conditions, for one full year.

Try Hi-D this year. Get all the advantages of the most up-to-date ammonium nitrate you can buy. See if you don't find it better than anything else you ever used. Remember, of course, that sound management calls first for soil testing, a liming program if needed, the mixed fertilizer your dealer recommends—and then the high-yield, pay-off boost of Hi-D. Call your dealer and order yours today!

Sundial Stands As A Monument To Another Era

City High Class Leaves Tribute

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

The sun beats down furiously on a group of students and their teacher as they carefully set in place a memorial - both for their school and their graduating class of 1931.

The final senior class to graduate from the Monroe City High school pays no attention to the endless hum of the katydids, or the dust rising from the loose, sandy soil.

They move rapidly, with a sense of accomplishment, as they carefully place a container into the concrete base of the memorial. In the wax-sealed container are the "Squeedunk" — the 1931 yearbook; a newspaper and a class ring.

Finally, the large, freshly-cut limestone memorial with a sundial on top is edged onto the base . . . and the girls in their short, straight dresses, the youths in knickers or long trousers, stand back and survey the memorial which will keep Monroe City High in the minds of all who glance at the sundial . . .

Nearly 27 years later, the sundial still stands in place at the corner of Jackson and Wood streets, and on northeast edge of the now-deserted Central Grammar School campus.

Today, cars hum past, mothers stroll slowly with children, high school students chatter gaily as they quickly pass the seldom - noticed sundial.

Knowing Smile

Those who were part of MCHS look up swiftly when the sundial is mentioned. A quick, knowing smile passes over their faces as they recall days at Monroe's first high school.

"We had a framework dinosaur, over fifty feet long, that we used to advertise football games" some remember, as the hand of time swirls quickly back to the late 1920's.

The dinosaur's frame was light - weight, and tightly-stretched old sheets were used to cover it, so that the body shape looked exactly like one of the huge, pre - historic reptiles.

Hollow inside, it had a long "platform" device which the high school boys rested on their shoulders. The leader, who was usually a cigar-smoking youth, held a fishing pole straight up . . . the dinosaur's head either was upright or slumped to the side, according to the angle of the fishing pole. A long, rubber garden hose attached to the dinosaur's nostrils came down within easy reach of the leader.

Monster Rattled

All the boys got in place, and they were ready to go. Down Jackson and DeSiard Streets, the monster rattled, as a ferocious advertisement for that week's football game.

Through slits in the sheet, the leader glimpsed a pretty girl who had not noticed the dinosaur . . . "slow up" came the order to the rest of the "monster" . . . "stop" . . . and suddenly a burst of cigar smoke and a dinosaur's head weaved down in front of the window - shopping miss.

"Those girls used to jump a mile when we did that," ex-students recall.

The days of the heavy yellow oilskin slickers . . . "If you had one of those slicker raincoats, you felt you were really part of The School."

The object was to decorate the slickers . . . with every possible catch - phrase and with autographs of other students. They were the heavy slickers, not like the flimsy material of today, and had high military collars with corduroy lining. A buckle was fastened in the front of the collar.

Outdoor basketball games . . . "We used to play basketball games outside the school on a cement court, before the regular gym was built. We didn't even notice the cold weather."

Mathematics, physics and chemistry were tough subjects . . . well learned. "I had only one failure in chemistry and one in physics, during 18 years," states former teacher W. C. Spight.

On the day when the sundial was put into place, the senior class also erected a flagpole . . . using blowtorches and packed ice.

Would Not Fit

The lower portion of the hollow flag pole was to form the outer support for the upper portion of the pole . . . but the top section was a fraction of an inch too wide and would not fit into the rest of the pole.

The physics and chemistry class went to work. Using blowtorches, they heated the lower metal to make it expand. Ice was packed into the inside of the other pole section, to cause it to contract.

"We slid the sections together — partway. Then it stuck," they say, with an apologetic grin.

"Go look at that flagpole—it never did slip down like it should have been," they admit, adding that it has held up for many years, perhaps as a tribute to the 'battle' waged on that May, 1931, day.

In front of the flagpole is the sundial.

"Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be," is inscribed on the metal sundial. A fierce-beaked eagle perches on the top, and shadows cast from th eagle's body fall upon the Roman numerals of the dial, indicating the time.

All four sides of the limestone base are inscribed and on the west side is a bronze plaque with the names of the cass. Several are well-known Monroe citizens . . . one is with a news bureau in London . . . some never again will walk near the monument.

Inscription

On the south side of the stone is inscribed: "To the honor of Mayor Arnold Bernstein, Supt. Ernest L. Neville and the City School Board members: Mrs. Theo Terzia, Will Faulk, T. E. Flournoy and J. M. Cobb, who have aided the growth of our Monroe city school system.

To the west is the Class Roll. Thirty-nine names, including 20 girls and 19 boys, are on the weather-scarred plaque.

In order, the names are: Hazel Bunn, Flora Carlock, Frances Cole, Mildred Courson, Ruth Easterling, Dorothy Fuller, Della Goodrich, Alma Green, Thelma Hargus, Evelyn Huey, Mary Elizabeth Jones, Elizabeth Kennedy, Ethel Livesay.

Freeda Mickel, Mayme Myers, Hortense Pope, Angie Scalia, Suzanne Sperry, Ella Pearl Sutton, Katherine White —these names appear on the first and second rows of the plaque.

Midway in the second row starts the names of the youths who graduated in 1931: Jack Allen, W. K. Anders, Jr., George Buckner, Faheam Cannon, James Cavaness, Howard Griffin, Henry Haas, Jr., Billy Hardcastle, Billy Higginbotham, Darrell Holt, Mike John, Jr., Paul Martin, Jack May, Thomas May, Charles Roddy, Arthur Surguine, Robert Tucker, Wayne Wamsley, Henry King Wolff.

Beneath the plaque is the engraving: Sponsored by the 1931 senior class of the Monroe City High School.

Memorial

On the north side are the words, "As a memorial to our high school building which was erected in 1900 by the administration of A. A. Forsythe."

"In recognition of the marvelous progress of the Monroe City School system since its founding in the year 1871 by an act of the legislature of the state of Louisiana," is on the east side.

Principal of the school was Mrs. Minnie Ruffin, E L. Neville was superintendent, and athletic coach was Paul Neal, now principal of Neville High School. "There was some argument about the inscriptions, Mr. Neville was afraid that the stone might look like a tombstone to him, and some other people not mentioned wanted to be honored, but it finally went through," former students chuckle.

Class officers of 1931 included Billy Hardcastle, president; Elizabeth Kennedy, vice president; Faheam Cannon, secretary and Alma Green, treasurer. The students realized that this was the last year in which a high school would be housed in the large, red-brick building. Construction was completed on the new Neville High School, and the changes brought about by time were being pointed out vividly to them.

A sundial to indicate the passage of time seemed the most suitable class gift which they could leave at their high school.

Now, the flagpole stretches skyward with rope pulled taut . . . flags no longer are raised onto it to float over the silent sundial. Nearby linden trees reach out leafless branches . . two cracked, dusty concrete walks on either side of the monument are unused.

Lost in time, the sundial patiently continues to indicate the hour on each sunny day . . . and occasionally someone walks hesitantly to it and looks at a memory of the past.

UNUSED SUNDIAL — Lost in time is this sundial, placed on the corner of Jackson and Wood Streets by the Monroe City High School class of 1931. Furor was raised midway in World War II, when dial disappeared. Police were alerted, Monroe residents feared it had been taken for scrap metal - a teacher who had taken it off to clean it replaced the sundial in a few days. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

CLASSROOM CRISIS

Teachers Have No 'Finest Hour' Now

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—In James Hilton's classic tribute to teachers, Mr. Chips has his finest hour soothing student fears while the bombs fall on Britain.

Today his real-life counterpart on this side of the ocean, whom a hard core of teen-aged terrorists scorn as "Mr. Chump," enjoys no such finest hour. But he does have his moments — swallowing his own fears when a stink bomb erupts in the closet or a bomb scare empties out the building.

Like Mr. Chips, he still hears his name fall from youthful lips as he arrives at school in the morning or heads for home at night. Only it's not quite the same. There's a sneer in the air now, and, too often an insult or obscenity implied if not brazenly expressed in the greeting.

"Mr. ——— is an S.O.B.," proclaims a lipstick inscription in the girls' lavatory at a Manhattan high school. It will be gone as soon as the janitor is called, but it will reappear tomorrow in a different place and in a different hand.

"Well, it could be worse," smiles the subject of the art work. "At least they called me mister."

Others have been called worse, far worse — not often to their faces, since this would call for official action — but in carvings on desks, in scrawled epithets on walls and in books, in jeering shouts down crowded stairways as classes move from place to place.

In confidential interviews with dozens of teachers, administrators policemen, janitors and others touched by the problem, it is apparent that times indeed have changed since Mr. Chips presided at the blackboard.

Dedicated men and women, willing to reconcile a teacher's pay with teaching rewards, have seen their college dreams of opening the doors of knowledge to some backward child dissolve into discipline.

Said a janitor in a junior high school: "The teachers just seem to have lost control. They're on the run."

Last year New York City spent more than a half-billion dollars educating some 950,000 children in its 918 public schools. In the same year, by police department figures, it counted 3,298 incidents of crime and violence on school property. Of these, 515 were felonies.

Nearly two out of every three schools counted at least one criminal incident, but some 50 schools, located in what sociologists call "culturally deprived" areas — usually Negro, Puerto Rican or racially changing neighborhoods —monopolized the list.

With the 1958 spring term barely underway, the list already includes three rapes, two knifings, a school gang caught plotting a bank robbery, a teacher fleeing to a closet from club brandishing youths, a monitor beaten unconscious in a cafeteria fight, an an assistant principal assigned to other duties because a gang threatened his life, exposure of a smut ring peddling poronography in the classroom.

The Board of Education estimates that only about one per cent of the students in its schools can be classified as hard-core trouble makers. But in a city the size of New York this means nearly 10,000 rough, tough customers.

The disciplinary problem moved presiding Judge John Warren Hill of the Domestic Relations Court to remark that "the Progressive Education system in the city's schools has gone haywire."

The issue stirred widespread attention when Principal George Goldfarb of Brooklyn's John Marshall Junior High School—where a 13-year-old girl had been raped —jumped to his death from his apartment house roof on the morning he was to appear for the third time before a special Brooklyn Grand Jury investigating school crime. The jury's recommendation that a policeman be assigned to every school was vigorously opposed by the Board of Education, but on the night before he died, Goldfarb had written a letter asking that his school be added to 40 others already under police protection.

With the board and the grand jury in sharp conflict over school crime, most teachers were extremely reluctant to talk, lest they be summoned before either body.

But in confidential interviews they blamed New York's woes on a variety of causes: broken homes, working parents, back-patting children's courts, a state law requiring school attendance until age 17, "starry-eyed educators" who think all children are educable, a "continuous progress" policy that promotes and even graduates children of low ability and performance, wishy-washy principals who would rather ignore crime than back up a teacher so as not to "spoil their record over at 110" (110 Livingston St., Brooklyn, headquarters of the Board of Education), a tendency to wink at everyday insubordination until "a whole school gets out of hand," diminishing student respect for teachers who have learned to live with insult, and the constantly shifting racial patterns in a city that last year gained 311,000 Negroes, 304,000 Puerto Ricans and lost 720,000 whites.

"Wheat Pit" in Minneapolis is one of the world's largest cash grain markets.

Union Group Opens Meeting

DENVER, Feb. 22 (AP)—The bargaining policy committee of the Oil, Chemical & Atomic Workers International Union (AFL-CIO) began a two-day meeting today.

The committee is expected to set goals for wages and other benefits for this year. The meeting was behind closed doors and officials declined any details of discussions so far.

Headquarters of the union here were closed today and will be closed Monday also in a delayed observation of Washington's Birthday.

One spokesman said he doubts whether any statement of decisions at the meeting will be forthcoming until tomorrow.

AGAINST GREAT ODDS

Louisiana Gave South Its Last Major Civil War Victory; Details Recalled

By JIMMY HATTEN
Staff Writer

In the spring of 1864, the South, fighting against tremendous odds, was a tired and battle weary force. But valiant Louisianians gave it its last major victory of the conflict in the largest Civil War contest west of the Mississippi River.

Led by the son of a former president of the United States, 11,000 Confederate troops routed 31,000 Union troops and saved for the time the Red River Valley, western Louisiana and Texas.

The southern leader was General Richard "Dick" Taylor, son of President (General) Zachary Taylor and the place was Mansfield, La.

The grey lines in that spring of long ago were thin and gaunt, marching on superior military leadership and courage . . . out-gunned, out-manned, but never out - fought.

Desperately needing a victory in hopes that England and France would rally to her cause, the South was outnumbered 3 to 1 against the Union which was striving to cut the Confederates's outside supply point, Mexico.

The Battle of Mansfield was the result.

Appeared Easy

It seemed an easy job to the Union to crush these scattered Rebels who were protecting parts of Louisiana west of the Atchafalaya, Black and Ouachita Rivers, a small part of western Arkansas and all of Texas under command of General Kirby Smith, headquartered in Shreveport.

The strategic Mississippi valley was controlled by Federal forces.

Making his way up the Red River with the largest inland land - sea force in U. S. history was General N. P. Banks who had set out from New Orleans to Shreveport with 33,000 Federal troops packed aboard 150 naval units manned by 10,000 men.

General Smith gave General Taylor strict orders not to engage in general action with the Union troops, but instead to draw the Federals against Shreveport's fortifications.

'Now or Never'

But Taylor, who had been advised by his scouts that Banks' advance was poorly coordinated with supply units trailing behind, declared it was "now or never."

The Confederate general pretended to retreat through Mansfield as Smith's 150 ships neared the town. The Federal general fell into the well planned trap.

Banks set up defensive units two and one - half miles to the south, intending to secure the area before chasing Taylor to Shreveport.

Then, with lightning fast action, Taylor placed his famed Louisiana Crescent Regiment under Col. J. H. Beard, and the Louisiana 18th and 28 Regiments, all under General Alfred Mouton, a Louisiana Frenchman on his left center.

Prince de Polignac, the "Lafayette of the South" and his dismounted cavalry guarded his left flank. General Tom Green and the Texas cavalry protected the right flank.

On the afternoon of April 8th, Mouton's Crescents and de Polignac forced a fight, hitting the center of the 130th Illinois Regiment. Every field officer on both sides fell, among them Col. Beard and General Mouton, who rushed forth to rally the leadership of the troops. General Taylor's horse was shot from beneth him.

De Polignac rallied the Crescents, and that day he won a Major general's commission. Federal cavalry, in hand - to-hand combat, were routed by Green's mounted Texans.

The Louisiana Crescents broke the back of the stubborn 138th Illinois and the other Federal units from Kentucky, Wisconsin and New York broke and ran through Banks' second line of defense which fled in panic.

The victory was made secure when Taylor's men captured most of the supply train abandoned in the wild flight and followed up with another win at Pleasant Hill.

Federals, returning to Natchitoches, found the river low and the navy stranded. They walked to Alexandria where a dam had to be constructed to re-float the navy.

The defeat was complete . . . final in the west for the duration of the war.

6,300 MILES ACHIEVED

Snark Missile Flights Set Impressive Record

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Reporter

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Manufacturers of the Northrop Snark guided missile said today the weapon now has a range of more than 6,300 miles. It heretofore has been credited with 5,000 miles.

Able to cruise for 10 hours at almost the speed of sound, the Snark was described as the only current weapon capable of low-altitude attack upon virtually any target in Soviet Russia.

A powerful tool for "massive intercontinental deterrent" purposes was the way Northrop Vice President John R. Alison of Los Angeles described it.

New or little known facts about the pilotless bomber were brought out by Alison and other Northrop aircraft officials at a briefing here designed to correct what they said was widespread misunderstanding of the Snark's mission and performance.

They said a new electronic device, specially installed on the Snark, can trick enemy radar into mistaking the fighter-size missile for the largest of the jet bombers. Thus Snarks can be flown ahead of a B52 bomber attack as decoys to cut down enemy interception of U. S. strategic bombers.

A big load carrier, they said the Snark can plunge a large thermonuclear warhead into enemy targets with "truly amazing accuracy."

Once it has left the ground, a Snark is on its own. A pre-set self-contained inertial guidance system directs it on a straight, zigzag, or looped course.

Although the Snark cannot be jammed by the enemy, it can be called back from its mission if a suspected enemy attack turns out to be a false alarm.

More than 50 Snarks have been launched from the Air Force Missile Test Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla. Altogether they have flown the equivalent of three times around the world at the equator.

Some of them, fitted with landing gear, have been brought back and landed and then flown again, as many as three times.

Other Snark test vehicles have been flown 1,800 miles down the missile test range into the West Indies and then turned around and dropped into waters near Florida so that instruments and other parts could be recovered.

Several of them—"more than three"—have been flown all the way to Ascension Island, 5,000 miles from Florida in the south Atlantic, since the test range was extended to Ascension last October. If they had been launched from Cape Canaveral in another direction, they could have struck Moscow.

Expressing concern at "the degree to which the weapons of the future have caught the public's imagination," Alison said:

"Although we believe the capability of the Snark is beginning to be recognized, there has been a tendency on the part of the public to consider weapons such as manned aircraft and missiles like the Snark as obsolescent.

"We look on the Snark as complementing and supplementing our present inventory of strategic manned bombers and as a transitional weapon between aircraft and ballistic missiles.

"This missile will be highly effective over the Soviet system well into the middle 1960s and far beyond.

"We believe the Snark can make a major contribution to United States security."

The Snark is 68 feet long and 15 feet high, has a 42-foot wing span, and weighs less than 50,000 pounds or about the same as an F89 Intercepter.

It is powered by a Pratt & Whitney J57, the same jet engine that is used on the eight-engine B52 heavy bomber.

It is launched from a mobile launching platform, by two 130,000-pound-thrust solid propellant rockets manufactured by Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, Cumberland, Md.

The Air Force research and development program on the Snark cost 400 million dollars, and Northrop has two production contracts totaling 143 million dollars.

Minnie Jean Arrives At N.Y. School

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—Minniejean Brown, 16-year-old Negro girl expelled from integrated Central High School in Little Rock, arrived today to enroll in a private interracial school.

Asked about incidents in Little Rock, Minniejean commented: "This is all in the past. I'd like to forget it. My education is the important thing."

She was greeted at LaGuardia Field by several Negro girls about her age who pinned pink orchids on her coat.

The plane which brought Minniejean, among the nine Negros first to enter Little Rock's Central High School last September, was checked carefully before it left Little Rock. American Airlines had received a report that a bomb had been placed aboard the craft. No bomb was found.

"I'm praying constantly for the other eight kids," Minniejean said after arriving here. "They need it."

Expelled from Central High after being involved in a series of racial incidents, she has received a full scholarship from the New Lincoln School, a private interracial institution here. She plans to begin classes Monday.

Russians Boast Of 'Great Power' In Naval Forces

MOSCOW (UP) — Soviet party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev donned his wartime army officer's uniform Saturday and warned "imperialist aggressors" that Russia was prepared to repel any attack on its territory.

Addressing a mass rally in honor of the 40th anniversary of the founding of the Red Army, Khrushchev pictured the Soviet armed forces as nearly invulnerable.

He said they had "all modern military equipment and everything necessary for reliable defense of the fatherland."

Russia's new defense minister, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, told the same rally that the Russians had the world's greatest naval power, capable of "destroying the naval force of the enemy on the seas and oceans" and attacking land bases.

Khrushchev was resplendent in uniform with the two gold stars of a lieutenant general on gold epaulets. There were five rows of decorations on his chest.

It was believed to be the first time he had worn the uniform in public since World War II.

Malinovsky accused the West of fomenting international tension through the arms race and "preparing war against the Soviet Union."

Russian military science, he said, has proved its "great superiority" over the west and is "steadily improving."

"The navy is equipped with all means for combat at sea," he said.

Scientist Sets Space Travel Timetable

By HAL McCLURE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of America's foremost suffers of moon madness is a tall, bespectacled scientist who, in his own words, "insists on plowing relentlessly toward the stars."

Not that Dr. John L. Barnes is superstitious and is really hexed by the light of the moon. But he does have a powerful interest — almost a fixation — in the earth's only natural satellite.

Chances are that when a U. S. spaceman becomes the real - life man on the moon, part of the credit will belong to Barnes, a part-time professor and full-time head of a firm of consultants specializing solely in space travel.

Why the moon?

"The first reason, obviously, is that it's the nearest," answers Barnes. "Then there's the adventure of just going there. Scientific exploration is important, too, as is the military aspect.

"We must protect ourselves for the next war which may come from space."

When will man be able to see the "other" side of the moon—the dark and mysterious side that has intrigued man throughout the ages?

Within Reach

Dr. Barnes says America could send a rocket around the moon within six months. A camera-carrying vehicle appears to be several years in the future and it won't be until 1967 that man will be able to voyage around the moon and return, he predicts.

Dr. Barnes' firm, Systems Corp. of America, is an outgrowth of two similar companies he helped found and it specializes in consultation and research for private businesses working under government missile or related contracts. Barnes' work nearly is all classified.

However, some of the findings of Barnes and his associates are startling. Here is his projected timetable for America's space age — providing funds are made available for an all - out program:

1958 — Small Rocket with instruments or small animal flies around the moon.

1964— An instrumented vehicle goes to Mars and Venus.

1966 — Manned earth satellite makes safe orbit.

1967 — Man flies around moon and returns safely.

1971 — Man lands on moon and returns.

1975 — Man voyages to Venus and Mars and returns.

Dr. Barnes says America — if it wanted to spend the money — could send a rocket around the moon and return within six months, using existing hardware. "It would burn up, however, when it hit the earth's atmosphere," he said.

He does not believe life exists on other planets in our solar system. Other galaxies? Perhaps, says Barnes, but propulsion limitations will prevent earthmen from finding out for decades.

Propulsion — the power used to propel a space vehicle — is the toughest, although not insuperable, problem of today's would - be space adventurer, Barnes says.

Other obstacles man must overcome to make successful planetary flights include controlling the space vehicle, navigation, communication, re - entry into the earth's atmosphere and biological and psychological limitations.

Barnes' firm, he admits, has conducted studies touching on most of these problems.

The research and final flight to the moon "will not be cheap," the space expert says. "Space travel will have a high dollar price."

Barnes, a native of Haddenfield, N. J.,got his bachelor and master degrees at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and his doctorate, in mathematics, at Princeton. He taught at MIT and Tufts University before coming to UCLA in 1947, where he teaches engineering.

Why is Barnes so positive that man will conquer space?

"There's no doubt in my mind that we'll do it — because we want to. That's the history of mankind.

"In the meantime, we just keep plowing relentlessly toward the stars."

Sundial Stands As A Monument To Another Era

City High Class Leaves Tribute

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

The sun beats down furiously on a group of students and their teacher as they carefully set in place a memorial - both for their school and their graduating class of 1931.

The final senior class to graduate from the Monroe City High school pays no attention to the endless hum of the katydids, or the dust rising from the loose, sandy soil.

They move rapidly, with a sense of accomplishment, as they carefully place a container into the concrete base of the memorial. In the wax-sealed container are the "Squeedunk" — the 1931 yearbook; a newspaper and a class ring.

Finally, the large, freshly-cut limestone memorial with a sundial on top is edged onto the base . . . and the girls in their short, straight dresses, the youths in knickers or long trousers, stand back and survey the memorial which will keep Monroe City High in the minds of all who glance at the sundial . . .

Nearly 27 years later, the sundial still stands in place at the corner of Jackson and Wood streets, and on northeast edge of the now-deserted Central Grammar School campus.

Today, cars hum past, mothers stroll slowly with children, high school students chatter gaily as they quickly pass the seldom - noticed sundial.

Knowing Smile

Those who were part of MC-HS look up swiftly when the sundial is mentioned. A quick, knowing smile passes over their faces as they recall days at Monroe's first high school.

"We had a framework dinosaur, over fifty feet long, that we used to advertise football games" some remember, as the hand of time swirls quickly back to the late 1920's.

The dinosaur's frame was light - weight, and tightly-stretched old sheets were used to cover it, so that the body shape looked exactly like one of the huge, pre - historic reptiles.

Hollow inside, it had a long "platform" device which the high school boys rested on their shoulders. The leader, who was usually a cigar-smoking youth, held a fishing pole straight up . . . the dinosaur's head either was upright or slumped to the side, according to the angle of the fishing pole. A long, rubber garden hose attached to the dinosaur's nostrils came down within easy reach of the leader.

Monster Rattled

All the boys got in place, and they were ready to go. Down Jackson and DeSiard Streets, the monster rattled, as a ferocious advertisement for that week's football game.

Through slits in the sheet, the leader glimpsed a pretty girl who had not noticed the dinosaur . . . "slow up" came the order to the rest of the "monster" . . . "stop" . . . and suddenly a burst of cigar smoke and a dinosaur's head weaved down in front of the window - shopping miss.

"Those girls used to jump a mile when we did that," ex-students recall.

The days of the heavy yellow oilskin slickers . . . "If you had one of those slicker raincoats, you felt you were really part of The School."

The object was to decorate the slickers . . . with every possible catch - phrase and with autographs of other students. They were the heavy slickers, not like the flimsy material of today, and had high military collars with corduroy lining. A buckle was fastened in the front of the collar.

Outdoor basketball games . . . "We used to play basketball games outside the school on a cement court, before the regular gym was built. We didn't even notice the cold weather."

Mathematics, physics and chemistry were tough subjects . . . well learned. "I had only one failure in chemistry and one in physics, during 18 years," states former teacher W. C. Spight.

On the day when the sundial was put into place, the senior class also erected a flagpole . . . using blowtorches and packed ice.

Would Not Fit

The lower portion of the hollow flag pole was to form the outer support for the upper portion of the pole . . . but the top section was a fraction of an inch too wide and would not fit into the rest of the pole.

The physics and chemistry class went to work. Using blowtorches, they heated the lower metal to make it expand. Ice was packed into the inside of the other pole section, to cause it to contract.

"We slid the sections together — partway. Then it stuck," they say, with an apologetic grin.

"Go look at that flagpole—it never did slip down like it should have been," they admit, adding that it has held up for many years, perhaps as a tribute to the 'battle' waged on that May, 1931, day.

In front of the flagpole is the sundial.

"Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be," is inscribed on the metal sundial. A fierce-beaked eagle perches on the top, and shadows cast from th eagle's body fall upon the Roman numerals of the dial, indicating the time.

All four sides of the limestone base are inscribed and on the west side is a bronze plaque with the names of the cass. Several are well-known Monroe citizens . . . one is with a news bureau in London . . . some never again will walk near the monument.

Inscription

On the south side of the stone is inscribed: "To the honor of Mayor Arnold Bernstein, Supt. Ernest L. Neville and the City School Board members: Mrs. Theo Terzia, Will Faulk, T. E. Flournoy and J. M. Cobb, who have aided the growth of our Monroe city school system.

To the west is the Class Roll. Thirty-nine names, including 20 girls and 19 boys, are on the weather-scarred plaque.

In order, the names are: Hazel Bunn, Flora Carlock, Frances Cole, Mildred Courson, Ruth Easterling, Dorothy Fuller, Della Goodrich, Alma Green, Thelma Hargus, Evelyn Huey, Mary Elizabeth Jones, Elizabeth Kennedy, Ethel Livesay.

Freeda Mickel, Mayme Myers, Hortense Pope, Angie Scalia, Suzanne Sperry, Ella Pearl Sutton, Katherine White —these names appear on the first and second rows of the plaque.

Midway in the second row starts the names of the youths who graduated in 1931: Jack Allen, W. K. Anders, Jr., George Buckner, Faheam Cannon, James Cavaness, Howard Griffin, Henry Haas, Jr., Billy Hardcastle, Billy Higginbotham, Darrell Holt, Mike John, Jr., Paul Martin, Jack May, Thomas May, Charles Roddy, Arthur Surguine, Robert Tucker, Wayne Wamsley, Henry King Wolff.

Beneath the plaque is the engraving: Sponsored by the 1931 senior class of the Monroe City High School.

Memorial

On the north side are the words, "As a memorial to our high school building which was erected in 1900 by the administration of A. A. Forsythe."

"In recognition of the marvelous progress of the Monroe City School system since its founding in the year 1871 by an act of the legislature of the state of Louisiana," is on the east side.

Principal of the school was Mrs. Minnie Ruffin, E L. Neville was superintendent, and athletic coach was Paul Neal, now principal of Neville High School. "There was some argument about the inscriptions, Mr. Neville was afraid that the stone might look like a tombstone to him, and some other people not mentioned wanted to be honored, but it finally went through," former students chuckle.

Class officers of 1931 included Billy Hardcastle, president; Elizabeth Kennedy, vice president; Faheam Cannon, secretary and Alma Green, treasurer. The students realized that this was the last year in which a high school would be housed in the large, red-brick building. Construction was completed on the new Neville High School, and the changes brought about by time were being pointed out vividly to them.

A sundial to indicate the passage of time seemed the most suitable class gift which they could leave at their high school.

Now, the flagpole stretches skyward with rope pulled taut . . . flags no longer are raised onto it to float over the silent sundial. Nearby linden trees reach out leafless branches . . two cracked, dusty concrete walks on either side of the monument are unused.

Lost in time, the sundial patiently continues to indicate the hour on each sunny day . . . and occasionally someone walks hesitantly to it and looks at a memory of the past.

UNUSED SUNDIAL — Lost in time is this sundial, placed on the corner of Jackson and Wood Streets by the Monroe City High School class of 1931. Furor was raised midway in World War II, when dial disappeared. Police were alerted, Monroe residents feared it had been taken for scrap metal - a teacher who had taken it off to clean it replaced the sundial in a few days. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman.)

Union Group Opens Meeting

DENVER, Feb. 22 (AP)—The bargaining policy committee of the Oil, Chemical & Atomic Workers International Union (AFL-CIO) began a two-day meeting today.

The committee is expected to set goals for wages and other benefits for this year. The meeting was behind closed doors and officials declined any details of discussions so far.

Headquarters of the union here were closed today and will be closed Monday also in a delayed observation of Washington's Birthday.

One spokesman said he doubts whether any statement of decisions at the meeting will be forthcoming until tomorrow.

CLASSROOM CRISIS

Teachers Have No 'Finest Hour' Now

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—In James Hilton's classic tribute to teachers, Mr. Chips has his finest hour soothing student fears while the bombs fall on Britain.

Today his real-life counterpart on this side of the ocean, whom a hard core of teen-aged terrorists scorn as "Mr. Chump," enjoys no such finest hour. But he does have his moments — swallowing his own fears when a stink bomb erupts in the closet or a bomb scare empties out the building.

Like Mr. Chips, he still hears his name fall from youthful lips as he arrives at school in the morning or heads for home at night. Only it's not quite the same. There's a sneer in the air now, and, too often an insult or obscenity implied if not brazenly expressed in the greeting.

"Mr. ——— is an S.O.B.," proclaims a lipstick inscription in the girls' lavatory at a Manhattan high school. It will be gone as soon as the janitor is called, but it will reappear tomorrow in a different place and in a different hand.

"Well, it could be worse," smiles the subject of the art work. "At least they called me mister."

Others have been called worse, far worse — not often to their faces, since this would call for official action — but in carvings on desks, in scrawled epithets on walls and in books, in jeering shouts down crowded stairways as classes move from place to place.

In confidential interviews with dozens of teachers, administrators policemen, janitors and others touched by the problem, it is apparent that times indeed have changed since Mr. Chips presided at the blackboard.

Dedicated men and women, willing to reconcile a teacher's pay with teaching rewards, have seen their college dreams of opening the doors of knowledge to some backward child dissolve into discipline.

Said a janitor in a junior high school: "The teachers just seem to have lost control. They're on the run."

Last year New York City spent more than a half-billion dollars educating some 950,000 children in its 918 public schools. In the same year, by police department figures, it counted 3,298 incidents of crime and violence on school property. Of these, 515 were felonies.

Nearly two out of every three schools counted at least one criminal incident, but some 50 schools, located in what sociologists call "culturally deprived" areas — usually Negro, Puerto Rican or racially changing neighborhoods —monopolized the list.

With the 1958 spring term barely underway, the list already includes three rapes, two knifings, a school gang caught plotting a bank robbery, a teacher fleeing to a closet from club brandishing youths, a monitor beaten unconscious in a cafeteria fight, an an assistant principal assigned to other duties because a gang threatened his life, exposure of a smut ring peddling poronography in the classroom.

The Board of Education estimates that only about one per cent of the students in its schools can be classified as hard-core trouble makers. But in a city the size of New York this means nearly 10,000 rough, tough customers.

The disciplinary problem moved presiding Judge John Warren Hill of the Domestic Relations Court to remark that "the Progressive Education system in the city's schools has gone haywire."

The issue stirred widespread attention when Principal George Goldfarb of Brooklyn's John Marshall Junior High School—where a 13-year-old girl had been raped —jumped to his death from his apartment house roof on the morning he was to appear for the third time before a special Brooklyn Grand Jury investigating school crime. The jury's recommendation that a policeman be assigned to every school was vigorously opposed by the Board of Education, but on the night before he died, Goldfarb had written a letter asking that his school be added to 40 others already under police protection.

With the board and the grand jury in sharp conflict over school crime, most teachers were extremely reluctant to talk, lest they be summoned before either body.

But in confidential interviews they blamed New York's woes on a variety of causes: broken homes, working parents, back-patting children's courts, a state law requiring school attendance until age 17, "starry-eyed educators" who think all children are educable, a "continuous progress" policy that promotes and even graduates children of low ability and performance, wishy-washy principals who would rather ignore crime than back up a teacher so as not to "spoil their record over at 110" (110 Livingston St., Brooklyn, headquarters of the Board of Education), a tendency to wink at everyday insubordination until "a whole school gets out of hand," diminishing student respect for teachers who have learned to live with insult, and the constantly shifting racial patterns in a city that last year gained 311,000 Negroes, 304,000 Puerto Ricans and lost 720,000 whites.

AGAINST GREAT ODDS

By JIMMY HATTEN
Staff Writer

In the spring of 1864, the South, fighting against tremendous odds, was a tired and battle weary force. But valiant Louisianians gave it its last major victory of the conflict in the largest Civil War contest west of the Mississippi River.

Led by the son of a former president of the United States, 11,000 Confederate troops routed 31,000 Union troops and saved for the time the Red River Valley, western Louisiana and Texas.

The southern leader was General Richard "Dick" Taylor, son of President (General) Zachary Taylor and the place was Mansfield, La.

The grey lines in that spring of long ago were thin and gaunt, marching on superior military leadership and courage . . . out-gunned, out-manned, but never out - fought.

Desperately needing a victory in hopes that England and France would rally to her cause, the South was outnumbered 3 to 1 against the Union which was striving to cut the Confederates's outside supply point, Mexico.

The Battle of Mansfield was the result.

Appeared Easy

It seemed an easy job to the Union to crush these scattered Rebels who were protecting parts of Louisiana west of the Atchafalaya, Black and Ouachita Rivers, a small part of western Arkansas and all of Texas under command of General Kirby Smith, headquartered in Shreveport.

The strategic Mississippi valley was controlled by Federal forces.

Making his way up the Red River with the largest inland land - sea force in U. S. history was General N. P. Banks who had set out from New Orleans to Shreveport with 33,000 Federal troops packed aboard 150 naval units manned by 10,000 men.

General Smith gave General Taylor strict orders not to engage in general action with the Union troops, but instead to draw the Federals against Shreveport's fortifications.

'Now or Never'

But Taylor, who had been advised by his scouts that Banks' advance was poorly coordinated with supply units trailing behind, declared it was "now or never."

The Confederate general pretended to retreat through Mansfield as Smith's 150 ships neared the town. The Federal general fell into the well planned trap.

Banks set up defensive units two and one - half miles to the south, intending to secure the area before chasing Taylor to Shreveport.

Then, with lightning fast action, Taylor placed his famed Louisiana Crescent Regiment under Col. J. H. Beard, and the Louisiana 18th and 28 Regiments, all under General Alfred Mouton, a Louisiana Frenchman on his left center.

Prince de Polignac, the "Lafayette of the South" and his dismounted cavalry guarded his left flank. General Tom Green and the Texas cavalry protected the right flank.

On the afternoon of April 8th, Mouton's Crescents and de Polignac forced a fight, hitting the center of the 130th Illinois Regiment. Every field officer on both sides fell, among them Col. Beard and General Mouton, who rushed forth to rally the leadership of the troops. General Taylor's horse was shot from beneth him.

De Polignac rallied the Crescents, and that day he won a Major general's commission. Federal cavalry, in hand - to - hand combat, were routed by Green's mounted Texans.

The Louisiana Crescents broke the back of the stubborn 138th Illinois and the other Federal units from Kentucky, Wisconsin and New York broke and ran through Banks' second line of defense which fled in panic.

The victory was made secure when Taylor's men captured most of the supply train abandoned in the wild flight and followed up with another win at Pleasant Hill.

Federals, returning to Natchitoches, found the river low and the navy stranded. They walked to Alexandria where a dam had to be constructed to re-float the navy.

The defeat was complete . . . final in the west for the duration of the war.

6,300 MILES ACHIEVED

Snark Missile Flights Set Impressive Record

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Reporter

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Manufacturers of the Northrop Snark guided missile said today the weapon now has a range of more than 6,300 miles. It heretofore has been credited with 5,000 miles.

Able to cruise for 10 hours at almost the speed of sound, the Snark was described as the only current weapon capable of low-altitude attack upon virtually any target in Soviet Russia.

A powerful tool for "massive intercontinental deterrent" purposes was the way Northrop Vice President John R. Alison of Los Angeles described it.

New or little known facts about the pilotless bomber were brought out by Alison and other Northrop aircraft officials at a briefing here designed to correct what they said was widespread misunderstanding of the Snark's mission and performance.

They said a new electronic device, specially installed on the Snark, can trick enemy radar into mistaking the fighter-size missile for the largest of the jet bombers. Thus Snarks can be flown ahead of a B52 bomber attack as decoys to cut down enemy interception of U. S. strategic bombers.

A big load carrier, they said the Snark can plunge a large thermonuclear warhead into enemy targets with "truly amazing accuracy."

Once it has left the ground, a Snark is on its own. A pre-set self-contained inertial guidance system directs it on a straight, zigzag, or looped course.

Although the Snark cannot be jammed by the enemy, it can be called back from its mission if a suspected enemy attack turns out to be a false alarm.

More than 50 Snarks have been launched from the Air Force Missile Test Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla. Altogether they have flown the equivalent of three times around the world at the equator.

Some of them, fitted with landing gear, have been brought back and landed and then flown again, as many as three times.

Other Snark test vehicles have been flown 1,800 miles down the missile test range into the West Indies and then turned around and dropped into waters near Florida so that instruments and other parts could be recovered.

Several of them—"more than three"—have been flown all the way to Ascension Island, 5,000 miles from Florida in the south Atlantic, since the test range was extended to Ascension last October. If they had been launched from Cape Canaveral in another direction, they could have struck Moscow.

Expressing concern at "the degree to which the weapons of the future have caught the public's imagination," Alison said:

"Although we believe the capability of the Snark is beginning to be recognized, there has been a tendency on the part of the public to consider weapons such as manned aircraft and missiles like the Snark as obsolescent.

"We look on the Snark as complementing and supplementing our present inventory of strategic manned bombers and as a transitional weapon between aircraft and ballistic missiles.

"This missile will be highly effective over the Soviet system well into the middle 1960s and far beyond.

"We believe the Snark can make a major contribution to United States security."

The Snark is 68 feet long and 15 feet high, has a 42-foot wing span, and weighs less than 50,000 pounds or about the same as an F89 Intercepter.

It is powered by a Pratt & Whitney J57, the same jet engine that is used on the eight-engine B52 heavy bomber.

It is launched from a mobile launching platform, by two 130,000-pound-thrust solid propellant rockets manufactured by Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, Cumberland, Md.

The Air Force research and development program on the Snark cost 400 million dollars, and Northrop has two production contracts totaling 143 million dollars.

Minnie Jean Arrives At N.Y. School

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—Minniejean Brown, 16-year-old Negro girl expelled from integrated Central High School in Little Rock, arrived today to enroll in a private interracial school.

Asked about incidents in Little Rock, Minniejean commented: "This is all in the past. I'd like to forget it. My education is the important thing."

She was greeted at LaGuardia Field by several Negro girls about her age who pinned pink orchids on her coat.

The plane which brought Minniejean, among the nine Negros first to enter Little Rock's Central High School last September, was checked carefully before it left Little Rock. American Airlines had received a report that a bomb had been placed aboard the craft. No bomb was found.

"I'm praying constantly for the other eight kids," Minniejean said after arriving here. "They need it."

Expelled from Central High after being involved in a series of racial incidents, she has received a full scholarship from the New Lincoln School, a private interracial institution here. She plans to begin classes Monday.

Russians Boast Of 'Great Power' In Naval Forces

MOSCOW (UP) — Soviet party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev donned his wartime army officer's uniform Saturday and warned "imperialist aggressors" that Russia was prepared to repel any attack on its territory.

Addressing a mass rally in honor of the 40th anniversary of the founding of the Red Army, Khrushchev pictured the Soviet armed forces as nearly invulnerable.

He said they had "all modern military equipment and everything necessary for reliable defense of the fatherland."

Russia's new defense minister, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, told the same rally that the Russians had the world's greatest naval power, capable of "destroying the naval force of the enemy on the seas and oceans" and attacking land bases.

Khrushchev was resplendent in uniform with the two gold stars of a lieutenant general on gold epaulets. There were five rows of decorations on his chest.

It was believed to be the first time he had worn the uniform in public since World War II.

Malinovsky accused the West of fomenting international tension through the arms race and "preparing war against the Soviet Union."

Russian military science, he said, has proved its "great superiority" over the west and is "steadily improving."

"The navy is equipped with all means for combat at sea," he said.

Scientist Sets Space Travel Timetable

By HAL McCLURE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of America's foremost suffers of moon madness is a tall, bespectacled scientist who, in his own words, "insists on plowing relentlessly toward the stars."

Not that Dr. John L. Barnes is superstitious and is really hexed by the light of the moon. But he does have a powerful interest — almost a fixation — in the earth's only natural satellite.

Chances are that when a U. S. spaceman becomes the real - life man on the moon, part of the credit will belong to Barnes, a part-time professor and full-time head of a firm of consultants specializing solely in space travel.

Why the moon?

"The first reason, obviously, is that it's the nearest," answers Barnes. "Then there's the adventure of just going there. Scientific exploration is important, too, as is the military aspect.

"We must protect ourselves for the next war which may come from space."

When will man be able to see the "other" side of the moon—the dark and mysterious side that has intrigued man throughout the ages?

Within Reach

Dr. Barnes says America could send a rocket around the moon within six months. A camera-carrying vehicle appears to be several years in the future and it won't be until 1967 that man will be able to voyage around the moon and return, he predicts.

Dr. Barnes' firm, Systems Corp. of America, is an outgrowth of two similar companies he helped found and it specializes in consultation and research for private businesses working under government missile or related contracts. Barnes' work nearly is all classified.

However, some of the findings of Barnes and his associates are startling. Here is his projected timetable for America's space age — providing funds are made available for an all - out program:

1958 — Small Rocket with instruments or small animal flies around the moon.

1964— An instrumented vehicle goes to Mars and Venus.

1966 — Manned earth satellite makes safe orbit.

1967 — Man flies around moon and returns safely.

1971 — Man lands on moon and returns.

1975 — Man voyages to Venus and Mars and returns.

Dr. Barnes says America — if it wanted to spend the money — could send a rocket around the moon and return within six months, using existing hardware.

"It would burn up, however, when it hit the earth's atmosphere," he said.

He does not believe life exists on other planets in our solar system. Other galaxies? Perhaps, says Barnes, but propulsion limitations will prevent earthmen from finding out for decades.

Propulsion — the power used to propel a space vehicle — is the toughest, although not insuperable, problem of today's would - be space adventurer, Barnes says.

Other obstacles man must overcome to make successful planetary flights include controlling the space vehicle, navigation, communication, re - entry into the earth's atmosphere and biological and psychological limitations.

Barnes' firm, he admits, has conducted studies touching on most of these problems.

The research and final flight to the moon "will not be cheap," the space expert says. "Space travel will have a high dollar price."

Barnes, a native of Haddenfield, N. J., got his bachelor and master degrees at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and his doctorate, in mathematics, at Princeton. He taught at MIT and Tufts University before coming to UCLA in 1947, where he teaches engineering.

Why is Barnes so positive that man will conquer space?

"There's no doubt in my mind that we'll do it — because we want to. That's the history of mankind.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Warner's Latest Is Very Unusual One

By FRANCES FLANDERS

Esther S. Warner is a writer who has a remarkable first hand knowledge of the land about which she writes, the land of Africa. Several years ago she wrote an account of her travels in Africa, which she called "A New Song in a Strange Land." This was an actual account of her experience in this strange and fascinating country. Now we have a novel by this same author called "The Silk-Cotton Tree." This is the inspiring story of a frightened, bewildered girl who found courage and meaning to life and the change in the heart of a country caught between a past of voodoo and leopard men and a future of hope and faith in the dignity and goodness of man.

A very unusual novel is "The Fertile Plain" by Ester Salaman. It has its setting in Russia in the days before the revolution of 1917. In this book we get an excellent picture of family and religious life of the country. mIt is a book which will richly repay the reader who is interested in the problems of the human heart . . . A small novel which has had excellent reviews is "Breaking Point" by Jacob Presser. It is not a pleasant book, for it deals with the days of the concentration camps and the horrors which the Nazis inflictd on their fellow men, but it is a book which paints a vevealing picture of man at his best and at his worst.

A haunting story of the north west is "Tamarac" by Margaret Hutchison. Tamarac was a pinpoint in the great forests of the northwest when Janet Cameron and her sisters moved from the city to the clean beauty of the Canadian woods. The young men and women loved this isolated sawmill community. This book evokes the beauty and emotion of growing up in the Canadian woods, its prose sings with the poetry of the American land. It is a beautiful book and one which will be richly rewarding reading.

A mystery by Ellery Queen is always eagerly awaited by the mystery reading public. The title of the latest book by this author is "The Finishing Stroke." It has its setting in the America of the twenties and will have a nostalgic appeal to many readers.

In the field of non - fiction there are many good books this week. An outstanding book is "First Blood" the story of Fort Sumter, which will have an irresistible appeal to all who enjoy the Civil War. W. A. Swanberg is the author and he tells the story of one of the truly extraordinary episodes in American military history. This book vividly depicts the plight of the tiny garrison at Sumter during those months of 1860-61 when tension steadily mounted. It conveys the spirit of the people of Charleston in a way that makes one understand how the fires of secession were kindled. Mr. Swanberg has written without bias and with the detachment that is possible a century afterward. He is able to focus upon the human values on both sides. This book is readable and scholarly. It is a significant contribution to American history.

One of the greatest and yet most unusual figures of English literature is William Makepeace Thackeray. Gordon N. Ray has written a most complete biography of this strange and brilliant man. The first volume covers the period in Thackeray's life from 1811 to 1846 and is called "The Uses of Adversity." The second covers the period from 1847 to 1863 and closes with his death. The title of this volume is "The Age of Wisdom." This set of books will be invaluable to students. A book which appears every year and is eagerly awaited is "The Best American Short Stories" Martha Foley is the editor of this anthology and performs a real service for students and those interested in the short story. Just this week we have added the collection for 1957.

These and many other books are waiting for you at the library. If you are not taking advantage of its resources, we give you a hearty invitation to do so.

THE GOLDEN AGE

Famed Ballerina Recalls The Cazarist Russian Era

By MILTON MARMOR

LONDON (AP) — The most beautiful, the most courted, and in many eyes the greatest ballerina of the Russian Imperial Ballet was Tamara Karsavina.

Such was her fame and beauty that when Henry J. Bruce, handsome attache at the British Embassy, married her in 1917 the diplomatic colony in St. Petersburg referred to his success as "the most envied international coup of the year."

That was the year Russian armies bled to death on the Eastern Front battlefields of World War I. It was one year before czarist Russia perished in violent revolution.

In the world of ballet they were the golden days. Most of the names of the period—Bakst, Pavlova, Nijinsky and Diaghilev — are gone.

But in a rambling house in the London district of Hampstad, Tamara Karsavina, now a white haired lady of 73, lives to recall the splendor of those days in a soft, cultured voice, still touched with a slight Russian accent.

Mme. Karsavina is now o British subject. Her husband, with whom she fled bolshevik Russia in 1919, died six years ago.

After almost a decade of dancing with Diaghilev's Ballet Russe in the western world, Mme. Karsavina retired. She had made her debut in 1902.

She has never lost interest in her art. She lectures occasionally in ballet circles. In addition she is writing "a very personal book" on her life in the ballet.

Despite her interest in present day ballet — she has Margot Fonteyn, Britain's prime ballerina, as a part time pupil —Mme. Karsavina says "the czarist era of ballet was unparalleled."

"At that time we had such a number of wonderful dancers," she says. "It's only natural that I value the Russian school of dancing most of all. I belong to it myself.

TAMARA: in 1925

"I found it extremely broadminded and at the same time very pure."

Mme. Karsavina starred with Vaslav Nijinsky in the first performances of the Firebird, Petrouchka and Sacre du Printemps, which were considered revolutionary ballets at the time.

Yet she never lost her love for the great numbers of the classic ballet, Giselle, Sleeping Beauty and Swan Lake.

Of Pavlova, whom she succeeded as prima ballerina of the Russian Imperial Ballet, Mme. Karsavina said: "She was a beautiful dancer. She was very frail and charming."

Of Nijinsky, to whom legend now attributes almost superhuman talents, she added:

"It is quite true. He was so wonderful. He had a wonderful feel of music, great elevation and he was an exceptional dancer. I never saw anyone like him. That was the strength of the Russian school."

Angel Of Delta Excellent Book

By LERA MORGAN

ANGEL OF THE DELTA by Edward F. Murphy (Hanover House).

Father Murphy has, in the Angel of the Delta, captured the warmth of the Irish people in the midst of hardships and hunger. He has created in Margaret Gaffney an example of self - sacrifice that is touching even to the hardest of hearts.

Margaret Gaffney, was destined for greatness from the day of her birth. Born on Christmas Day, the fifth child of hard - working, poor Irish parents, she was to be the inspiration that made possible this family's move from Ireland to America.

Baltimore was a new and strange place to the Gaffneys, and more than once they were doubtful as to whether or not their move had been a wise one. Had it not been for the comfort of the good Irish people of St. Patrick's Church, and the sunshine that Margaret brought into their lives daily, they would have spent many miserable hours of homesickness for Ireland.

When Margaret was about eight years of age, her mother and father died of a strange malady that swept Baltimore and surrounding areas. She was adopted by a friend, who educated her, and when she was grown into a beautiful young woman, introduced her to the man she was to marry. Charles Haughnery was the man. He was a weak person physically, and constantly needed someone to boost his ego. His inferiority complex is what attracted Margaret in the first place. Here was someone who needed her more than anyone she had ever met.

After Margaret and Charles married, their move to New Orleans for his health seemed to be the turning point in her life. Once there and settled in the Irish Channel, as the Irish section of the city was called, she found many things to occupy her. Her close affiliation with St. Patrick's Church made it possible for her to find people sorely in need of her help. Their ignorance of sanitation troubled her, and she spent many hours teaching people to boil their drinking water, and trying to convince them that cleanliness would help prevent disease. More than once she was accused of witchcraft because of her ideas.

Margaret fulfilled her destiny. She was great as was predicted she would be. People in need were her life and she gave them her life freely. She was indeed an Angel of the Delta.

Bannock Of Idaho Is A Tragic Tale

This is an excellent book about a little-known tribe of Indians.

From the first intrusion of Missouri Fur Company trappers into their homeland in 1810 and until they were confined to the Fort Hall Reservation in 1869, the Bannock Indians of southern Idaho fought against white encroachment.

The work by Madsen is the story of the tragic tale of broken agreements, diminishing food supplies, and of a proud and independent people who refused the blandishments of white civilization, preferring to cling to their old ways.

When Mormon missionaries came among them in the 1850's, they were at first well received, but soon the inclination for war and the presence of enticing herds of horses and cattle at the Lemhi settlement provoked the Bannock to another raid.

Their great chief, Taghee, expressed the problem of his people when he said to the governor of Idaho in 1866, "The white people have come into my country, and have not asked my consent. Why is this? And why have no persons talked to me before? I have never known what the white people wanted me to do."

The illustrations include twelve drawings, a colored frontispiece, and an end-sheet map prepared by M. D. Stewart. There are also five illustrations from photographs.

BOOK BRIEFS

Acute observer and chronicler of America's emergence as a major world power throughout a lifetime that spanned the years from 1838 to 1918, Henry Adams has long been considered one of the seminal interpreters of this country's political, intellectual, and spiritual coming of age. A "Henry Adams Reader," edited and with an introduction by Elizabeth Stevenson, author of "Henry Adams," a definitive biography, has been designed to fill the requirements of the student and the general reader who wish for an authoritative and comprehensive sampling of Adams' work. One of a new hardcover series called Doubleday Anchor Books, it is to be published Feb. 21.

A one - volume autobiography of Mark Twain, drawing upon original source material in the Berkeley, Calif., library and elsewhere, is in preparation for Harper & Brothers. Charles Neider, who is editing the volume, will appreciate hearing from anyone who has letters or papers which might be relevant.

Harper & Brothers believe John Gunther has set somewhat of a record with book clubs. His "Inside Russia Today," which will be published on April 9 is his eighth successive book distributed by the Book-of-the-Month-Club.

John Brooks, author of "The Big Wheel," and "The Man Who Broke Things" (the latter will be published by Harpers on March 12) is on his way to the South Pole.

The story of one of the most praised commanders in the Union Army during the Civil War Major General John F. Reynolds, will be told for the first time in a book to be published in April by Pennsylvania State University Press and distributed by the Associated College Presses, a division of of the New York University Press. The book, "Toward Gettysburg," by E. J. Nichols, reconstructs in historical perspective the personal and professional memoirs of the general who, on July 1, 1863, committed the Army of the Potomac to fight at Gettysburg, the most decisive battle of the war.

Publishing more plans than all other houses combined, the Random House theatre book list is a weather vane to a hit year on Broadway. The barometer is rising fast in the 1958-59 season, with six plays scheduled for publication; Dore Schary's "Sunrise at Campobello." Ray Lawler's "Summer of The Seventeeth Doll;" Peter Ustinov's "Romanoff and Juliet;" William Inge's "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs;" and the musicals "West Side Story and "New Girl In Town."

Why Russia was ahead of the United States in launching an earth satellite is one of the questions answered by Jonathan Norton Leonard in the new edition of his "Flight into Space." Random House, which published the prophetic volume a few years ago, will bring out the up-to-the-minute edition in the Modern Library Paperback series late this month.

It's three times and in for Random House on the book club front. Shirley Barker's new historical novel, "Swear by Apollo," has just been chosen by the literary guild as its September dual selection.

Largest Photo Exhibit Being Set For Show

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

As this column is written, the mammoth job of preparing the country's largest and most important photo show for the public is in its final stages. By the time you read it, the 12th Annual National Photo Show will have had its week's run at New York's Coliseum and camera fans will have seen the latest in cameras, handled the newest equipment, watched experts demonstrate techniques and snapped miles of film of pretty models.

From previous experience, I know how the milling mob besieges each exhibit booth to drool at the latest gadgets, so it's a distinct advantage for me to be able to see them in advance in comparative comfort.

I did a little drooling myself when I got a quick glance at the first private unveiling of a completely remodeled 4 x 5 Speed Graphic. The new aluminum body creation, the Super Graphic 45, has so many innovations, it should prove to be a shot in the arm in the large camera field. I hope to use one of the first units available for personal testing and report shortly.

In the home movie field, the introduction of the CinemaScope anamorphic lens for 16mm and 8mm cameras makes news. This optical device reaches out and grabs a greater field of vision both horizontally and vertically. It compresses the view on normal film. Then when the device is put on the projector, it decompresses or spreads out the scenes to wide-screen proportions. If your movies need a lift or if you want them to spread out, this may be the answer.

The new thimble - sized zirconium filled flashbulbs were demonstrated to prove they pack the power of bulbs four times their size. The GE entry in this field, the M5, makes news because it can be flashed on "M" synchronized shutters. This is the first subminiature flashblub that can be fired on all shutter speeds in the same way as the No. 5 bulb and practically matches it in light output.

Novel targets for camera fans include a huge Eiffel tower background with a turntable and Parisian model; a colorful display of dancing fountains and an exhibit featuring space cities under plastic domes, earth satellites and a Lunar express.

Undoubtedly, I will meet more camera fans at this photo show than I've ever met before. That's because I'm scheduled to present my "Photo - Magic" demonstration every night during the week and on the weekend afternoons.

For the uninitiated, "Photo-Magic," is a personal combination of my two hobbies, magic and photography. Actually, I invented it in self-defence. As a photo writer, I receive many requests to talk to camera clubs and photo meetings. But I feel there are many experts better qualified to talk on the technical aspects of photography. So I blended some magic tricks with photographic props and prints and the result has been entertaining if not technically instructive.

At any rate, I hope "Photo-Magic" proves how well photography can mix with any other hobby or interest and bring benefit to both.

MacDonald Carey, Mary Astor, Jack Klugman, Irene Hervey and Darryl Hickman star in "The Lonely Stage," powerful story of a great woman of the theatre who is venerated by millions, yet suddenly finds herself in desperate need of the love of close ones whom she has forsaken in her climb to stardom, on "Studio One in Hollywood." The program will be seen tomorrow night.

"Statehood for Alaska and Hawaii?", an hour - long examination of the principal personalities and issues involved in the controversy over increasing the number of states in the Union, will be the "See It Now" presentation Sunday, March 2. The co-producers are Edward R. Murrow and Fred W. Friendly.

VOLUME NO. ONE

T. Roosevelt As A Fighting Boy

THEODORE ROOSEVELT: Volume 1. THE FORMATIVE YEARS 1858-1886. By Carleton Putnam. Scribners. $10.

The Bullochs, of Georgia, and the Roosevelts, of New York, old and distinguished families, were united in 1853 with the marriage of the Southern daughter Mittie and the Northerner Teddy. One son, born five years later, was the future President Theodore.

As a boy he suffered from ghastly illnesses, sick stomach, a heart supposed not to be of the strongest beat, and asthma, which wore him down at home and in Europe when he spent endless nights wheezing, coughing and sitting up miserably in bed.

The boy fought it. He appears to have been endowed with, or to have whipped up, a fantastic desperate amount of energy. The youth who could have been expected to drop dead threatened to exhaust relatives and friends till indeed they dropped dead with his interminable walks, his mountain climbing, his tireless winter hunting and his riding on his ranch.

His work at law led perhaps inevitably to Albany. While in the Legislature, after the loss some years before of his beloved father, he lost his wife Alice and his mother within 24 hours. This volume, first of a projected four, gets him engaged to Edith Carow and sets him well along on the path to fame.

Having the good fortune to see papers no previous Roosevelt biographer had worked with, Putnam is extraordinarily thorough. This is not just a complete account, but super - complete. We know on what lawn on what slope Teddy first walked with Alice, what route he followed from the Grand Central on a certain night 75 years ago; and when he sets out, say, to conquer the Matterhorn, Putnam, as indefatigable as his subject, briefs us on previous climbs, the number of dead, the nature of the difficulties before letting Roosevelt himself start — at exactly 3:45 a. m.

Some readers may ask whether, in the perspective of history, Theodore Roosevelt is worth this detail. He had a gory record as a hunter, he certainly exaggerated the quality of courage, and his obsession with matters of health and wholesomeness risked in a sense being unhealthy and unwholesome itself. But he became the indestructible symbol of a certain valorous aspect of our America, which he intensified more than any other man. This shows best, perhaps, in Putnam's anecdote of the day Roosevelt, thrown by one bronco after another, still refused the friendly offer of a real cowboy to "break" the next animal for him with the remark: "Cowboy, I know you can ride him; what I want to find out is if I can ride him."

But whatever you think of Roosevelt, you have no doubt about Putnam: he is a major biographer. This sort of achievement wins the coveted literary prizes.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Warner's Latest Is Very Unusual One

By FRANCES FLANDERS

Esther S. Warner is a writer who has a remarkable first hand knowledge of the land about which she writes, the land of Africa. Several years ago she wrote an account of her travels in Africa, which she called "A New Song in a Strange Land." This was an actual account of her experience in this strange and fascinating country. Now we have a novel by this same author called "The Silk-Cotton Tree." This is the inspiring story of a frightened, bewildered girl who found courage and meaning to life and the change in the heart of a country caught between a past of voodoo and leopard men and a future of hope and faith in the dignity and goodness of man.

A very unusual novel is "The Fertile Plain" by Ester Salaman. It has its setting in Russia in the days before the revolution of 1917. In this book we get an excellent picture of family and religious life of the country. mIt is a book which will richly repay the reader who is interested in the problems of the human heart . . . A small novel which has had excellent reviews is "Breaking Point" by Jacob Presser. It is not a pleasant book, for it deals with the days of the concentration camps and the horrors which the Nazis inflictd on their fellow men, but it is a book which paints a vevealing picture of man at his best and at his worst.

A haunting story of the north west is "Tamarac" by Margaret Hutchison. Tamarac was a pinpoint in the great forests of the northwest when Janet Cameron and her sisters moved from the city to the clean beauty of the Canadian woods. The young men and women loved this isolated sawmill community. This book evokes the beauty and emotion of growing up in the Canadian woods. its prose sings with the poetry of the American land. It is a beautiful book and one which will be richly rewarding reading.

A mystery by Ellery Queen is always eagerly awaited by the mystery reading public. The title of the latest book by this author is "The Finishing Stroke." It has its setting in the America of the twenties and will have a nostalgic appeal to many readers.

In the field of non - fiction there are many good books this week. An outstanding book is "First Blood" the story of Fort Sumter, which will have an irresistible appeal to all who enjoy the Civil War. W. A. Swanberg is the author and he tells the story of one of the truly extraordinary episodes in American military history. This book vividly depicts the plight of the tiny garrison at Sumter during those months of 1860-61 when tension steadily mounted. It conveys the spirit of the people of Charleston in a way that makes one understand how the fires of secession were kindled. Mr. Swanberg has written without bias and with the detachment that is possible a century afterward. He is able to focus upon the human values on both sides. This book is readable and scholarly. It is a significant contribution to American history.

One of the greatest and yet most unusual figures of English literature is William Makepeace Thackeray. Gordon N. Ray has written a most complete biography of this strange and brilliant man. The first volume covers the period in Thackeray's life from 1811 to 1846 and is called "The Uses of Adversity." The second covers the period from 1847 to 1863 and closes with his death. The title of this volume is "The Age of Wisdom." This set of books will be invaluable to students. A book which appears every year and is eagerly awaited is "The Best American Short Stories" Martha Foley is the editor of this anthology and performs a real service for students and those interested in the short story. Just this week we have added the collection for 1957.

These and many other books are waiting for you at the library. If you are not taking advantage of its resources, we give you a hearty invitation to do so.

THE GOLDEN AGE

Famed Ballerina Recalls The Cazarist Russian Era

By MILTON MARMOR

LONDON (AP) — The most beautiful, the most courted, and in many eyes the greatest ballerina of the Russian Imperial Ballet was Tamara Karsavina.

Such was her fame and beauty that when Henry J. Bruce, handsome attache at the British Embassy, married her in 1917 the diplomatic colony in St. Petersburg referred to his success as "the most envied international coup of the year."

That was the year Russian armies bled to death on the Eastern Front battlefields of World War I. It was one year before czarist Russia perished in violent revolution.

In the world of ballet they were the golden days. Most of the names of the period—Bakst, Pavlova, Nijinsky and Diaghilev — are gone.

But in a rambling house in the London district of Hampstad, Tamara Karsavina, now a white haired lady of 73, lives to recall the splendor of those days in a soft, cultured voice, still touched with a slight Russian accent.

Mme. Karsavina is now o British subject. Her husband, with whom she fled bolshevik Russia in 1919, died six years ago.

After almost a decade of dancing with Diaghilev's Ballet Russe in the western world, Mme. Karsavina retired. She had made her debut in 1902.

She has never lost interest in her art. She lectures occasionally in ballet circles. In addition she is writing "a very personal book" on her life in the ballet.

Despite her interest in present day ballet — she has Margot Fonteyn, Britain's prime ballerina, as a part time pupil —Mme. Karsavina says "the czarist era of ballet was unparalleled."

"At that time we had such a number of wonderful dancers," she says. "It's only natural that I value the Russian school of dancing most of all. I belong to it myself.

TAMARA: in 1925

"I found it extremely broadminded and at the same time very pure."

Mme. Karsavina starred with Vaslav Nijinsky in the first performances of the Firebird, Petrouchka and Sacre du Printemps, which were considered revolutionary ballets at the time.

Yet she never lost her love for the great numbers of the classic ballet, Giselle, Sleeping Beauty and Swan Lake.

Of Pavlova, whom she succeeded as prima ballerina of the Russian Imperial Ballet, Mme. Karsavina said: "She was a beautiful dancer. She was very frail and charming."

Of Nijinsky, to whom legend now attributes almost superhuman talents, she added:

"It is quite true. He was so wonderful. He had a wonderful feel of music, great elevation and he was an exceptional dancer. I never saw anyone like him. That was the strength of the Russian school."

Angel Of Delta Excellent Book

By LERA MORGAN

ANGEL OF THE DELTA by Edward F. Murphy (Hanover House).

Father Murphy has, in the Angel of the Delta, captured the warmth of the Irish people in the midst of hardships and hunger. He has created in Margaret Gaffney an example of self - sacrifice that is touching even to the hardest of hearts.

Margaret Gaffney, was destined for greatness from the day of her birth. Born on Christmas Day, the fifth child of hard - working, poor Irish parents, she was to be the inspiration that made possible this family's move from Ireland to America.

Baltimore was a new and strange place to the Gaffneys, and more than once they were doubtful as to whether or not their move had been a wise one. Had it not been for the comfort of the good Irish people of St. Patrick's Church, and the sunshine that Margaret brought into their lives daily, they would have spent many miserable hours of homesickness for Ireland.

When Margaret was about eight years of age, her mother and father died of a strange malady that swept Baltimore and surrounding areas. She was adopted by a friend, who educated her, and when she was grown into a beautiful young woman, introduced her to the man she was to marry. Charles Haughery was the man. He was a weak person physically, and constantly needed someone to boost his ego. His inferiority complex is what attracted Margaret in the first place. Here was someone who needed her more than anyone she had ever met.

After Margaret and Charles married, their move to New Orleans for his health seemed to be the turning point in her life. Once there and settled in the Irish Channel, as the Irish section of the city was called, she found many things to occupy her. Her close affiliation with St. Patrick's Church made it possible for her to find people sorely in need of her help. Their ignorance of sanitation troubled her, and she spent many hours teaching people to boil their drinking water, and trying to convince them that cleanliness would help prevent disease. More than once she was accused of witchcraft because of her ideas.

Margaret fulfilled her destiny. She was great as was predicted she would be. People in need were her life and she gave them her life freely. She was indeed an Angel of the Delta.

Bannock Of Idaho Is A Tragic Tale

This is an excellent book about a little-known tribe of Indians.

From the first intrusion of Missouri Fur Company trappers into their homeland in 1810 and until they were confined to the Fort Hall Reservation in 1869, the Bannock Indians of southern Idaho fought against white encroachment.

The work by Madsen is the story of the tragic tale of broken agreements, diminishing food supplies, and of a proud and independent people who refused the blandishments of white civilization, preferring to cling to their old ways.

When Mormon missionaries came among them in the 1850's, they were at first well received, but soon the inclination for war and the presence of enticing herds of horses and cattle at the Lemhi settlement provoked the Bannock to another raid.

Their great chief, Taghee, expressed the problem of his people when he said to the governor of Idaho in 1866, "The white people have come into my country, and have not asked my consent. Why is this? And why have no persons talked to me before? I have never known what the white people wanted me to do."

The illustrations include twelve drawings, a colored frontispiece, and an end-sheet map prepared by M. D. Stewart. There are also five illustrations from photographs.

BOOK BRIEFS

Acute observer and chronicler of America's emergence as a major world power throughout a lifetime that spanned the years from 1838 to 1918, Henry Adams has long been considered one of the seminal interpreters of this country's political, intellectual, and spiritual coming of age. A "Henry Adams Reader," edited and with an introduction by Elizabeth Stevenson, author of "Henry Adams," a definitive biography, has been designed to fill the requirements of the student and the general reader who wish for an authoritative and comprehensive sampling of Adams' work. One of a new hardcover series called Doubleday Anchor Books, it is to be published Feb. 21.

A one - volume autobiography of Mark Twain, drawing upon original source material in the Berkeley, Calif., library and elsewhere, is in preparation for Harper & Brothers. Charles Neider, who is editing the volume, will appreciate hearing from anyone who has letters or papers which might be relevant.

Harper & Brothers believe John Gunther has set somewhat of a record with book clubs. His "Inside Russia Today," which will be published on April 9 is his eighth successive book distributed by the Book-of-the-Month-Club.

John Brooks, author of "The Big Wheel," and "The Man Who Broke Things" (the latter will be published by Harpers on March 12) is on his way to the South Pole.

The story of one of the most praised commanders in the Union Army during the Civil War Major General John F. Reynolds, will be told for the first time in a book to be published in April by Pennsylvania State University Press and distributed by the Associated College Presses, a division of the New York University Press. The book, "Toward Gettysburg," by E. J. Nichols, reconstructs in historical perspective the personal and professional memoirs of the general who, on July 1, 1863, committed the Army of the Potomac to fight at Gettysburg, the most decisive battle of the war.

Publishing more plans than all other houses combined, the Random House theatre book list is a weather vane to a hit year on Broadway. The barometer is rising fast in the 1958-59 season, with six plays scheduled for publication: Dore Schary's "Sunrise at Campobello," Ray Lawler's "Summer of The Seventeeth Doll;" Peter Ustinov's "Romanoff and Juliet;" William Inge's "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs;" and the musicals "West Side Story and "New Girl In Town."

Why Russia was ahead of the United States in launching an earth satellite is one of the questions answered by Jonathan Norton Leonard in the new edition of his "Flight into Space." Random House, which published the prophetic volume a few years ago, will bring out the up-to-the-minute edition in the Modern Library Paperback series late this month.

It's three times and in for Random House on the book club front. Shirley Barker's new historical novel, "Swear by Apollo," has just been chosen by the literary guild as its September dual selection.

Largest Photo Exhibit Being Set For Show

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

As this column is written, the mammoth job of preparing the country's largest and most important photo show for the public is in its final stages. By the time you read it, the 12th Annual National Photo Show will have had its week's run at New York's Coliseum and camera fans will have seen the latest in cameras, handled the newest equipment, watched experts demonstrate techniques and snapped miles of film of pretty models.

From previous experience, I know how the milling mob besieges each exhibit booth to drool at the latest gadgets, so it's a distinct advantage for me to be able to see them in advance in comparative comfort.

I did a little drooling myself when I got a quick glance at the first private unveiling of a completely remodeled 4 x 5 Speed Graphic. The new aluminum body creation, the Super Graphic 45, has so many innovations, it should prove to be a shot in the arm in the large camera field. I hope to use one of the first units available for personal testing and report shortly.

In the home movie field, the introduction of the CinemaScope anamorphic lens for 16mm and 8mm cameras makes news. This optical device reaches out and grabs a greater field of vision both horizontally and vertically. It compresses the view on normal film. Then when the device is put on the projector, it decompresses or spreads out the scenes to widescreen proportions. If your movies need a lift or if you want them to spread out, this may be the answer.

The new thimble - sized zirconium filled flashbulbs were demonstrated to prove they pack the power of bulbs four times their size. The GE entry in this field, the M5, makes news because it can be flashed on "M" synchronized shutters. This is the first subminiature flashblub that can be fired on all shutter speeds in the same way as the No. 5 bulb and practically matches it in light output.

Novel targets for camera fans include a huge Eiffel tower background with a turntable and Parisian model; a colorful display of dancing fountains and an exhibit featuring space cities under plastic domes, earth satellites and a Lunar express.

Undoubtedly, I will meet more camera fans at this photo show than I've ever met before. That's because I'm scheduled to present my "Photo - Magic" demonstration every night during the week and on the weekend afternoons.

For the uninitiated, "Photo-Magic," is a personal combination of my two hobbies, magic and photography. Actually, I invented it in self-defence. As a photo writer, I receive many requests to talk to camera clubs and photo meetings. But I feel there are many experts better qualified to talk on the technical aspects of photography. So I blended some magic tricks with photographic props and prints and the result has been entertaining if not technically instructive.

At any rate, I hope "Photo-Magic" proves how well photography can mix with any other hobby or interest and bring benefit to both.

VOLUME NO. ONE

T. Roosevelt As A Fighting Boy

THEODORE ROOSEVELT: Volume 1. THE FORMATIVE YEARS 1858-1886. By Carleton Putnam. Scribners. $10.

The Bullochs, of Georgia, and the Roosevelts, of New York, old and distinguished families, were united in 1853 with the marriage of the Southern daughter Mittie and the Northerner Teddy. One son, born five years later, was the future President Theodore.

As a boy he suffered from ghastly illnesses, sick stomach, a heart supposed not to be of the strongest beat, and asthma, which wore him down at home and in Europe when he spent endless nights wheezing, coughing and sitting up miserably in bed.

The boy fought it. He appears to have been endowed with, or to have whipped up, a fantastic desperate amount of energy. The youth who could have been expected to drop dead threatened to exhaust relatives and friends till indeed they dropped dead with his interminable walks, his mountain climbing, his tireless winter hunting and his riding on his ranch.

His work at law led perhaps inevitably to Albany. While in the Legislature, after the loss some years before of his beloved father, he lost his wife Alice and his mother within 24 hours. This volume, first of a projected four, gets him engaged to Edith Carow and sets him well along on the path to fame.

Having the good fortune to see papers no previous Roosevelt biographer had worked with, Putnam is extraordinarily thorough. This is not just a complete account, but super - complete. We know on what lawn on what slope Teddy first walked with Alice, what route he followed from the Grand Central on a certain night 75 years ago; and when he sets out, say, to conquer the Matterhorn, Putnam, as indefatigable as his subject, briefs us on previous climbs, the number of dead, the nature of the difficulties before letting Roosevelt himself start — at exactly 3:45 a. m.

Some readers may ask whether, in the perspective of history, Theodore Roosevelt is worth this detail. He had a gory record as a hunter, he certainly exaggerated the quality of courage, and his obsession with matters of health and wholesomeness risked in a sense being unhealthy and unwholesome itself. But he became the indestructible symbol of a certain valorous aspect of our America, which he intensified more than any other man. This shows best, perhaps, in Putnam's anecdote of the day Roosevelt, thrown by one bronco after another, still refused the friendly offer of a real cowboy to "break" the next animal for him with the remark: "Cowboy, I know you can ride him; what I want to find out is if I can ride him."

But whatever you think of Roosevelt, you have no doubt about Putnam: he is a major biographer. This sort of achievement wins the coveted literary prizes.

'No Time For Sergeants' In Ruston Mon.

RUSTON (Special) — "No Time for Sergeants," generally recognized as one of the most hilarious comedy successes, will be presented in two performances in Howard Auditorium here tomorrow, under the auspices of the Louisiana Tech Concert Association.

A program for Tech students is scheduled for 2:15 p.m. and a presentation for the general public will be given at 8 p.m. The programs are open only to the students and other members of the LTCA.

The play is the Ira Levin hit adaptation of Mac Hyman's popular novel about an ingenious Georgia farm boy whose innocent good will disrupts the standard operating procedure of both the United States Army and the United States Air Force. It will be seen here in an exact replica of the New York presentation, including members of the Broadway cast.

In addition to Charles Hohman, who played the happy Will Stockdale in New York for over a year, the company features Rex Everhart as the harassed sergeant whose troubles mount with each gesture of good will made by the warmhearted private; Tucker Ashworth as Ben, Stockdale's ridiculous but ever loyal friend; Howard Freeman and Royal Bleal as the two generals whose combined efforts cannot cope with the disastrous results of Stockdale's friendly disposition, and James Millhollin as a psychiatrist routed by the private's cheer.

The comedy is being presented by Maurice Evans, television and theatrical producer-actor, in association with Emmett Rogers. The production has been directed by Martin Da Costa, who staged the original Broadway presentation.

Carroll Baker Given Roles Of Varied Extremes

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actress Carroll Baker may be reasonably uncomplicated in private life, but on the screen her films deal in titles of extremes and psychiatrists' potential subjects.

"Baby Doll" established Miss Baker as a fine portrayer of a young woman in need of a psychiatrist. She had played in another picture with an extreme title, "Giant," and now she's back as a problem girl in "The Big Country." This time she's a pampered daughter who—in her words—lives in a father image.

"By that I mean she is unaware of her own emotions and compares all men to her father," she said. "She finds them second best—and that includes her fiance, played by Gregory Peck."

The father is Charles Bickford, a baron-type rancher, and the net effect of the role doesn't bother happy Miss Baker at all.

" 'Baby Doll' with her problems started the whole thing," she said. "But I don't mind in the least. I like having some sort of a problem to work on in a picture."

OLD RIVER BOAT

Delta Queen To Stay In Service

CINCINNATI, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Delta Queen, last of the overnight passenger boats on American rivers, will continue to operate on the Ohio, Tennessee and Mississippi rivers.

The famed boat was sold today by Greene Line Steamers to a group of investors, headed by Richard S. Simonton and Edwin J. Quinby of Los Angeles. They said the boat will continue in operation as a passenger carrier with the Green Line in charge.

Financial details of the transaction were not disclosed.

The Delta Queen was put up for sale several weeks ago after Mrs. Letha Greene, president of the Greene Line, said lack of passenger reservations made its operation impossible. Even the annual trip from Cincinnati to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras was canceled.

The new owners said the Delta Queen's first trip under the new management would be from Cincinnati to Louisville, Ky., for the Kentucky Derby. Also scheduled is a vacationers trip from Cincinnati to New Orleans, beginning here May 10.

And the famed boat soon may be seen on television.

Mrs. Greene said negotiations are under way with Twentieth Century-Fox TV for a television series. Details were not immediately available, but it was believed the boat would be used as the setting for a TV play series.

The Delta Queen was built in Scotland in 1926 and shipped to San Francisco. There, she operated as an overnight boat between San Francisco and Sacramento until after World War II, when she was bought by the Greene Line and towed to Cincinnati by way of the Panama Canal.

The Greene Line was established in 1890 by the late Gordon Greene and at on time operated 25 passenger boats on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

Services Set For Ex-Chief Of Louisiana

LAKE CHARLES, La., Feb. 22 (AP)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Alvin O. King, 67, the man who replaced the late Huey Long as governor when he moved into the U.S. Senate.

King died shortly before midnight last night at a local hospital. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at Hixson Funeral Home.

King was propelled from Senate president pro tem into the governor's chair in 1931 after some swift legal moves by Huey Long.

When Long was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1930, he delayed taking the oath because Lt. Gov. Paul N. Cyr was a member of an oppising faction. However, Cyr took the oath of office as governor before Long stepped out and took the oath as senator.

A quick court action won a verdict that Cyr had stepped out as lieutenant governor, but was not legally governor because Long still held that office.

King, next in line, took the oath as lieutenant governor Oct. 14, 1931, and moved up to governor when Long was sworn in as senator Jan. 25, 1932.

Cyr field ouster proceedings, but King held the office until the term expired in May, 1932. He was succeeded by a strong Huey Long supporter, Oscar K. Allen of Winnfield, Long's home town.

King retired from politics after 1932 to practice law in Lake Charles, although he has served on several advisory councils since that time.

At the time of his death, he was senior partner in the law firm of King, Anderson and Swift.

King was born in Lake Charles. He received his law degree at Tulane university. He served as city attorney in Lake Charles and DeQuincy before he was elected to the state Senate in 1924.

King had been in failing health for several months. He went to the hospital last Tuesday.

Survivors include his widow; One son, Voris King, both of Lake Charles; a sister, Mrs. Edna King Chapman of Tulsa, Okal. and two brothers, C. A. and Jean M. King, both of Lake Charles.

Gov. Faubus Well Received In Washington

WASHINGTON, Feb 22 (AP) — Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, here for a Democratic fund-raising dinner tonight, said he has been treated "most graciously."

There were some earlier reports that, because of the Little Rock school integration issue, Faubus wouldn't be too welcome at tonight's affair.

Asked by reporters at a news conference whether he felt he had been snubbed by anyone, Faubus replied:

"Not at all. Everyone has been most gracious."

Faubus has been something of a political storm center since last fall when he ordered Arkansas National Guardsmen to Little Rock's Central High School to prevent Negro pupils from entering. He said this was necessary to preserve order.

Later, President Eisenhower federalized the Arkansas National Guard and ordered federal troops to Central High to enforce court-ordered integration. Some guardsmen still are on duty there, although the regular troops have been withdrawn.

Former President Truman, in his speech prepared for the Democratic dinner, referred indirectly to the use of troops at Little Rock. Calling for full enjoyment of civil rights by all Americans, Truman said, "I think that firm and foresighted leadership might accomplish this without calling on the Army for help."

Truman also said that for the Democratic party "there can be no compromise which will deny to any of our people the enjoyment of their basic rights of citizenship."

Tear Gas Pistol Causes Excitement

A tear gas pistol fell from a visitor's purse and fired causing brief excitement at Conway Hospital yesterday afternoon, staff members at the hospital reported.

An unidentified woman explained that she carried the weapon with her when she traveled, according to hospital attendants. No injuries were reported, but a quantity of the gas diffused over the area setting off wheezing and coughing among patients, visitors, and employees, some witnesses said.

OLD RIVER BOAT

Delta Queen To Stay In Service

CINCINNATI, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Delta Queen, last of the overnight passenger boats on American rivers, will continue to operate on the Ohio, Tennessee and Mississippi rivers.

The famed boat was sold today by Greene Line Steamers to a group of investors, headed by Richard S. Simonton and Edwin J. Quinby of Los Angeles. They said the boat will continue in operation as a passenger carrier with the Green Line in charge.

Financial details of the transaction were not disclosed.

The Delta Queen was put up for sale several weeks ago after Mrs. Letha Greene, president of the Greene Line, said lack of passenger reservations made its operation impossible. Even the annual trip from Cincinnati to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras was canceled.

The new owners said the Delta Queen's first trip under the new management would be from Cincinnati to Louisville, Ky., for the Kentucky Derby. Also scheduled is a vacationers trip from Cincinnati to New Orleans, beginning here May 10.

And the famed boat soon may be seen on television.

Mrs. Greene said negotiations are under way with Twentieth Century-Fox TV for a television series. Details were not immediately available, but it was believed the boat would be used as the setting for a TV play series.

The Delta Queen was built in Scotland in 1926 and shipped to San Francisco. There, she operated as an overnight boat between San Francisco and Sacramento until after World War II, when she was bought by the Greene Line and towed to Cincinnati by way of the Panama Canal.

The Greene Line was established in 1890 by the late Gordon Greene and at on time operated 25 passenger boats on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

Services Set For Ex-Chief Of Louisiana

LAKE CHARLES, La., Feb. 22 (AP)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Alvin O. King, 67, the man who replaced the late Huey Long as governor when he moved into the U.S. Senate.

King died shortly before midnight last night at a local hospital. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at Hixson Funeral Home.

King was propelled from Senate president pro tem into the governor's chair in 1931 after some swift legal moves by Huey Long.

When Long was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1930, he delayed taking the oath because Lt. Gov. Paul N. Cyr was a member of an oppising faction. However, Cyr took the oath of office as governor before Long stepped out and took the oath as senator.

A quick court action won a verdict that Cyr had stepped out as lieutenant governor, but was not legally governor because Long still held that office.

King, next in line, took the oath as lieutenant governor Oct. 14, 1931, and moved up to governor when Long was sworn in as senator Jan. 25, 1932.

Cyr field ouster proceedings, but King held the office until the term expired in May, 1932. He was succeeded by a strong Huey Long supporter, Oscar K. Allen of Winnfield, Long's home town.

King retired from politics after 1932 to practice law in Lake Charles, although he has served on several advisory councils since that time.

At the time of his death, he was senior partner in the law firm of King, Anderson and Swift.

King was born in Lake Charles. He received his law degree at Tulane university. He served as city attorney in Lake Charles and DeQuincy before he was elected to the state Senate in 1924.

King had been in failing health for several months. He went to the hospital last Tuesday.

Survivors include his widow: One son, Voris King, both of Lake Charles; a sister, Mrs. Edna King Chapman of Tulsa, Okal., and two brothers, C. A. and Jean M. King, both of Lake Charles.

Gov. Faubus Well Received In Washington

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) — Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, here for a Democratic fund-raising dinner tonight, said he has been treated "most graciously."

There were some earlier reports that, because of the Little Rock school integration issue, Faubus wouldn't be too welcome at tonight's affair.

Asked by reporters at a news conference whether he felt he had been snubbed by anyone, Faubus replied:

"Not at all. Everyone has been most gracious."

Faubus has been something of a political storm center since last fall when he ordered Arkansas National Guardsmen to Little Rock's Central High School to prevent Negro pupils from entering. He said this was necessary to preserve order.

Later, President Eisenhower federalized the Arkansas National Guard and ordered federal troops to Central High to enforce court-ordered integration. Some guardsmen still are on duty there, although the regular troops have been withdrawn.

Former President Truman, in his speech prepared for the Democratic dinner, referred indirectly to the use of troops at Little Rock. Calling for full enjoyment of civil rights by all Americans, Truman said, "I think that firm and foresighted leadership might accomplish this without calling on the Army for help."

Truman also said that for the Democratic party "there can be no compromise which will deny to any of our people the enjoyment of their basic rights of citizenship."

Tear Gas Pistol Causes Excitement

A tear gas pistol fell from a visitor's purse and fired causing brief excitement at Conway Hospital yesterday afternoon, staff members at the hospital reported.

An unidentified woman explained that she carried the weapon with her when she traveled, according to hospital attendants. No injuries were reported, but a quantity of the gas diffused over the area setting off wheezing and coughing among patients, visitors, and employees, some witnesses said.

Holliman Coach Of Year

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions will play one of their most ambitious football schedules next fall as they squeeze in eleven games without an open date and still wind up the schedule by November 14.

Coach Bob Ellen has released his next season's grid menu that includes two new additions. The Jonesboro-Hodge Tigers replace Minden on the Lion slate for a September 12 game, and the Bossier High Bearcats are tentatively booked for that open date the Lions liked to have just ahead of the Neville game, November 7.

It's the first time in our memory that Ouachita has a schedule with no open dates. For many, many years Ouachita kept a traditional open date ahead of the Byrd game. When the Neville rivalry began, Ouachita worked up a slate that would allow for an open date before facing their crosstown rivals.

Then along came West Monroe, moving into the date left open ahead of Byrd, and now that Bossier plans to join the triple-A ranks, the Lions are bringing in this conference game in the slot ahead of Neville.

The complete schedule with last season's scores in parenthesis and Ouachita's score listed first:

Sept. 5 - Homer, here (6-13).
Sept. 12 - Jonesboro-Hodge, here.
Sept. 19 - Ruston, there (27-47).
Sept. 26 - Pineville, there (28-7).
Oct. 3 - Bastrop, there (last season's date cancelled, flu).
Oct. 10 - Haynesville, here (0-27).
Oct. 17 - Fair Park at Shreveport (18-20).
Oct. 24 - West Monroe, here (0-27).
Oct. 31 - Byrd, here (0-41).
Nov. 7 - Bossier at Bossier City, tentative.
Nov. 14 - Neville, here (6-20).

Little League baseball directors of Monroe have elected Saul Adler, Monroe businessman with a long background in athletics, to succeed the late Dr. William L. Bendel as president of Monroe Little League, Inc., and the Northside League. Adler moved up from a vice presidency slot.

He played pro basketball for the old Coffee Club of Pittsburgh, Pa., many years ago before coming to Monroe to establish his business. In the 930's he sponsored a softball team here until he joined with Dr. Bendel and Max Moses to take over the Monroe Cotton States League club from the late Dick Burnett of Dallas and Texas League fame in the late 1930's. He has avidly supported baseball, and with the collapse of the pro brand in Monroe, has put all his energies into Little League, an organization he helped found here.

Recently we announced for Little League that a plan was underway to seek donations for a $4,000 project, the building of a new Little League park on the northside of Monroe at a location in Forsythe Park.

But the drive is apparently falling far short of its mark. After two weeks parents of Northside League boys have raised $102 and $195 has been realized from other sources for a total of $297. That leaves the $4,000 that had been sought for just the bare park necessities looking like a mighty distant figure to attain.

Already there is a discussion stage project to get the Little Leaguers their needed help. We hope to be able to report all about it by the time another week rolls around.

Dr. Prentice Gray Jr. doesn't claim credit for originating the saying but he is passing it along: "Little League baseball is the finest thing we have for combating ADULT delinquency." Many parents and relatives of the youngsters change their living habits to follow their sons, nephews and grandsons on the diamond.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Deer Woes Will Be Talked Here

Ed McDonald, member of the Louisiana Wild Life Commission and president of the Tensas parish police jury, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Ouachita unit of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation here Wednesday night at Hotel Virginia at 7:30 o'clock.

Bob Downing, newly elected unit president, said McDonald has accepted an invitation to speak before the unit regarding the deer problem in Tensas parish, and that all persons in this section of the state interested in deer as hunters and conservationists are invited to the meeting.

The unit regularly meets the last Tuesday in a month, but the session this month has been set back to Wednesday in order that McDonald can be here. A commission hearing at New Orleans Tuesday would not permit his attendance here that night.

"Mr. McDonald will bring with him the chief enforcement officer of the state commission to give us a report on what's going on in the deer country, facts, figures and statistics," Downing said. "Installation of the new officers also takes place as a back seat feature to the appearance of Mr. McDonald."

Two outdoor motion pictures, "Alligator Hunt," and "Man, Gun, and a Dog," will also be shown.

In addition to Downing, the new officers are Jack Rushing, vice president,and Lloyd Voorhees, secretary-treasurer.

Liege Beaten By Oligarchy; $20.90 Payoff

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Lightweight Oligarchy made the most of a 17-pound weight advantage Saturday to beat Kentucky Derby champion Iron Liege in the $130,000 Widener Handicap.

Oligarchy, ably handled by Sammy Boulmetis. beat Iron Leige by a head. Willie Hartack got every ounce of power out of Iron Liege, a 4-year-old colt which seemed to come again in a long stretch duel but fell short under high weight of 125 pounds.

Hoop Band, ridden by Hedley Woodhouse, beat Iron Liege's running mate from the Calumet Farms, Pintor Lea, by a neck for third money.

Oligarchy, the third choice, paid $20.90, $6.70 and $4.50 for a two dollar bet across the board. Iron Liege returned $2.70 and $2.30, while Hoop Band, 23-1 win choice, paid $6.60 to show.

Don Chandler of the New York Giants led the National Football League in punting last season. His 60 punts averaged 44.6 yards.

HOUSTON (UP)— Colonial National Invitation Golf tournament officials Saturday added six current champions and Dow Finsterwald, the tour's most consistent money winner, to the field for their $25,000 affair at Fort Worth April 30-May 4.

The current champs were Al Besselink, Bill Johnston, Gene Littler, Arnold Palmer, Ken Venturi and Art Wall Jr. Finsterwald, while not holding a current title, has been in the money in 72 straight tourneys.

The seven added Saturday fills 25 of the 48 places in the National Invitation lineup.

3 Schools Put Hoopsters On All-TC Team

H. H. Holliman, veteran coach of Ouachita's 1-AAA champions, was named "Coach of the Year" and the Lions and Neville placed two men each on the All Twin Cities basketball team released yesterday by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Neville, the defending state champion and current district 2-AA runnerup, had forward Fred Southerland and guard Francis Genusa on the all-star team while Ouachita placed forward Lanny Johnson and center Billy Roach. West Monroe's Shelby Aulds, the Twin Cities leading scorer, is the other honoree.

The team was picked by local coaches Fred Lindsey of Southside, Lenny Fant of Northeast, George Davis of Neville, Holliman, Jim Mahoney of St. Matthew's and L. V. Norris of West Monroe.

Holliman, the dean of the local basketball mentors, is currently in his 14th year as cage coach at the parish school. He took over in the fall of 1944. An athlete at Northeast Junior College, Holliman is a graduate of Union. A perenial power in conference basketball, Holliman's Lions won their "8th or 9th" district championship under his tutelage this year with a 5-1 league record. For the regular season, Ouachita had a 24-12 mark.

Aulds, one of only two returning lettermen from last season's West Monroe team, was a star for the Rebels all year. In 36 games, he scored 738 points for an average of 20.5 per game, both tops in the Twin Cities. A defensive stickout as well with quick reflexes and tremendous spring in his legs, Aulds jumped center for the Rebels occasionally. He was a second team all-state selection last year.

Aulds companion at guard, Neville's Genusa, is another extremely fast man who gathered most of his points leading fast breaks. The smallest member of the all-star quintet, Genusa averaged 7.6 points per game for the Tigers. his high game total was the 19 he got Friday night against Ouachita.

Johnson was the second top scorer in the Twin Cities. With statistics unavailable for three games, he had 542 points for the season for an even 18 per game average. Scoring most of his points from the corners or just outside the foul circle on a highly arched push shot, Johnson gathered 40 points in the Lions opening game, best single game effort of the year locally. Johnson is also a top rebounder and ball handler.

Southerland was Neville's pivot man and top scorer. A fine baseball pitcher as well as star basketballer, southpaw Southerland scored 524 points for the season for a 15.4 per game average. A tough rebounder, Southerland top single game production was 32 points. An all-state selection last year, Southerland is a prime candidate for a berth on this year's all-double-A outfit.

An all-district end in football, Ouachita's Roach was the Lions best backboard man and a great defensive player. Fast and agile, he played the pivot most of the year and in 29 games scored 320 points for a 11.3 per game pace. The blond senior's top single game effort was 22 points.

SPEARSVILLE, La. (Special) — Spearsville boys routed Bernice, 75-41, and Hico girls toppled Junction City, 35-25, to win the championships in the Spearsville Undergraduate Cage Tournament last night.

Hico advanced to the finals with a 37-31 triumph over Spearsville's girls in the afternoon semi-finals while Spearsville boys trampled Neville, 71-44, in the boys semis.

Broughton and Odom scored 16 points each for Hico in the finals with Garris leading Junction City with 20. Futch had 23, R. V. Lockwood 17 and Bobby Lockwood 12 for Spearsville and Smith got 14 to lead Bernice and L. Grafton had 12.

FANS TO PICK MAIN EVENT

Wrestle Royal On Kallio's Program

Wrestling fans get a chance to choose the main event at Kallio's Arena Monday night as veteran promoter Gus Kallio introduces his own version of a 5 - man wrestle royal.

Jack Curtis, Bill Barney, Jack Larue, Charley Laye and the Golden Terror are the boys who'll take part in this new experiment in audience participation. Three matches will be presented, the wrestle royal, a semi - final and a main event.

Kallio's version of the wrestle royal will feature a bonus to the winner, a draw to determine the pairings for the regulation bouts and the audience's applause will pick the main event. After the wrestle royal, the five wrestlers will draw numbers from a hat. Numbers one and two will meet each other and three and four will fight in the other match.

The two sets of wrestlers will be presented to the fans and the pair that gets the heaviest applause will swap holds in the main event and the other two in the semi - final. The number five wrestler will be through for the evening and will only be paid traveling expenses.

There will be no time limit on the wrestle royal and the semi-final will have a 45 - minute limit and the main event will be over the hour or less route. Two falls will be needed to win both matches.

The wrestle royal will be every man for himself with the first man to be pinned to leave the ring and so on down the line until only one wrestler remains. This lucky fellow will be presented a $25 bonus.

Tomorrow night's matches will afford local fans their first opportunity to see the Golden Terror in action in several months. The big, masked grappler is well known, though not well liked, hereabouts.

Bill Barney, the Louisiana heavyweight champion, will also be making his first appearance on Kallio's mat in some time. Wild Bill's been under the weather a bit lately but has recovered and is ready for action.

This will be the first wrestling show here in three weeks. Two weeks ago the card was cancelled due to bad weather and a boxing program was presented last week.

95 ELIGIBLE

Eleven Names Lopped Off Masters Tournament List

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 22 (AP)—Eleven names have been lopped off the invitation list for the 1958 Master Golf Tournament, April 3-6, as a result of changes in the qualification requirements.

But the list of 95 United States eligibles, released today, includes four new permanent invites and five others who never have played in the Masters. The total is about 15 less than the average for the past few years.

After 101 players started in the 1957 Masters, tournament officials decided that professionals no longer would be invited on the basis of their achievements as amateurs This lopped nine names off the permanent list, but three of these players are eligible this year under other qualifications.

Then it was decided to invite only the first 16 players in the U.S. Open championship, instead of 24. This took five more off the list.

Explaining the latter change, Tournament Committee Chairman Clifford Roberts said: "We feel that 16 is the proper proportional arrangement, considering that only eight players can qualify in the U.S. Amateur and the same number in the P.G.A. Championship. Since both amateurs and professionals compete in the open, it is, of course, logical to offer double the number of Masters invitations."

Only two amateurs were among the first 24 in the 1957 Open.

The four players who earned permanent invitations last year were Doug Ford, the Masters winner; Dick Mayer, U.S. Open champion; Hillman Robbins, Jr. U. S. Amateur champion; and Lionel Hebert, PGA champion. A total of 60 players now are eligible under these four qualifications and four others as former British Open or Amateur champions.

Pros who are former U. S. or British Amateur champions no longer are automatically eligible. Among them are Arnold Palmer, who gets an invitation because he was in the top 24 in last year's Masters, and Billy Maxwell and Frank Stranahan, who were in the low 16 in the open.

But such players as Joe Conrad, Gene Littler, Skee Riegel and Bud Ward are out unless they fit into one of the five qualifications still to be filled. Ward also was one of the players between 16th and 24th in the 1957 Open. Others were Don Fairfield, Jim Ferree, Bo Wininger, George Bayer and Ed Oliver.

These reductions were decided on after the first day's play last year barely was finished before dark after a 9:30 a.m. start.

The five newcomers to the tournament are Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., a member of the 1957 Walker Cup team and semi-finalist in the amateur championship; Gene Andres of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif., quarter - finalists in the amateur, and Charles Sheppard of West Newton, Mass., and Don Whitt of Alameda Calif., quarter - finalists in the PGA championship.

In addition, invitations will be extended to one player picked by a ballot of the Masters champions one amateur selected by the amateur champions, one pro selected by the open champions and two pros who establish the best showing on the current winter circuit.

The last two won't be named until the last tournament before the Amsters, the Azalea Open at Wilmington, N.C. Four of the six tournament winners so far on the tour already are eligible.

The Masters never releases the names of foreign players invited until they actually show up at the Augusta National Course, but undoubtedly there will be a few. Roberto De Vicenzo of Mexico, one of the top players in the 1957 U.S. Open, and several British players are expected to join the U.S. circuit this spring.

Canada's Stan Leonard and Al Balding, regular U.S. tourists, were among the top 24 in last year's Masters and Australia's Peter Thomson, fifth last year, has been an annual visitor to America in recent years.

In addition the Japan Golf Assn. recently revealed that it was trying to raise money to send the Canada Cup winners, Torakichi Nakamura and Koichi Ono, to the Masters and other U.S. tournaments.

Holliman Coach Of Year

Paul Martin

Looks 'Em Over

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions will play one of their most ambitious football schedules next fall as they squeeze in eleven games without an open date and still wind up the schedule by November 14.

Coach Bob Ellen has released his next season's grid menu that includes two new additions. The Jonesboro-Hodge Tigers replace Minden on the Lion slate for a September 12 game, and the Bossier High Bearcats are tentatively booked for that open date the Lions liked to have just ahead of the Neville game, November 7.

It's the first time in our memory that Ouachita has a schedule with no open dates. For many, many years Ouachita kept a traditional open date ahead of the Byrd game. When the Neville rivalry began, Ouachita worked up a slate that would allow for an open date before facing their crosstown rivals.

Then along came West Monroe, moving into the date left open ahead of Byrd, and now that Bossier plans to join the triple-A ranks, the Lions are bringing in this conference game in the slot ahead of Neville.

The complete schedule with last season's scores in parenthesis and Ouachita's score listed first:

Sept. 5 - Homer, here (6-13).
Sept. 12 - Jonesboro-Hodge, here.
Sept. 19 - Ruston, there (27-47).
Sept. 26 - Pineville, there (28-7).
Oct. 3 - Bastrop, there (last season's date cancelled, flu).
Oct. 10 - Haynesville, here (0-27).
Oct. 17 - Fair Park at Shreveport (18-20).
Oct. 24 - West Monroe, here (0-27).
Oct. 31 - Byrd, here (0-41).
Nov. 7 - Bossier at Bossier City, tentative.
Nov. 14 - Neville, here (6-20).

Little League baseball directors of Monroe have elected Saul Adler, Monroe businessman with a long background in athletics, to succeed the late Dr. William L. Bendel as president of Monroe Little League, Inc., and the Northside League. Adler moved up from a vice presidency slot.

He played pro basketball for the old Coffee Club of Pittsburgh, Pa., many years ago before coming to Monroe to establish his business. In the 1930's he sponsored a softball team here until he joined with Dr. Bendel and Max Moses to take over the Monroe Cotton States League club from the late Dick Burnett of Dallas and Texas League fame in the late 1930's. He has avidly supported baseball, and with the collapse of the pro brand in Monroe, has put all his energies into Little League, an organization he helped found here.

Recently we announced for Little League that a plan was underway to seek donations for a $4,000 project, the building of a new Little League park on the northside of Monroe at a location in Forsythe Park.

But the drive is apparently falling far short of its mark. After two weeks parents of Northside League boys have raised $102 and $195 has been realized from other sources for a total of $297. That leaves the $4,000 that had been sought for just the bare park necessities looking like a mighty distant figure to attain.

Already there is a discussion stage project to get the Little Leaguers their needed help. We hope to be able to report all about it by the time another week rolls around.

Dr. Prentice Gray Jr. doesn't claim credit for originating the saying but he is passing it along: "Little League baseball is the finest thing we have for combating ADULT delinquency." Many parents and relatives of the youngsters change their living habits to follow their sons, nephews and grandsons on the diamond.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Deer Woes Will Be Talked Here

Ed McDonald, member of the Louisiana Wild Life Commission and president of the Tensas parish police jury, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Ouachita unit of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation here Wednesday night at Hotel Virginia at 7:30 o'clock.

Bob Downing, newly elected unit president, said McDonald has accepted an invitation to speak before the unit regarding the deer problem in Tensas parish, and that all persons in this section of the state interested in deer as hunters and conservationists are invited to the meeting.

The unit regularly meets the last Tuesday in a month, but the session this month has been set back to Wednesday in order that McDonald can be here. A commission hearing at New Orleans Tuesday would not permit his attendance here that night.

"Mr. McDonald will bring with him the chief enforcement officer of the state commission to give us a report on what's going on in the deer country, facts, figures and statistics," Downing said. "Installation of the new officers also takes place as a back seat feature to the appearance of Mr. McDonald."

Two outdoor motion pictures, "Alligator Hunt," and "Man, Gun, and a Dog," will also be shown.

In addition to Downing, the new officers are Jack Rushing, vice president, and Lloyd Voorhees, secretary-treasurer.

Liege Beaten By Oligarchy; $20.90 Payoff

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Lightweight Oligarchy made the most of a 17-pound weight advantage Saturday to beat Kentucky Derby champion Iron Liege in the $130,000 Widener Handicap.

Oligarchy, ably handled by Sammy Boulmetis. beat Iron Leige by a head. Willie Hartack got every ounce of power out of Iron Liege, a 4-year-old colt which seemed to come again in a long stretch duel but fell short under high weight of 125 pounds.

Hoop Band, ridden by Hedley Woodhouse, beat Iron Liege's running mate from the Calumet Farms, Pintor Lea, by a neck for third money.

Oligarchy, the third choice, paid $20.90, $6.70 and $4.50 for a two dollar bet across the board. Iron Liege returned $2.70 and $2.30, while Hoop Band, 23-1 win choice, paid $6.60 to show.

Don Chandler of the New York Giants led the National Football League in punting last season. His 60 punts averaged 44.6 yards.

HOUSTON (UP)— Colonial National Invitation Golf tournament officials Saturday added six current champions and Dow Finsterwald, the tour's most consistent money winner, to the field for their $25,000 affair at Fort Worth April 30-May 4.

The current champs were Al Besselink, Bill Johnston, Gene Littler, Arnold Palmer, Ken Venturi and Art Wall Jr. Finsterwald, while not holding a current title, has been in the money in 72 straight tourneys.

The seven added Saturday fills 25 of the 48 places in the National Invitation lineup.

3 Schools Put Hoopsters On All-TC Team

H. H. Holliman, veteran coach of Ouachita's 1-AAA champions, was named "Coach of the Year" and the Lions and Neville placed two men each on the All Twin Cities basketball team released yesterday by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Neville, the defending state champion and current district 2-AA runnerup, had forward Fred Southerland and guard Francis Genusa on the all-star team while Ouachita placed forward Lanny Johnson and center Billy Roach. West Monroe's Shelby Aulds, the Twin Cities leading scorer, is the other honoree.

The team was picked by local coaches Fred Lindsey of Southside, Lenny Fant of Northeast, George Davis of Neville, Holliman, Jim Mahoney of St. Matthew's and L. V. Norris of West Monroe.

Holliman, the dean of the local basketball mentors, is currently in his 14th year as cage coach at the parish school. He took over in the fall of 1944. An athlete at Northeast Junior College, Holliman is a graduate of Union. A perenial power in conference basketball, Holliman's Lions won their "8th or 9th" district championship under his tutelage this year with a 5-1 league record. For the regular season, Ouachita had a 24-12 mark.

Aulds, one of only two returning lettermen from last season's West Monroe team, was a star for the Rebels all year. In 36 games, he scored 738 points for an average of 20.5 per game, both tops in the Twin Cities. A defensive stickout as well with quick reflexes and tremendous spring in his legs, Aulds jumped center for the Rebels occasionally. He was a second team all-state selection last year.

Aulds companion at guard, Neville's Genusa, is another extremely fast man who gathered most of his points leading fast breaks. The smallest member of the all-star quintet, Genusa averaged 7.6 points per game for the Tigers, his high game total was the 19 he got Friday night against Ouachita.

Johnson was the second top scorer in the Twin Cities. With statistics unavailable for three games, he had 542 points for the season for an even 18 per game average. Scoring most of his points from the corners or just outside the foul circle on a highly arched push shot, Johnson gathered 40 points in the Lions opening game, best single game effort of the year locally. Johnson is also a top rebounder and ball handler.

Southerland was Neville's pivot man and top scorer. A fine baseball pitcher as well as star basketballer, southpaw Southerland scored 524 points for the season for a 15.4 per game average. A tough rebounder, Southerland top single game production was 32 points. An all-state selection last year, Southerland is a prime candidate for a berth on this year's all-double-A outfit.

An all-district end in football, Ouachita's Roach was the Lions best backboard man and a great defensive player. Fast and agile, he played the pivot most of the year and in 29 games scored 320 points for a 11.3 per game pace. The blond senior's top single game effort was 22 points.

Hico Girls, Host Boys Win At Spearsville

SPEARSVILLE, La. (Special) — Spearsville boys routed Bernice, 75-41, and Hico girls toppled Junction City, 35-25, to win the championships in the Spearsville Undergraduate Cage Tournament last night.

Hico advanced to the finals with a 37-31 triumph over Spearsville's girls in the afternoon semi-finals while Spearsville boys trampled Neville, 71-44, in the boys semis.

95 ELIGIBLE

Eleven Names Lopped Off Masters Tournament List

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 22 (AP)—Eleven names have been lopped off the invitation list for the 1958 Master Golf Tournament, April 3-6, as a result of changes in the qualification requirements.

But the list of 95 United States eligibles, released today, includes four new permanent invites and five others who never have played in the Masters. The total is about 15 less than the average for the past few years.

After 101 players started in the 1957 Masters, tournament officials decided that professionals no longer would be invited on the basis of their achievements as amateurs This lopped nine names off the permanent list, but three of these players are eligible this year under other qualifications.

Then it was decided to invite only the first 16 players in the U.S. Open championship, instead of 24. This took five more off the list.

Explaining the latter change, Tournament Committee Chairman Clifford Roberts said: "We feel that 16 is the proper proportional arrangement, considering that only eight players can qualify in the U.S. Amateur and the same number in the P.G.A. Championship. Since both amateurs and professionals compete in the open, it is, of course, logical to offer double the number of Masters invitations."

Only two amateurs were among the first 24 in the 1957 Open.

The four players who earned permanent invitations last year were Doug Ford, the Masters winner; Dick Mayer, U.S. Open champion; Hillman Robbins, Jr. U. S. Amateur champion; and Lionel Hebert, PGA champion. A total of 60 players now are eligible under these four qualifications and four others as former British Open or Amateur champions.

Pros who are former U. S. or British Amateur champions no longer are automatically eligible. Among them are Arnold Palmer, who gets an invitation because he was in the top 24 in last year's Masters, and Billy Maxwell and Frank Stranahan, who were in the low 16 in the open.

But such players as Joe Conrad, Gene Littler, Skee Riegel and Bud Ward are out unless they fit into one of the five qualifications still to be filled. Ward also was one of the players between 16th and 24th in the 1957 Open. Others were Don Fairfield, Jim Ferree, Bo Wininger, George Bayer and Ed Oliver.

These reductions were decided on after the first day's play last year barely was finished before dark after a 9:30 a.m. start.

The five newcomers to the tournament are Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., a member of the 1957 Walker Cup team and semi-finalist in the amateur championship; Gene Andres of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif., quarter - finalists in the amateur, and Charles Sheppard of West Newton, Mass., and Don Whitt of Alameda Calif., quarter - finalists in the PGA championship.

In addition, invitations will be extended to one player picked by a ballot of the Masters champions one amateur selected by the amateur champions, one pro selected by the open champions and two pros who establish the best showing on the current winter circuit.

The last two won't be named until the last tournament before the Amsters, the Azalea Open at Wilmington, N.C. Four of the six tournament winners so far on the tour already are eligible.

The Masters never releases the names of foreign players invited until they actually show up at the Augusta National Course, but undoubtedly there will be a few. Roberto De Vicenzo of Mexico, one of the top players in the 1957 U.S. Open, and several British players are expected to join the U.S. circuit this spring.

Canada's Stan Leonard and Al Balding, regular U.S. tourists, were among the top 24 in last year's Masters and Australia's Peter Thomson, fifth last year, has been an annual visitor to America in recent years.

In addition the Japan Golf Assn. recently revealed that it was trying to raise money to send the Canada Cup winners, Torakichi Nakamura and Koichi Ono, to the Masters and other U.S. tournaments.

FANS TO PICK MAIN EVENT

Wrestle Royal On Kallio's Program

Wrestling fans get a chance to choose the main event at Kallio's Arena Monday night as veteran promoter Gus Kallio introduces his own version of a 5 - man wrestle royal.

Jack Curtis, Bill Barney, Jack Larue, Charley Laye and the Golden Terror are the boys who'll take part in this new experiment in audience participation. Three matches will be presented, the wrestle royal, a semi - final and a main event.

Kallio's version of the wrestle royal will feature a bonus to the winner, a draw to determine the pairings for the regulation bouts and the audience's applause will pick the main event. After the wrestle royal, the five wrestlers will draw numbers from a hat. Numbers one and two will meet each other and three and four will fight in the other match.

The two sets of wrestlers will be presented to the fans and the pair that gets the heaviest applause will swap holds in the main event and the other two in the semi - final. The number five wrestler will be through for the evening and will only be paid traveling expenses.

There will be no time limit on the wrestle royal and the semi-final will have a 45 - minute limit and the main event will be over the hour or less route. Two falls will be needed to win both matches.

The wrestle royal will be every man for himself with the first man to be pinned to leave the ring and so on down the line until only one wrestler remains. This lucky fellow will be presented a $25 bonus.

Tomorrow night's matches will afford local fans their first opportunity to see the Golden Terror in action in several months. The big, masked grappler is well known, though not well liked, hereabouts.

Bill Barney, the Louisiana heavyweight champion, will also be making his first appearance on Kallio's mat in some time. Wild Bill's been under the weather a bit lately but has recovered and is ready for action.

This will be the first wrestling show here in three weeks. Two weeks ago the card was cancelled due to bad weather and a boxing program was presented last week.

Tall Chief II Takes Victory

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 22 (AP)—Irish-bred Tall Chief II, held well off the pace, won the $57,300 Washington's Birthday Handicap over the grass course at Santa Anita today, withstanding a late drive by Promised Land.

Lightly regarded Tall Chief II paid $25.40, $11.10 and $59.00; Promised Land $4.30 and $2.10, and Solid Son $3.60 to show.

Joe Brown's Tenacious 1st In Letellier

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Joe W. Brown's Tenacious brused past front-runners in the stretch and held off late challengers Bernburgoo and St. Amour II today to win the $18,000 A. B. Letellier Memorial at the Fair Grounds.

The four-year-old son of Challedon, handicap champion of the winter meeting, was two and one quarter lengths in front of Bernburgoo at the finish. St. Amour II was three-quarters of a length behind the W. Hal Bishop's colorbearer.

The victory was the fifth of the meeting for Tenacious, who was a slight choice over St. Amour II with the crowd of 14,629. Tenacious returned $7.70, $4 and $3. Bernburgoo, a 12-1 shot in the mutuels, paid $9.40 and $4.80 and St. Amour II, owned by shoe manufacturer Frank Rand of Sante Fe, N. M., returned $3.60.

Tenacious toured the mile and one-eighth in 1:52 2-5 over a track classified fast, although a slight drizzle fell all afternoon.

Jockey Ray Broussard held Tenacious in seventh place during the early running while L. H. Thompson's Ezgo and Mrs. Ione Groves' Full Flight fought for the early lead.

Full Flight had a length margin coming out of the back stretch as Ezgo began to fall back and Broussard moved Tenacious up and jockey Pete Anderson brought St. Amour II through on the rail.

Tenacious went to the front a quarter of a mile from home as Bernburgoo loomed up on the outside and St. Amour II made his last thrust.

The victory established Tenacious as the prime favorite for the $50,000-added New Orleans Handicap next week. The triumph was worth $13,150 to Brown and brought Tenacious' winnings to $34,200 for the year.

Monday Morning, the longest priced entry in the nine-horse field at 70-1, took fourth place, followed by T. Alie Grissom's Shan Pac, J. R. Johnston's King O'Swords, Dr. S. G. Babbitz' Speed Rouser, Ezgo and Full Flight. C. L. Dupuy's Galdar was a late scratch.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

A familiar face seen around the Bowling Center on Monday nights is that of sports enthusiast John Birdson. John puts in a regular appearance to pull for his Royal Feed and Seed team. A former bowler himself, John has been sponsoring a bowling team for ten years or better. Three of those years his team was entered in the Major League at the old bowling alley on Walnut street.

With Casey Jones doing the masterminding, the Royal Feed team is one of the most feared outfits in the league. Walter Cash, who threw the big 742 series last year, Mutt Carroll, a deadly man on the pin falling, Lake Coonrod, one of the top bowlers in town, E. B. Peddy, twice city match game champion, and Sonny Durham, who is leading all three leagues in which he bowls in average, make up the team.

JOHN BIRDSONG

Numerous trophies and prizes have been won by the Royals. Among them several league championships and the city championship. In most cases where they lost they finished either in second or third place. One year KMLB beat them out by a mere half-point.

Hats off to a real friend and lover of the game of ten pins—John Birdsong.

Charlie Walker (A. and C. Music) topped the Kegler League in series this past week. Charlie hammered out a nice 623 series. This was the best output by Charlie since returning from the army. Before going into the service he rolled the high scratch series for the Scratch League. Keep it up, Charlie! Our team could sure use some more high scoring like that.

Ernest Carter continued his private war with the pins. Ernie threw a big 642 series on Monday and came back Tuesday with 613.

Archie Parker and Homer McMurry also found the pins to their liking in the Kegler League this past week. Archie tossed a 211 game and 575 series, and Homer racked up a fat 233 game and 575 series. Robert Creighton and J. R. Hood each posted 566 for the three games.

Fields whitewashed Delta Music to regain the lead in the Business Women's League Wednesday night. Fields racked up a 717 high team game and a 2,090 total pin count in their decisive victory over Delta.

Daisy Creighton was high with her 177-516. Totsie Shoemaker, for the losing Delta team, shot the high game of the night, a 186.

Faye Southall (Green Brothers Dairy) posted the high game of the night in the Ladies League. Faye tossed a mighty 214. Norma Brown (208), and Claudia Stockwell (201) also had 200 games. Norma put the high series on the boards a 516.

Bill Dyer of the Optimist Club registered the high game (230) and the high series (558) for the Industrial League. L. and B. Athletic Association still clings to the league lead by eight points over Norris Syrup.

Several of the local bowling teams have departed for Dallas, Texas, to participate in the annual Southern Tournament being held there for the next few weeks. I have to wish them lots of luck and a great deal of pinfall. I hope that this will be the year that one of our local teams win it.

Aussie Youth Tops 4 More Swim Records

MELBOURNE, Australia (UP)—Jon Konrads, 15, bettered world records for four distances Saturday night at the Australian swimming championships and established himself as the sport's outstanding freestyle performer.

Cheered by a capacity crowd of 5,500, the barrel-chested youngster turned the gruelling men's 1,650-yard freestyle final into a one-boy show while winning in 17 minutes, 28.7 seconds.

Konrads defeated Gary Winram (18:45.0) by 100 yards and now has set freestyle world records from 200 meters to 1,650 yards.

Jon knocked a fantastic total of 30.5 seconds off the 17:59.2 time which the International Swimming Federation established as the clocking required for a world record in the event in a 55-yard or 50-meter pool. En route he clipped 31.2 seconds off the world 1,500-meter mark of 17:52.9 set by George Breen of Buffalo, N.Y. This distance is about 10 yards shorter than 1,650 yards.

Konrads also was clocked at the 810-yard mark and was timed there in nine minutes, 14.5 seconds. This was 3.2 seconds better than his world mark of 9:17.7 for 800 meters and 880 yards.

Konrads' feat climaxed the week long meet. The entrants, battling for berths on the squad which will represent Australia at the British Empire games next summer in Wales, bettered 17 world standards in what probably was the biggest record spree ever produced in one meet.

Northwestern Tops Michigan In Big 10 Tilt

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UP) — Northwestern, holding two of Michigan's starters scoreless in the first half, Saturday outran the disorganized Wolverines and handed Michigan its fourth straight Big Ten basketball setback, 75-66.

Michigan rallied from a 36-27 halftime deficit paced by forward M.C. Burton who sank three field goals and came within two points of the Wildcats, 40-38.

But sub Floyd Campbell dropped in a free throw and Dick Berry and Nick Mantis netted field goals to put Northwestern out of danger for good.

Burton carried the Michigan attack, scoring the game high of 24 points, 18 of them in the second half in the Big Ten's weekly televised game.

Starting guards Terry Miller and Jack Lewis couldn't hit for the Wolverines in the first half as Northwestern connected on 36 per cent of its shots to 27 per cent for Michigan.

Franklin Girls Win Area Negro Basketball Title

WINNSBORO, La. (Special) — The Franklin Parish Training School girls' basketball team, with a 46-1 record, including an unbeaten conference sweep of scheduled games, won the district divisional title by beating their Wisner rivals, 76-43, and Waverly, 93-52, to gain a place in the district title playoffs here next Friday at the F. P. T. S. gymnasium at 1 p.m.

The Franklin girls have scored 2,558 points this season, and the individual accounting shows Merdis Chambers, 978 points; Rosie Lee Grant, 800; and Bononon Gardenhi, 780.

Coach Bereniece J. Payne gives much of the credit for the success of the team to guards Ora Bell Grimble, Maxine Otis, Lucille Johnson, and Freddye January.

Knicks Top Nats In Last Seconds

NEW YORK (UP) Ron Sobie sank two free throws and Richie Guerin converted two of three in the final 12 seconds Saturday and led the New York Knickerbockers to a 115-112 triumph over the Syracuse Nationals in a nationally televised National Basketball Assn. game.

Problems Awaiting Most All Big League Skippers

By BEN OLAN

The Associated Press

Problems? Almost every one of the 16 big league baseball managers has them.

And the headaches are bound to increase Saturday with the official opening of the spring training season.

Even pennant - winning pilots Fred Haney of the Milwaukee Braves and Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees won't be excepted from the demanding grind. Like the others they'll have to worry about rookie trials, hectic exhibition schedules, player injuries and inevitable roster-trimming decisions.

Will the Bums of Brooklyn become the darlings of Los Angeles? Will the Giants come out of their fog in San Francisco? Can Walt Alston of the Dodgers find a catching replacement for the injured Roy Campanella? Can the Boston Red Sox count on another banner year by 39-year-old Ted Williams? Will Cleveland's Herb Score be able to come back?

These are only a few of the questions to be answered in the next few weeks.

All 16 clubs will be back at their 1957 spring training camps this year. The only new manager hired since the close of the last campaign was Bobby Bragan. He caught on with the Cleveland Indians after the Pittsburgh Pirates dropped him in favor of Danny Murtaugh.

Let's look at some of the strong and weak points of each club as the official start of the training season approaches (clubs listed in order of last season's finish):

American League

New York — Good rookie crop to help Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and company. But Stengel must come up with left fielder and firm up the shortstop situation involving Gil McDougald and Tony Kubek.

Chicago — Pitching definitely improved with the addition of Early Wynn and Ray Moore. But skipper Al Lopez needs power yielded in giving up Minnie Minoso and Larry Doby. The Sox hope Al Smith, obtained from Cleveland, and big first baseman Ron Jackson can pick up the slack.

Boston — Very little change. Infielder Pete Runnels seems only important new man and he'll likely only be used as a reserve. Second base and shortstop jobs are open although a strong comeback by Billy Klaus would help.

Detroit — Acquisition of Billy Martin, Jim Hegan, Gus Zernial and Tom Morgan appears to have strengthened club considerably. To go all the way, Tigers need improved performances by Harvey Kuenn, Billy Hoeft and Frank Lary.

Baltimore — Doby gives Orioles lefthanded power it lacked. And manger Paul Richards helped out by recommending shortening of home park fances. Southpaw BillyO'Dell may be ready to become big winner.

Cleveland — Frank Lane has helped each team he's been with. So why stop with Indians? Score must win 20 games for them to move into first division. Addition of Minoso and pinch-hitter Mickey Vernon should help.

Kansas City — Harry Craft has numerical pitching strength with 23 on roster. Duke Maas, acquired from Detroit, looms as ace of staff backed up by Ralph Terry, Jack Urban, Ned Garver, Alex Kellner and Wally Burnette. Other new faces include outfielder Jim Small and catcher Frank House, also from Tigers.

Washington — Most important newcomer is big first sacker Norm Zauchin. Catching strongest point with three topflight men in Clint Courtney, Ed FitzGerald and Lou Berberet. One of three may go in trade.

National League

Milwaukee — Stronger, if anything. Exceptional pitching looks even better with addition of Bob Rush and Don Kaiser from Chisago and Joey Jay and Carleton Willey from Wichita farm. A healthy Billy Bruton will straighten out lone weak spot in outfield.

St. Louis — Still looking for first rate center fielder. Also needs more pitching depth to match Braves. Some of stars such as Stan Musial, Al Dark and Del Ennis moving up in older age bracket.

Los Angeles — Alston counting heavily on rookie Don Demeter to win outfield job. Pitching of Don Newcombe and John Podres figures to improve. But none of available catchers appear near Campanella's class.

Cincinnati—Numerically stronger in pitching bolstered in trades with Cardinals and Philadlephia. Harvey Haddix, from Phils, should fill southpaw needs. Infield strongest department with three good first basemen in Dee Fondy, George Crowe and Steve Bilko.

Philadelphia—Wally Post (from Cincinnati) gives club fine outfield. Eddie Bouchee will be missed. Comeback by Robin Roberts could put Phils in the race.

San Francisco — Manager Bill Rigney counting on youngsters Willie Kirkland and Orlando Cepeda to back up Willie Mays. Pitching will be adequate if Johnny Antonelli recovers form. Catching is sore spot.

Pittsburgh — A healthy Ted Kluszewski coupled with righthanded punch supplied by Frank Thomas can move Pirates up a few notches. Fine double play combine in Bill Mazeroski and Dick Groat. Pitching is sound.

Chicago (tied Pittsburgh for 7th) — Taylor Phillips will have to come through with fine season to make deal with Braves pay off. Some promising rookies on roster. But looks as though team will have to count again on Ernie Banks and Walt Moryn for most of batting punch.

Aussie Youth Tops 4 More Swim Records

MELBOURNE, Australia (UP)—Jon Konrads, 15, bettered world records for four distances Saturday night at the Australian swimming championships and established himself as the sport's outstanding freestyle performer.

Cheered by a capacity crowd of 5,500, the barrel-chested youngster turned the gruelling men's 1,650-yard freestyle final into a one-boy show while winning in 17 minutes, 28.7 seconds.

Konrads defeated Gary Winram (18:45.0) by 100 yards and now has set freestyle world records from 200 meters to 1,650 yards.

Jon knocked a fantastic total of 30.5 seconds off the 17:59.2 time which the International Swimming Federation established as the clocking required for a world record in the event in a 55-yard or 50-meter pool. En route he clipped 31.2 seconds off the world 1,500-meter mark of 17:52.9 set by George Breen of Buffalo, N.Y. This distance is about 10 yards shorter than 1,650 yards.

Konrads also was clocked at the 810-yard mark and was timed there in nine minutes, 14.5 seconds. This was 3.2 seconds better than his world mark of 9:17.7 for 800 meters and 830 yards.

Konrads' feat climaxed the week long meet. The entrants, battling for berths on the squad which will represent Australia at the British Empire games next summer in Wales, bettered 17 world standards in what probably was the biggest record spree ever produced in one meet.

Northwestern Tops Michigan In Big 10 Tilt

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UP) — Northwestern, holding two of Michigan's starters scoreless in the first half, Saturday outran the disorganized Wolverines and handed Michigan its fourth straight Big Ten basketball setback, 75-66.

Michigan rallied from a 36-27 halftime deficit paced by forward M.C. Burton who sank three field goals and came within two points of the Wildcats, 40-38.

But sub Floyd Campbell dropped in a free throw and Dick Berry and Nick Mantis netted field goals to put Northwestern out of danger for good.

Burton carried the Michigan attack, scoring the game high of 24 points, 18 of them in the second half in the Big Ten's weekly televised game.

Starting guards Terry Miller and Jack Lewis couldn't hit for the Wolverines in the first half as Northwestern connected on 36 per cent of its shots to 27 per cent for Michigan.

Problems Awaiting Most All Big League Skippers

By BEN OLAN
The Associated Press

Problems? Almost every one of the 16 big league baseball managers has them.

And the headaches are bound to increase Saturday with the official opening of the spring training season.

Even pennant - winning pilots Fred Haney of the Milwaukee Braves and Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees won't be excepted from the demanding grind. Like the others they'll have to worry about rookie trials, hectic exhibition schedules, player injuries and inevitable roster-trimming decisions.

Will the Bums of Brooklyn become the darlings of Los Angeles? Will the Giants come out of their fog in San Francisco? Can Walt Alston of the Dodgers find a catching replacement for the injured Roy Campanella? Can the Boston Red Sox count on another banner year by 39-year-old Ted Williams? Will Cleveland's Herb Score be able to come back?

These are only a few of the questions to be answered in the next few weeks.

All 16 clubs will be back at their 1957 spring training camps this year. The only new manager hired since the close of the last campaign was Bobby Bragan. He caught on with the Cleveland Indians after the Pittsburgh Pirates dropped him in favor of Danny Murtaugh.

Let's look at some of the strong and weak points of each club as the official start of the training season approaches (clubs listed in order of last season's finish):

American League

New York — Good rookie crop to help Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and company. But Stengel must come up with left fielder and firm up the shortstop situation involving Gil McDougald and Tony Kubek.

Chicago — Pitching definitely improved with the addition of Early Wynn and Ray Moore. But skipper Al Lopez needs power yielded in giving up Minnie Minoso and Larry Doby. The Sox hope Al Smith, obtained from Cleveland, and big first baseman Ron Jackson can pick up the slack.

Boston — Very little change. Infielder Pete Runnels seems only important new man and he'll likely only be used as a reserve. Second base and shortstop jobs are open although a strong comeback by Billy Klaus would help.

Detroit — Acquisition of Billy Martin, Jim Hegan, Gus Zernial and Tom Morgan appears to have strengthened club considerably. To go all the way, Tigers need improved performances by Harvey Kuenn, Billy Hoeft and Frank Lary.

Baltimore — Doby gives Orioles lefthanded power it lacked. And manger Paul Richards helped out by recommending shortening of home park fances. Southpaw BillyO'Dell may be ready to become big winner.

Cleveland — Frank Lane has helped each team he's been with. So why stop with Indians? Score must win 20 games for them to move into first division. Addition of Minoso and pinch-hitter Mickey Vernon should help.

Kansas City — Harry Craft has numerical pitching strength with 23 on roster. Duke Maas, acquired from Detroit, looms as ace of staff backed up by Ralph Terry, Jack Urban, Ned Garver, Alex Kellner and Wally Burnette. Other new faces include outfielder Jim Small and catcher Frank House, also from Tigers.

Washington — Most important newcomer is big first sacker Norm Zauchin. Catching strongest point with three topflight men in Clint Courtney, Ed FitzGerald and Lou Berberet. One of three may go in trade.

National League

Milwaukee — Stronger, if anything. Exceptional pitching looks even better with addition of Bob Rush and Don Kaiser from Chisago and Joey Jay and Carleton Willey from Wichita farm. A healthy Billy Bruton will straighten out lone weak spot in outfield.

St. Louis — Still looking for first rate center fielder. Also needs more pitching depth to match Braves. Some of stars such as Stan Musial, Al Dark and Del Ennis moving up in older age bracket.

Los Angeles — Alston counting heavily on rookie Don Demeter to win outfield job. Pitching of Don Newcombe and John Podres figures to improve. But none of available catchers appear near Campanella's class.

Cincinnati—Numerically stronger in pitching bolstered in trades with Cardinals and Philadlephia. Harvey Haddix, from Phils, should fill southpaw needs. Infield strongest department with three good first basemen in Dee Fondy, George Crowe and Steve Bilko.

Philadelphia—Wally Post (from Cincinnati) gives club fine outfield. Eddie Bouchee will be missed. Comeback by Robin Roberts could put Phils in the race.

San Francisco — Manager Bill Rigney counting on youngsters Willie Kirkland and Orlando Cepeda to back up Willie Mays. Pitching will be adequate if Johnny Antonelli recovers form. Catching is sore spot.

Pittsburgh — A healthy Ted Kluszewski coupled with righthanded punch supplied by Frank Thomas can move Pirates up a few notches. Fine double play combine in Bill Mazeroski and Dick Groat. Pitching is sound.

Chicago (tied Pittsburgh for 7th) — Taylor Phillips will have to come through with fine season to make deal with Braves pay off. Some promising rookies on roster. But looks as though team will have to count again on Ernie Banks and Walt Moryn for most of batting punch.

Northeast Cagers Fall To Demons In Last Home Tilt

Northwestern stayed in the running for the Gulf States Conference championship here last night with a 95-80 triumph over last place Northeast in the Indians last home game.

Little Jimmy Leach scored 29 points, among them the 1,000th of his college career, to pace the Demons to victory with freshman Phil Haley contributing 21. Leach now has 1,012 points with three games left to go this season and a whole year to add to his total.

Northwestern now has a 6-1 record in the GSC and can do no worse than tie for first if they win their remaining three loop contests. They are 17-7 for the season. Northeast is now 1-7 in conference competition and 8-14 overall.

The Demons were in front throughout most of the game. They jumped into an early 1-0 lead on Bob Wicker's free toss with 35 seconds gone and stayed in front until Bob Patterson broke a tie and put Northeast's Indians on top, 14-12, with 11:15 left in the first half.

Leach gave Northwestern the lead again with 9:32 left in the half, 17-16, but Northeast tied it up again twice before Haley put the Demons in front to stay, 21-19, with 7:30 left. Northwestern was never headed again.

The score at the half was 47-36 and the Demons came through with another fine half in the final stanza to run up their top point total for the year. The closest the Indians came to the visitors in the second half was a 7-point spread, 49-42, 2:20 deep in the half.

Leach scored his 1,000th point on the second of two successful free throws with 3:06 left in the initial half.

Bob Patterson was Northeast's top scorer with 18 points and John Freeman had 17. Senior Lyle Dorsey started the game, along with fellow senior Bill Phillips, and scored 11 points as did Billy May. Freeman was the top Indian rebounder with 9.

Demaret Ready To Defend Title

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 22 (AP)—The nation's top golfers start scrapping Thursday for the first half of Louisiana's $35,000 twin jackpot for 1958, the seventh annual $15,000 Baton Rouge Open.

The touring professionals, playing this weekend in the Houston, Tex., open, move down to New Orleans after Baton Rouge for the $20,000 Greater New Orleans Open, revived after a 10 year lapse.

Jaunty Jimmy Demaret, snappy dressing Texan who plays out of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., will be on hand to defend his Baton Rouge open title.

Demaret played here for the first time in 1956 when he finished in a five-way tie for second, then won last year.

The defending champion should be pushed by a number of standouts, including Ken Venturi, a double winner on the winter tourney trail; Jay and Lionel Hebert, former Louisiana State University Golfers; Billy Casper, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Doug Ford, Bo Wininger, Shelley Mayfield, Jackie Burke, Bob Toski and Julius Boros.

Burke, Mayfield, Wininger and Toski are past champions in the tournament.

Special interest will center on Toski, 1954 winner.

After winning the Baton Rouge Open, the slender little golfer hit the $100,000 Tam O'Shanter Tournament jackpot at Chicago that summer, but he hasn't won a major tournament since then.

Toski played this winter with the so called "Jayvee" circuit in the Caribbean and won several minor tournaments. Baton Rouge will signal his return to big time competition.

Scene of the event is the par 72 Baton Rouge Country Club course, a 6,450-yard layout with gently rolling fairways lined with stately moss-draped oaks and criss-crossed by winding bayous.

The course is rated one of the finest on the winter circuit and is reported in excellent condition despite one of the coldest winters in many years.

The second half of Louisiana's twin entry in the winter tourney trail will be played over the New Orleans City Park No. 1 course, a sprawling layout that has almost no hills.

The touring professionals haven't visited New Orleans since 1948 when Bob Hamilton won the event.

In both Baton Rouge and New Orleans qualifying is set for Tuesday and the touring pros will stage a golf clinic on Wednesday before the tourney opens Thursday.

Courson scored 12 points for South Monroe in the girls finals with Kennedy leading Ouachita with 5. Kimball and Canal each got 8 points for South Monroe's boys in the finals and Cole and Nobles shared the honors for North Monroe with 3 apiece.

Girls semi-final results were South Monroe 22, Millsaps 4 and Ouachita 12, North Monroe 9. Top scorers were Courson with 14 for South Monroe, J. Smith with 4 for Millsaps, Kennedy with 6 for Ouachita and Landy with 4 for North Monroe.

In the boys semi-finals, it was South Monroe 21, Millsaps 15 and North Monroe 26, Crosley 22. Gannaway had 7 for South Monroe, Robinson 4 for Millsaps, Cole 14 for North Monroe and Allen 13 for Crosley.

Freshman Having Big Season At Wesleyan

NEW YORK (UP)—Mark down Kelly Coleman, a freshman at Kentucky Wesleyan, as a basketball star of the future.

Matter of fact, the weekly major college statistics issued Saturday by the NCAA Service Bureau indicate that Coleman can claim top billing right now.

Although his college of 500 students plays teams with much greater manpower, Coleman has become the highest scoring freshman in major college history. He also has jumped from 13th place last week to fifth this week in the current individual scoring standings for all players.

Coleman scored 113 points in three games last week to give him an even 600 points for the season. That broke the record of 555 set by Cleo Littleton of Wichita in 1951-52.

Coleman's average of 26.1 points a game is bettered only by those of Elgin Baylor of Seattle (33.9), Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati (33.6), Wilt Chamberlain of Kansas (31.4) and Bailey Howell of Mississippi State (26.8). The figures include games through Thursday night.

In team offense, Marshall (89.4 points per game), Cincinnati (87.2), West Virginia (86.0) and Seattle (83.7) stood 1-2-3-4 for the fourth straight week. On defense, San Francisco (49.4 points allowed per game, Oklahoma State (51.0) and Dayton (53.5) headed the list for the fifth week in a row.

HOUSTON MEET DELAYED

Venturi Figures Rain May Help His Victory Chances

By LLOYD LARRABEE

HOUSTON (UP) — Young Ken Venturi, a pre-tournament favorite but now five strokes behind the leader in the $30,000 Houston Invitational Golf classic said driving rain which forced postponement of Saturday's third round may have helped his chances.

The 26-year-old San Francisco pro posted a score of 144 at the 36-hole mark after Friday's second round, five strokes off the pace of 139 set by a virtual unknown, 42-year-old Pete Mazur of Buffalo, N. Y.

Venturi, winner of four tournaments in the past year including the Thunderbird Open at Palm Springs, Calif., and the Phoenix Open on the winter circuit, conceded that his chances "are a little harder than when we started . . . I haven't been holding many putts."

However, Venturi said, "a couple of good rounds can still win the tournament. Someone at 144 can shoot a 67 and lead the tournament," he said, although not predicting he would be the man to do it.

Play was scheduled to be resumed at 9:30 a. m. Sunday, weather permitting, with the final round moved back to Monday.

Second round play Friday was marked by chilling winds and a light sprinkle, which turned into a steady rain at night fall and continued through the night and Saturday, forcing a one-day postponement.

Venturi expressed belief the rain would be "a little helpful," and "make a low round more possible."

"I don't think you'll get as much run on the ball," he said. "It'll soften up the fairways and greens and if you hit the ball right you can get it up to the green."

Mazur's 139 was one stroke ahead of Jimmy Demaret, Marty Furgol, and Roberto de Vicenzo at 140, while two others—Milon Maurice and young Dave Ragan — were only a stroke further away at 141.

Jay Hebert and Bo Wininger were tied at 142 and Frank Stranahan, Bob Goalby and Ted Kroll held 143s at the mid-way point of the tourney, one stroke ahead of Venturi and eight others bracketed at 144.

FOR THREE YEARS

Howell Handed New Giant Pact

NEW YORK (UP)— Jim Lee Howell signed a new three-year contract as head coach of the National Football League's New York Giants Saturday and predicted "things will be mighty interesting" in the Eastern Division in 1958.

Howell, a former Arkansas State senator and Marine lieutenant, has coached the Giants the past four seasons. He replaced Steve Owen in 1954.

Howell is the only coach who has beaten Paul Brown's Cleveland Browns out of the Eastern Division title since 1950. The Giants snapped Cleveland's unprecedented domination of the division by finishing first in 1956 and then crushed the Chicago Bears for the league crown, 47-7.

The Giants, Pittsburgh Steelers, Chicago Cardinals, Washington Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles have had a total of 17 coaches since Brown's Brownies entered the NFL's Eastern Division in 1950. Of the 17, only Howell ever has beaten Cleveland out of the Eastern title, which it has won seven times in eight tries.

The Cardinals have replaced Ray Richards with Frank Ivy and the Eagles have hired Buck Shaw to take Hugh Devore's place as head coach for 1958. Howell figures these changes will add to the interest in the Eastern race this year.

However, Howell apparently believes the Browns and coach Buddy Parker's Pittsburgh Steelers may be the toughest teams the Giants will face this season in the division race.

"Any time you have coaches like Brown and Parker in your division, you are in for some tough competition," Howell said.

Valdes' Pilot Gets No Reply To Charge

NEW YORK (UP) — The manager of heavyweight Nino Valdes left Saturday for five days in Cuba without hearing from the New York State Athletic Commission about his charges of fixed-fight in connection with Valdes' loss to Alex Miteff Friday night.

Miteff, though smeared with blood from a deep nose cut, scored a split 10-round decision over Cuban Valdes at Madison Square Garden.

Bobby Gleason, explosive manager of Valdes, yelled in the dressing room afterward that Nino should have been given the decision and asserted, "I heard rumors that the fight was in the bag." Gleason said he had been to see the commission early Friday about the rumors.

William Thomas, chief counsel for the commission, said after the fight that Gleason would be "called right in" and asked to substantiate "These serious charges." Thomas added, "If they are unfounded, Gleason should be reprimanded."

Gleason said Saturday he had not seen Thomas after the fight "and if I had, I would have given him an earful."

Gleason left by plane this afternoon for Cuba to watch one of his fighters in a bout in Havana Saturday night. He said he expected to be gone about five days—"so if they want me, they'll have to wait that long."

Julius Helfand, chairman of the commission, was not available for comment.

"He had been cuffing me around and I got tired of it."

Barna spent 16 seasons in professional baseball as an outfielder. He played with the New York Giants and Boston Red Sox. His last season in baseball was 1952 with the Charleston Senators.

Northeast Cagers Fall To Demons In Last Home Tilt

Northwestern stayed in the running for the Gulf States Conference championship here last night with a 95-80 triumph over last place Northeast in the Indians last home game.

Little Jimmy Leach scored 29 points, among them the 1,000th of his college career, to pace the Demons to victory with freshman Phil Haley contributing 21. Leach now has 1,012 points with three games left to go this season and a whole year to add to his total.

Northwestern now has a 6-1 record in the GSC and can do no worse than tie for first if they win their remaining three loop contests. They are 17-7 for the season. Northeast is now 1-7 in conference competition and 8-14 overall.

The Demons were in front throughout most of the game. They jumped into an early 1-0 lead on Bob Wicker's free toss with 35 seconds gone and stayed in front until Bob Patterson broke a tie and put Northeast's Indians on top, 14-12, with 11:15 left in the first half.

Leach gave Northwestern the lead again with 9:32 left in the half, 17-16, but Northeast tied it up again twice before Haley put the Demons in front to stay, 21-19, with 7:30 left. Northwestern was never headed again.

The score at the half was 47-36 and the Demons came through with another fine half in the final stanza to run up their top point total for the year. The closest the Indians came to the visitors in the second half was a 7-point spread, 49-42, 2:20 deep in the half.

Leach scored his 1,000th point on the second of two successful free throws with 3:06 left in the initial half.

Bob Patterson was Northeast's top scorer with 18 points and John Freeman had 17. Senior Lyle Dorsey started the game, along with fellow senior Bill Phillips, and scored 11 points as did Billy May. Freeman was the top Indian rebounder with 9.

START THURSDAY

Demaret Ready To Defend Title

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 22 (AP)—The nation's top golfers start scrapping Thursday for the first half of Louisiana's $35,000 twin jackpot for 1958, the seventh annual $15,000 Baton Rouge Open.

The touring professionals, playing this weekend in the Houston, Tex., open, move down to New Orleans after Baton Rouge for the $20,000 Greater New Orleans Open, revived after a 10 year lapse.

Jaunty Jimmy Demaret, snappy dressing Texan who plays out of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., will be on hand to defend his Baton Rouge open title.

Demaret played here for the first time in 1956 when he finished in a five-way tie for second, then won last year.

The defending champion should be pushed by a number of standouts, including Ken Venturi, a double winner on the winter tourney trail; Jay and Lionel Hebert, former Louisiana State University Golfers; Billy Casper, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Doug Ford, Bo Wininger, Shelley Mayfield, Jackie Burke, Bob Toski and Julius Boros.

Burke, Mayfield, Wininger and Toski are past champions in the tournament.

Special interest will center on Toski, 1954 winner.

After winning the Baton Rouge Open, the slender little golfer hit the $100,000 Tam O'Shanter Tournament jackpot at Chicago that summer, but he hasn't won a major tournament since then.

Toski played this winter with the so called "Jayvee" circuit in the Caribbean and won several minor tournaments. Baton Rouge will signal his return to big time competition.

Scene of the event is the par 72 Baton Rouge Country Club course, a 6,450-yard layout with gently rolling fairways lined with stately moss-draped oaks and criss-crossed by winding bayous.

The course is rated one of the finest on the winter circuit and is reported in excellent condition despite one of the coldest winters in many years.

The second half of Louisiana's twin entry in the winter tourney trail will be played over the New Orleans City Park No. 1 course, a sprawling layout that has almost no hills.

The touring professionals haven't visited New Orleans since 1948 when Bob Hamilton won the event.

In both Baton Rouge and New Orleans qualifying is set for Tuesday and the touring pros will stage a golf clinic on Wednesday before the tourney opens Thursday.

Freshman Having Big Season At Wesleyan

NEW YORK (UP)—Mark down Kelly Coleman, a freshman at Kentucky Wesleyan, as a basketball star of the future.

Matter of fact, the weekly major college statistics issued Saturday by the NCAA Service Bureau indicate that Coleman can claim top billing right now.

Although his college of 500 students plays teams with much greater manpower, Coleman has become the highest scoring freshman in major college history. He also has jumped from 13th place last week to fifth this week in the current individual scoring standings for all players.

Coleman scored 113 points in three games last week to give him an even 600 points for the season. That broke the record of 555 set by Cleo Littleton of Wichita in 1951-52.

Coleman's average of 26.1 points a game is bettered only by those of Elgin Baylor of Seattle (33.9), Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati (33.6), Wilt Chamberlain of Kansas (31.4) and Bailey Howell of Mississippi State (26.8). The figures include games through Thursday night.

In team offense, Marshall (89.4 points per game), Cincinnati (87.2), West Virginia (86.0) and Seattle (83.7) stood 1-2-3-4 for the fourth straight week. On defense, San Francisco (49.4 points allowed per game, Oklahoma State (51.0) and Dayton (53.5) headed the list for the fifth week in a row.

HOUSTON MEET DELAYED

Venturi Figures Rain May Help His Victory Chances

By LLOYD LARRABEE

HOUSTON (UP) — Young Ken Venturi, a pre-tournament favorite but now five strokes behind the leader in the $30,000 Houston Invitational Golf classic said driving rain which forced postponement of Saturday's third round may have helped his chances.

The 26-year-old San Francisco pro posted a score of 144 at the 36-hole mark after Friday's second round, five strokes off the pace of 139 set by a virtual unknown, 42-year-old Pete Mazur of Buffalo, N. Y.

Venturi, winner of four tournaments in the past year including the Thunderbird Open at Palm Springs, Calif., and the Phoenix Open on the winter circuit, conceded that his chances "are a little harder than when we started . . . I haven't been holding many putts."

However, Venturi said, "a couple of good rounds can still win the tournament. Someone at 144 can shoot a 67 and lead the tournament," he said, although not predicting he would be the man to do it.

Play was scheduled to be resumed at 9:30 a. m. Sunday, weather permitting, with the final round moved back to Monday.

Second round play Friday was marked by chilling winds and a light sprinkle, which turned into a steady rain at night fall and continued through the night and Saturday, forcing a one-day postponement.

Venturi expressed belief the rain would be "a little helpful," and "make a low round more possible."

"I don't think you'll get as much run on the ball," he said. "It'll soften up the fairways and greens and if you hit the ball righ you can get it up to the green."

Mazur's 139 was one stroke ahead of Jimmy Demaret, Marty Furgol, and Roberto de Vicenzo at 140, while two others—Milon Maurice and young Dave Ragan — were only a stroke further away at 141.

Jay Hebert and Bo Wininger were tied at 142 and Frank Stranahan, Bob Goalby and Ted Kroll held 143s at the mid-way point of the tourney, one stroke ahead of Venturi and eight others bracketed at 144.

FOR THREE YEARS

Howell Handed New Giant Pact

NEW YORK (UP)— Jim Lee Howell signed a new three-year contract as head coach of the National Football League's New York Giants Saturday and predicted "things will be mighty interesting" in the Eastern Division in 1958.

Howell, a former Arkansas State senator and Marine lieutenant, has coached the Giants the past four seasons. He replaced Steve Owen in 1954.

Howell is the only coach who has beaten Paul Brown's Cleveland Browns out of the Eastern Division title since 1950. The Giants snapped Cleveland's unprecedented domination of the division by finishing first in 1956 and then crushed the Chicago Bears for the league crown, 47-7.

The Giants, Pittsburgh Steelers, Chicago Cardinals, Washington Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles have had a total of 17 coaches since Brown's Brownies entered the NFL's Eastern Division in 1950. Of the 17, only Howell ever has beaten Cleveland out of the Eastern title, which it has won seven times in eight tries.

The Cardinals have replaced Ray Richards with Frank Ivy and the Eagles have hired Buck Shaw to take Hugh Devore's place as head coach for 1958. Howell figures these changes will add to the interest in the Eastern race this year.

However, Howell apparently believes the Browns and coach Buddy Parker's Pittsburgh Steelers may be the toughest teams the Giants will face this season in the division race.

"Any time you have coaches like Brown and Parker in your division, you are in for some tough competition," Howell said.

Valdes' Pilot Gets No Reply To Charge

NEW YORK (UP) — The manager of heavyweight Nino Valdes left Saturday for five days in Cuba without hearing from the New York State Athletic Commission about his charges of fixed-fight in connection with Valdes' loss to Alex Miteff Friday night.

Miteff, though smeared with blood from a deep nose cut, scored a split 10-round decision over Cuban Valdes at Madison Square Garden.

Bobby Gleason, explosive manager of Valdes, yelled in the dressing room afterward that Nino should have been given the decision and asserted, "I heard rumors that the fight was in the bag." Gleason said he had been to see the commission early Friday about the rumors.

William Thomas, chief counsel for the commission, said after the fight that Gleason would be "called right in" and asked to substantiate "These serious charges." Thomas added, "If they are unfounded, Gleason should be reprimanded."

Gleason said Saturday he had not seen Thomas after the fight "and if I had, I would have given him an earful."

Gleason left by plane this afternoon for Cuba to watch one of his fighters in a bout in Havana Saturday night. He said he expected to be gone about five days—"so if they want me, they'll have to wait that long."

Julius Helfand, chairman of the commission, was not available for comment.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 22 (AP) — Herbert (Babe) Barna, former major league baseball player, was stabbed today in an altercation in a club he operates here.

Barna suffered a 14-inch penknife wound across the abdomen and cuts on both legs. A hospital said his condition was satisfactory.

Detective R. L. Smith said George Goff Jr., 23, of nearby Dunbar was arrested on a felonious wounding charge. Smith quoted Goff:

"He had been cuffing me around and I got tired of it."

Barna spent 16 seasons in professional baseball as an outfielder. He played with the New York Giants and Boston Red Sox. His last season in baseball was 1952 with the Charleston Senators.

Folk-Singing Boy From Country Turns Reserved Japanese Into Rowdy Fans

By KAY TATEISHI

TOKYO (AP) —The skinny little man in striped kimono pads in soft straw slippers across the cavernous stage at one of Asia's greatest theaters.

He pauses hesitantly before a microphone, plucks a couple of twanging chords on a three-string banjo-like samisen and then, in a thin wailing voice, sings a modern version of an old Japanese country folk song.

As his last plaintive note dies in Tokyo's vast Michigeki Theater, 3,500 screaming, cheering fans spill into the aisles and crowd toward the stage, their traditional Japanese reserve forgotten. Old women from the country, businessmen and giggling school girls chant "Mit-chan! Mit-chan!"

The doors of a Tokyo theater were torn down recently by angry fans who couldn't get into the show after waiting patiently for hours. At another time, a fire brigade had to be called out to control the crowds.

Object of this almost unprecedented adulation is shy, wavy-haired Michiya Mihashi, at 28 Japan's No. 1 singer and top boxoffice attraction.

Oriental Magic

A Westerner hearing Mihashi for the first time irreverently compared his voice to that of an ailing coyote. To more educated ears his singing of the old Japanese folk songs — some almost forgotten — is pure magic.

Mihashi is Japan's top recording artist by such a wide margin that other singers can hardly be considered in the race. His records have sold more than 3½ million copies in the past three years and they're still selling like hot rice cakes.

Although he sings only folk songs, Milhashi has led Japanese popularity polls for three years against artists specializing in jazz, chanson, Latin - American and other types of popular music. He is the most sought after crooner in Japan today with theaters, radio and television fighting for his talents. He seems to be the Japanese version of a combination of Frank Sinatra and Elvis Presley.

"The secret of Mihashi's singing," a leading music critic said, is that he is good at adapting the melody and rhythm of Japan's traditional old songs to the Occident's modern tonal scale."

Mihashi was literally born with a samisen in his hands in Hakodate, Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island, 27 years ago. His mother was a singer of Japanese folk songs and his uncle was a well-known rural samisen player and instructor.

Started Early

Young Mihashi disliked school but was fond of sports and music. When he was 13 he joined a troupe of Japanese musicians touring the villages and towns of northern Japan. He soon became known as the "singing wonder" and boy with the "golden voice." He came to Tokyo but couldn't land a job.

In 1954, after five years of odd jobs, he won first prize in a nationwide Japan Broadcasting Corp. amateur show. But he did not achieve real fame until he appeared at a recording company as a samisen accompanist for a singer who was one of his students. The singer developed a sore throat and Mihashi took over. His first record was a smash hit.

JAPANESE CROONER: Michiya Mihashi trys out his voice before an appearance in Tokyo. With a samisen accompaniment, he sings Japanese folk songs in modern style.

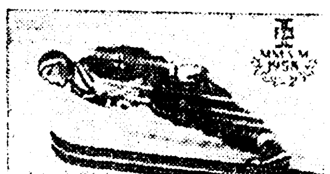
Ski Champion Events To Be Given Honors

By SYD KRONISH

To honor the World's Ski Championships held in Finland this year, that nation has issued two special stamps. The 20 markka depicts a ski jumper in action while the 30 markka shows a skiier climbing to his starting position.

Also reported from Finland is a 30 markka adhesive commemorating the 400th anniversary of the City of Pori (Bjorneborg). The central design is from a painting, "The March of the Bjorneborgienses," by Albert Edelfelt.



Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has announced a change in the issuance date for the Universal and International Exhibition of Brussels stamp. The commemorative will be released at Detroit on April 17 instead of April 15 to conform with the revised opening of the Belgian exhibition.

Several new stamps have been issued by Iraq. A new 3 fils red adhesive is an entirely new design showing the King's full face portrait. Four stamps in one set were issued to honor Army Day. These showed tanks, guns, planes and other military equipment. A new set due in April will commemorate Development Week.

GUESS WHAT I SAW IN THE CANAL, UNCLE ROSCO! A MILLION FISH... AND A WHOLE BUNCH OF SEA LIONS ...AND--AND A WHALE!
A WHALE? WELL, WELL, HOW INTERESTING, ANGEL!
IT'S WELL ENOUGH FOR ANGEL TO HAVE IMAGINATION, BROTHER, BUT INSTEAD OF SHOWING INTEREST IN HER LITTLE FIBS, YOU OUGHT TO DISCOURAGE HER-- BEFORE SHE GETS WORSE.
OKAY, I'LL SPEAK TO HER.
WELL.. AHEM!... ABOUT THAT WHALE, ANGEL. YOU MUST ALWAYS TELL THE TRUTH. NOW, YOU DIDN'T REALLY SEE A WHALE IN THE CANAL, OF COURSE. IN FACT, YOU'VE NEVER SEEN A WHALE, HAVE YOU?
SCADS OF 'EM! HAVEN'T YOU EVER SEEN A WHALE, UNCLE ROSCO?
JUST CLIMB ABOARD THIS WHALE, QUICK!
HELP! TELL US WHAT TO DO, SWEENEY!
"WELL, THAT WAS THE MOST ACCOMMODATING WHALE I EVER SAW. NEVER DIVED ONCE. THE MOST PLEASANT CRUISE I EVER MADE."
OBOY, THIS IS THE LIFE!
BUT WHAT DID YOU HAVE TO EAT, UNCLE ROSCO?
OYSTERS! THAT WHALE WAS A TRAVELING BED OF BLUEPOINTS! NEVER HAD BETTER OYSTER STEW!
"WHERE'D YOU GET THE MILK FOR OYSTER STEW, UNCLE ROSCO?" "WELL, HONEY, YOU SEE, THIS WAS A COW WHALE. GAVE A HUNDRED GALLONS OF MILK A DAY."
BUT HOW'D YOU COOK THE STEW?
WELL--HA, HA!--THERE'S WHERE I WAS SMART, ANGEL. YOU SEE, A WHALE'S FULL OF OIL. SO I SIMPLY PLUGGED IN A WICK, STRUCK A MATCH TO IT, AND--- ROSCO, I WANT TO SPEAK TO YOU!
ROSCO SWEENEY! THE VERY IDEA! YOU WERE TO DISCOURAGE HER FROM TELLING FIBS, INSTEAD OF TRYING TO GO HER ONE BETTER!
WELL, ER.....
